Fracas erupts at apartment complex

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Staff Writer

All was quiet on the northern front late Saturday night.

Less than 24 hours before, a section of the Anthony Buckner Apartments was turned into a battle zone, resulting in the arrest of eight people and the injury of several more, including six police officers.

Mayor Allen Hawkins has called for a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Municipal Building's City Council chambers. That session with the council, tenants involved in the disturbance, police officials and representatives of the Human Rights Commission and Sedalia Housing Authority, will try to sift fact from fiction surrounding the incident.

Tenants are claiming the police overreacted in breaking-up a party held at the apartments. Police counter that they acted professionally and deserve, in the words of Cpl. Tim Mosier, "a pat on the back instead of a slap in the face."

Though tenants and police disagree on many of the reports of the incident, some facts were repeated by both sides at seperate discussions conducted by the council Saturday.

Members of the council and representatives of the Authority, rights commission and police personnel board met with tenants about 9 a.m. Saturday at the Buckner Apartments. Another meeting between the council, representatives of the Authority, Human Rights Commission and police officers involved in the arrests was held at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The disturbance began about 12:45 a.m. Saturday. Police were called to quiet a party at 419 West Saline for the third time.

Twice before, participants at the party were asked by officers to keep noise to a minimum, according to both versions of the story.

Mayor Hawkins, Bellamy, Reed listen to Mrs. Hawkins' story

Police claim bottles and rocks were thrown at them when they responded to a call to quiet the party. Residents of the area deny that charge.

Sgt. Harold Moore, the field officer in charge, said he told Mosier to order the party goers to "clear the streets" in one minute.

Mosier, when questioned by First Ward Democrat Gary Dey, said he told the people to leave within 10 seconds. However, he said they were given ample time.

Mrs. Joann Hawkins, 354 West Saline, said many of the young people in the area were ushered into her home. She said she invited them into her apartment to avoid an encounter with police.

According to Mrs. Hawkins, the first problem occurred when Tony Carter tried to return home. She said police officers stopped him. A fight ensued and the youth was subdued and handcuffed.

"I said, 'Has anyone told Mr. Carter,' " Mrs. Hawkins said.

Marvin Carter, Tony's father, said he was awakened at his home, and told of Tony's arrest. He went to the scene to learn what had happened to his son.

"I came around the corner with my hands up," he said, "and these three policemen came at me."

Carter said he asked about his son, but was given no explanation and was struck several times and maced.

Officer Hal Purdue, in the later meeting Saturday, said he had used mace to subdue Carter. Mosier said he met Carter near the area where his son had been arrested and told him to return to his home.

Mosier said he and Carter were "face-to-face" and admitted trying to push him away. After telling Carter to go home three times, Mosier said he placed Carter under arrest.

Mrs. Hawkins said that once she had a number of youths in her home, she began looking for Eugene Hawkins, one of her sons.

"I opened the door and looked out into the hallway," she said.

Coming up the stairs, she said she saw police officers. Mrs. Hawkins said she immediately shut the door and locked it.

"I told them (the youths in her home), they aren't going to do anything to you. You're in my home and they can't do anything to you here."

"No sooner had I got the words out of my mouth than they (the police) kicked the door in," Mrs. Carter said.

Det. John Fillicetti was named as the officer who allegedly kicked the door in.

Fillicetti said at the Municipal Building discussion that he was running after Michael Hawkins, another of Mrs. Hawkins' sons, and broke through the door as the boy was shutting it.

Fillicetti told the council that Hawkins called him a vulgar

Names forged on canal letters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letters with forged signatures are being sent to some congressional offices in an effort to influence lawmakers on the Panama Canal issue, a Kentucky congressman says.

At least 20 congressional offices have reported receiving the letters with forged signatures, said Rep. Romano L. Mazzoli, D-Ky. He said he has asked postal inspectors to investigate.

Most congressional offices have reported a heavy flow of mail on the Panama Canal. A proposed treaty, which would transfer control of the canal to Panama in the year 2000, is awaiting ratification in the Senate. House members also have been flooded with mail on the subject.

Mazzoli did not identify the other congressmen who have discovered bogus letters. He said he first came across the problem while answering letters from his constituents who oppose the canal treaty.

He said two of his constituents wrote back and a third called to say they had never sent the original letters to Mazzoli.

"My constituents stated that they had not contacted me on the subject and were offended at having received an answer to a communication they had never sent," Mazzoli said. He wrote a letter to his House colleagues to advise them of his discovery.

"I'm beginning to wonder how many of my constituents actually sign, authorize or even know anything about the communications arriving in my office over their names," he said.

Michael Nevens, Mazzoli's administrative assistant, said a search of the congressman's files turned up several hundred other items of suspicious mail bearing the names of constituents.

"They were in similar or, it appeared to us, identical handwriting, and covered a period of four or five months," Nevens said.

Nevens said Mazzoli's letter to the other members brought responses from "more than 20 other offices" where similar mail has been received. He said the forged names appeared on letters concerning a range of issues, including "most of the controversial issues which have been up this year."

Nevens said it has not been determined if there is a common origin to the mail. He said some of the letters had been turned over to postal authorities who were investigating the possibility of mail fraud.

"We want to know if anything can be done to protect us against it," Nevens said. "We don't know how many more of these letters may have come in and then we've answered constituents who never wrote us in the first place.

Mazzoli, who has announced no position on the Canal issue, said "these deceptive and misleading communications undermine the credibility of all the post cards, telegrams and mimeographed letters reaching our offices. If such mailings are unreliable, how are we to gauge accurately the public's position on the pressing issues of the day?" he asked.

Welfare housecleaning

'Project Match' burning out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's highly touted computer search for welfare cheaters so far has turned up only 47 suspects, none of whom is likely to be prosecuted for fraud, government sources said Saturday.

The sources defended "Project Match" as a means of cleaning up local welfare rolls, but they painted a much different picture of the program than HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. gave Congress last month.

Meanwhile, congressional investigators began an inquiry into possible violations of the federal Privacy Act by the Civil Service Commission, which turned over personnel information on 2.8 million federal employes to Califano's Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Pentagon has been asked for its employe records and plans to supply them.

The investigators for a subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee said both the Civil Service Commission and the Defense Department have "subjected themselves to convoluted reasoning" in their efforts to get around the Privacy Act and cooperate with the HEW probe.

Califano announced Project Match last July, calling it "a new initiative to expose welfare fraud by federal employes."

The program uses computers to match names and Social Security numbers on government payrolls with names on local welfare rolls. Califano said investigators last summer found 216 names and numbers that turned up on the Washington welfare rolls and the HEW payroll records.

Charles Ruff, HEW's deputy inspector general, said Friday that 142 of those cases have been referred to the District of Columbia's welfare agency, for further investigation of eligibility for welfare payments.

The success of the first program led to expansion to cover nearly all other federal employes.

"Investigation has begun to determine how many hundreds of these employes are, in fact, totally or partially ineligible for the benefits they are receiving," Califano recently told a congressional subcommittee.

President meets poverty face-to-face

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in his 20-year-old life, Courtney Matthews got a chance to talk to the President of the United States.

What, he asked Jimmy Carter, should a person do when he is "out of work and wants to help his family and there's no job?"

The President conceded he didn't have the answer.

Karen Halderson also had a question for Jimmy Carter, but she didn't get the chance to speak with him. What did she want?

"We want it so you can get a little money so if your kids need a pair of shoes you can go out and buy them a pair," she said.

For 90 minutes Friday night the President sat in a downtown Detroit auditorium listening to people unfold their tales of poverty.

Mrs. Halderson, from Beloit, Wis., had wanted to ask the President why he didn't increase the amount of money a person could make and still get help from the government.

Lawrence Hall, a 56-year-old steelworker who recently was laid off, told Carter he is desperate for a job. Carter's reply dealt with other countries dumping cheap steel on the American market and how the demand for steel will increase once his energy program is passed.

"I am 56 years old and I am an unemployed steelworker...I am in a desperate situation now," Hall told the president. "I need a job. I am at the age now where I can't seek other employment. I have one daughter at home. She is just 10. I have 37 years' service in the steel mill...I feel I am being ripped off by the company I have dedicated my life to..."

And so it went. Carter said he learned a lot from his conversations but he conceded that it didn't change much.

"I don't want you to think I believe that all the questions have been answered," he said. "When we leave here today, Courtney Matthews will still be unemployed."

The poverty roundtable was sponsored by the Community Services Administration. Graciela Olivarez, head of the organization, said after the session ended that Carter "learned very little that he didn't already know."

Carter 'reassured' about U.S. military strength

Itinerary includes SAC, Denver, L.A.

DENVER (AP) — President Carter inspected the cavernous, top-secret command post Saturday where the Air Force would launch missiles and bombers in a nuclear war. He said he was "reassured about America's military might."

After touring the underground facility beneath the Nebraska plains, he flew to Denver to meet with critics of his irrigation and reclamation policies and to seek support from western governors for the proposed Panama Canal treaty.

The President's itinerary included a Los Angeles fundraising dinner for the Democratic National Committee on Saturday night. Tickets were $1,000 a plate.

Carter said his tour, a 2½-hour review of Strategic Air Command procedures and facilities, did not change his mind about the B1 bomber. The Air Force wanted the superplane, but Carter decided earlier this year not to build it.

"I think we have an adequate force capability (without it) and that we'll have a good improvement with the cruise missiles when they are deployed," the President said.

When Carter announced his B1 decision on June 30, he listed the capability of the drone missile as a reason the bomber is not needed.

Carter emerged from the auxiliary entrance to the SAC command headquarters where flashing lights, doomsday buttons and telephones are hidden 46 feet below the prairie, then declared:

"I've really been assured about our capability and our training programs around the world. I've been able to talk to all our strategic forces around the world a few minutes ago, and I am really favorably impressed by them."

Standing on the second-floor balcony of the command post, the President spoke to SAC forces on the "red phone," or what is known as SAC's Primary Alerting System, used to give orders to the command's alert forces.

He said: "The closeness with which we communicate in preparing for an emergency will prevent as nothing else could do a possible destruction of our nation, and the closeness with which we cooperate in a time of extreme emergency when an attack is imminent will mean the defense of our country and perhaps of the free world itself."

Officers explained what the consoles are for and what their operators do. The President heard the electronic hum of sophisticated gear, teletypes tapping and men conferring quietly. One of the six screens at the front of the two-story underground command post flashed a message: "Welcome, Mr. President."

He saw where the battle staff sits, was told that the screens usually contain maps, airlift deployments or weather reports and learned that 350 persons could live in the underground center for 30 days on stored food and water while being guarded by military police.

If the center, manned 24 hours, suffered a direct hit, one officer said: "I suppose we'd all be gone. I don't know."

Colorado Gov. Lamm, President Carter and Interior Secretary Andrus discuss U.S. water policy

Donning a hard hat, the President ducked up and into the bomb bay of the B52, then climbed to its cockpit. Defense Secretary Harold Brown tagged behind.

Carter got a mostly enthusiastic welcome on his trip, which began in Detroit on Friday with a "public forum" on urban poverty, but there were pockets of protest, mainly against the neutron bomb. Carter has not decided whether to include it in the American arsenal.

The President returns to Washington on Sunday.

His tour of SAC headquarters was his third inspection of American military capability since he took office. Earlier this year, he flew on an airborne command post designed for use during nuclear war and later rode on a nuclear-powered submarine.

Research shows zinc an important nutrient

EDITOR'S NOTE — That little bottle of pills on the breakfast table should contain more than vitamins, researchers say. Equally important are a number of minerals, like zinc.

By C.C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Americans have been counting their vitamins since the early days of World War II, when Army doctors complained of puny and poorly developed draftees.

"For so many years we concentrated on vitamins," says Dr. Michael K. Hambidge of the University of Colorado Medical School. "But now we are in the trace element era for nutrients."

Illustrative of the new emphasis on trace elements, named for their underepresentation in the body, is the research conducted on zinc.

Researchers say zinc may speed the healing of wounds, aid in fighting some diseases and even prevent the "blahs."

Human requirements have also been established for iron, iodine, copper, chromium, manganese and cobalt, Dr. Hambidge says.

"The fact that you can hardly see them has nothing to do with their biological effectiveness," says Dr. Bert Vallee of the Harvard Medical School.

For instance, the average 154-pound adult contains only two to three grams of zinc. There are 28.5 grams in an ounce.

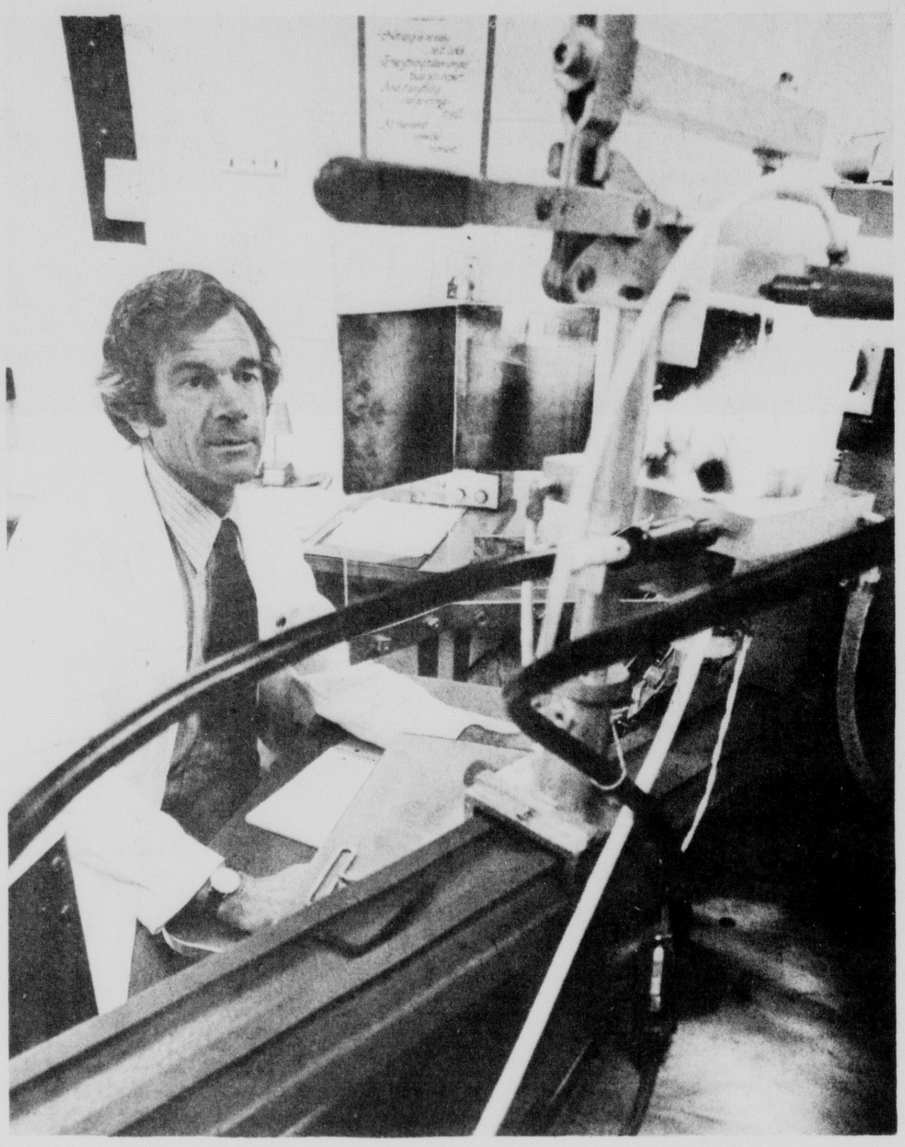
All the evidence isn't in yet. "An enormous amount of benefits have been claimed," says Dr. Vallee, one of the nation's leading zinc experts. "Not all are equally valid."

This past spring, Dr. Hambidge finished a study for Kelloggs on the effects of adding zinc to breakfast cereals. He concluded that it produces no ill effects.

Kelloggs has started adding zinc to some products, and it and General Mills list the zinc content of most of their cereals on the package.

The makers of two infant formulas, Similac and Enfamil, also began adding zinc after some of Dr. Hambidge's early findings.

Among the chief sources of zinc for humans are oysters, beef, liver, peanuts and lima beans.



Vital trace

Dr. Michael K. Hambidge analyzes blood plasma for its zinc content, using a spectrophotometer at a University of Denver Medical School laboratory. After years of concentrating on vitamins, "now we are in the trace element era for nutrients," says Hambidge. (AP)

But its level is borderline in many prepared foods, says Nancy Glick, a spokeswoman for the Food and Drug Administration, which includes zinc among its nutritional guidelines. She says that processing robs food of its natural zinc content.

Researchers at the University of Detroit School of Dentistry have found in tests on animals that zinc supplements speed the healing of surgical wounds and mending of fractures.

Speakers at a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., conference on zinc in health and disease agreed that there is accumulating evidence of some relationship between zinc and the body's ability to fight disease.

And Dr. Donald F. Caldwell, a psychologist at Wayne State University, has associated zinc deficiency with lethargy, apathy, unwillingness to learn and a general "blah" attitude.

72-year-old Wallenda is hospitalized

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — High-wire aerialist Karl Wallenda, 72, has been hospitalized after falling 20 feet while rehearsing a stunt for a television movie about his daredevil life.

"It was my fault," said Wallenda after the accident Thursday night. "I'll be more careful next time."

Sarasota Memorial Hospital refused to release any information Friday about his condition or injuries, saying the family asked that details not be released.

However, hospital officials had said earlier X rays showed no broken bones and that Wallenda was in good condition with a possible whiplash.

Wallenda, a great-grandfather, is head of the Flying Wallendas circus family which has been stricken by high-wire tragedy in past years.

Summed up in a word

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

By JOHN FERRIS

I was waiting for a friend not long ago in the lobby of a building in a neighborhood of Manhattan once known as Hell's Kitchen when my wandering eye was arrested by a word on a sign outside a small area where coffee and sandwiches were served. The sign, about 18 inches wide and 3 feet tall, stood at the entrance and listed things sold in the place, starting with Coffee and running downwards through Sandwiches, Pies, Newspapers, Candy, Soft Drinks, Milk, etc.

Suddenly, it seemed to me, the owner or the sign painter had run short of subjects. Maybe he sold Pencils or Ink and Note Books or even Ear Muffs, Post Cards and Aspirin, none of which would have appeared proper for the sign. In any case, in what must have been inspiration or desperation, a wonderful word had come to mind: Sundries.

There it was, bold, challenging, inviting the customer to ask the question: What kind of Sundries? Some storekeepers, of course, have no such problem. They sell shoes or pastry, and a Greenwich Village shop I often pass has an outside wall sign, white on green brick, which proclaims Sneakers for Everybody in the Family in the manner of those signs in Rome: Tutti per Bambini (Everything for Children).

I happen to like SUNDRIES, a word of Anglo-Saxon origin, but I hadn't seen it in ages and was glad that this enterprising man had used it; so I began checking on stores in 14th Street and Canal Street and over in Orchard on the Lower East Side and elsewhere among sidewalk displays of sponges, hardware odds and ends, canvas work, gloves, brushes, beach hats, corn plasters and all the other things that make life worth living. Sure enough many of these places had signs which offered SUNDRIES. Some, in fact, offered nothing else. Smart people. Nothing invites browsing as much as Sundries.

Springfield couple involved in wreck

Two Springfield residents were treated at Bothwell Hospital Saturday morning following a two-car collision at Broadway and Hancock, according to police.

Injured were the driver of one vehicle, Richard A. Cook, 23, Springfield, and a passenger in the car, Mary S. Cook, 26, also of Springfield.

According to police reports, the Cook car was eastbound on Broadway about 10:30 a.m. and sideswiped a car driven by Kenneth Holdren, 69, of 1613 West 11th, traveling north on Hancock. Reports said the Holdren vehicle failed to yield right of way at a stop sign.

Thieves hit Malmo Motors, steal two cars

Sedalia police are investigating the Thursday night theft of two automobiles and auto parts collectively valued at more than $18,000 from David Malmo Motors, 2901 South Limit.

Police reported someone forced open an overhead door on the south side of the building to gain entry. Reported missing were a 1978 Cadillac valued at about $12,000, a 1977 Oldsmobile valued at $6,000, four wire wheel covers valued at $500 and an unknown quantity of auto parts from the main garage, body shop and parts department.

Police reported the keys to the 1977 vehicle also were stolen; it was not known whether the keys to the Cadillac were missing.

In other police news:

— Robert L. Mabry, 305 East Second, reported a black and tan dog valued at $500 was stolen sometime early Friday from the back yard of his home. The dog was chained, he reported.

— Walter Clark, 206 South Grand, reported a garden tiller valued at $469 was stolen from the garage at his home sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. The garage was not locked, according to police.

— A rock thrown through the front window of Hawley's Liquors, 108 West 16th, caused $250 damage sometime early Saturday. Lyle Guernsey, Otterville, store owner, reported nothing was missing and entry was not gained.

— Charlene F. Dirck, 115 East 10th, reported her 1965 Ford was stolen from her residence while she was asleep early Friday morning. Police said the car was not locked and the ignition was torn out.

Stratton applies for LEAA grant

Sheriff Don Stratton Friday mailed an application for a $12,500 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for 1978 salaries for two deputies, including one additional deputy.

John Bluhm Jr., presiding judge of the County Court, signed the application Friday and it was sent to the proper officials, the sheriff said.

Under the application, the county would supply an additional $4,900 or 28 per cent of the 72-28 matching grant applied for. The total $17,400 would be used, the sheriff said, for salaries for the jailer at the county jail and an additional deputy.

The portion of the application covering the jailer, Stratton said, would continue the current grant under which his salary is paid.

The remainder of the grant, if approved, would be used to hire an additional deputy for the sheriff's department. An additional deputy, the sheriff explained, would provide enough manpower for 24-hour patrol of the county by his deputies.

Sedalian arraigned on drug charges

Allen J. Pace, 20, Route 1, was arraigned in Magistrate Court Friday afternoon on felony charges of possession of a controlled substance, methaqualone.

Arrested by the sheriff's department Friday, Pace allegedly possessed the drug on Oct. 11. Details of the incident were not revealed.

Pace was released from the county jail Friday night on $3,500 bond, according to authorities.

Spooky ceremony

Mayor Allen Hawkins gave a brave smile Friday night as he formally opened the Sunrise Optimist Haunted House, 502 South Ohio. Hawkins' companions, a sampling of the ghoulish characters to be encountered inside, stand by to make sure the job gets done. The Haunted House will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. daily through Oct. 31, and admission will be 50 cents. Optimist member Clyde Cooper, in charge of the project, said proceeds will be used for youth projects in the city. (Staff Photo) name from the apartment's second story window. He said he reacted by running up the interior flight of stairs in pursuit of the youth. He said he saw Hawkins with a baseball bat at the top of the stairs. According to Fillicetti, the youth dropped the bat and ran into the apartment, slamming the door shut just as Fillicetti reached it.

Once inside, Mrs. Carter and others who said they were in her home at the time said Fillicetti grabbed the Hawkins youth by the neck and said, "I want you boy." He then grappled Hawkins to the floor in the bathroom, according to the tenants version.

Tony Dixon, Mrs. Hawkins' nephew, was also injured in a scuffle in her apartment. Mrs. Hawkins said she did not know the circumstances surrounding that confrontation.

Officer James Desmond said he grabbed Dixon upon observing him "swinging his arms and fists" in the dining area of the apartment.

"I took him in a full nelson," Desmond told the Municipal Building meeting. He said that they fell to the kitchen floor. There was blood on the kitchen floor, where the two reportedly fell.

Several of the officers who discussed the matter with the council, backed by Chief William E. Miller, said they felt they were being "set-up" on recent disturbance calls to th apartment complex.

Mosier cited an incident in which two officers were "fired on" Oct. 15 on the way to a disturbance call at the complex. He said that when responding to the call Saturday morning he was struck by a .22 caliber bullet at Pettis and Washington. He termed the injury "a flesh wound" and said he did not know it had happened until his duty shift was over. The time lapse involved in this alleged incident would have been more than five hours.

Bond on the eight people arrested was originally set at $200 cash. However, that was later reduced to a $100 property bond. Following the reduction of bond, all eight were able to post bail and be set free.

The arrests prompted a mass demonstration at the police station. About 100 persons gathered there to learn what would happen to those arrested and to protest the action. Several arrests were made there, when police ordered people to leave the building.

Sheriff's deputies and Highway Patrol officers said they acted as "peace-makers" by walking through the crowd and urging cooperation.

Chamber letter campaign aimed at traffic problem

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce and others interested in relieving traffic congestion along Ohio Street will back-up Mayor Allen Hawkins' letter to the state Highway Commission with letters of their own. Hawkins sent a letter last week to the commission asking that through truck traffic be directed along Highways 50 and 65.

Chamber officials mounted a campaign to divert through truck traffic away from Highway 750, which runs from the northern city limits to Broadway, last week. The campaign culminated when representatives of the Chamber appeared at last Monday's City Council meeting and asked the council to take action on the problem. The council voted to authorize Hawkins to write his letter to the commission asking that signs be erected at North 65 and 750 directing through truck traffic around the business district.

Chamber representatives Ed Khede, president, Lou Barkacs, manager, and member Floyd Priddy endorsed a letter drafted by Ed Yuille, chairman of the Downtown Merchants for Progress. Yuille's group, organized through the Planning and Zoning Commission, is trying to improve the image and accessibility of the central business district.

Yuille's letter refered to "our mutual traffic problem on Ohio Street" and defined to problem as "an increase in 18-wheel traffic."

Yuille said the trucks pose a safety problem, block streets and are slowed by traffic lights.

The letter was positive in tone and stressed the desire to cooperate in finding a solution to the truck traffic.

Yuille's letter and other letters planned by Khede and Priddy are designed to show the commission they support Hawkins' letter.

"What we've got to do is write letters to the state highway commission and get a reply in writing, then get hold of (State Rep.) Jim Mathewson to see what we need to do," said Yuille.

Cold front brings rain

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A cold front that became stationary over western Missouri brought a rainy weekend to Kansas and Missouri Saturday and flash flood warnings for northeast Kansas and northwest Missouri.

The front extended across northern Missouri and east and was expected to remain stationary through Sunday. Widely scattered thunderstorms occurred over southeastern and central Missouri in late afternoon with a heavy thunderstorm just northwest of Rolla, Mo.

A flash flood watch was issued by the National Weather Service for northwest Missouri and northeast Kansas for Saturday night.

Suspects identified in Schleyer killing

MULHOUSE, France (AP) — Four West Germans wanted in the killing of industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer were seen in or near Mulhouse between his kidnaping and the day his body was found here, police said Saturday.

Two — Willy Peter Stoll and Christian Klar — were identified by a service station attendant who said he saw them driving a green Audi sedan in Mulhouse last Tuesday morning, authorities said.

Two others — Rolf Heissler and Angelika Speitel — were identified along with Klar by a resident of Colmar who said he saw the trio about a month ago, police reported.

Nazi leader faces charges in brawl

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — The national director of the American Nazi Party, Frank Collin of Chicago, has been charged with attacking Florissant Police Chief Robert Treutken during a disturbance Oct. 8.

Treutken said he was attacked by Collin and two other Nazis when he tried to stop a brawl between 10 brown-shirted Nazis and members of an anti-Nazi group, the Committee Against Racism.

The Nazis were marching in front of Florissant City Hall in protest of the city's refusal to allow them to hold a rally when the fight began, St. Louis County Police said.

Question
What are "Death Taxes"?
Answer
Inheritance, succession, transfer and estate taxes, as well as any other taxes levied against the estate of a deceased person, are known as "Death Taxes".
The liability for the payment of these taxes rests with the estate of the decedent. Under the Federal Estate Tax laws and the laws of those states that levy either an estate tax or an inheritance tax, those who succeed to the ownership of property subject to these taxes must satisfy any tax liability involved with property.
Under certain circumstances funeral costs are deductible from "Death Taxes". Funeral and interment expenses are deductible from the gross estate of a decedent under the Federal Estate Tax laws before the Federal Tax is applied. Those costs are likewise deductible before State Inheritance or Estate Taxes are levied by the individual states.

'Fed watching' gaining in popularity

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Fed watching" has long been a favorite sport among investors and economists who try to discern directions of interest rates and inflation by second-guessing Federal Reserve Board actions to implement monetary policies.

But the pastime has become particularly popular in recent months as the pace of growth in the nation's money supply continues to far exceed the announced goals of the Federal Reserve's policy committee.

While a rapid growth in supplies of money may seem like a good thing, too large an increase is considered worrisome because it may ultimately cheapen the value of the dollar, leading to a burst of inflation.

But the process of keeping growth of money supply in check also leads to pressure on interest rates and raises fears that if the two get too far out of balance, that could hurt the general pace of economic activity.

The White House, in an unusual move this past week, took the Fed to task for what it considered too conservative a view on money supply goals and warned against dangers of letting short-term interest rates rise.

The statement noted that the stock market already has been "unsettled" by rapid increases in short-term interest rates, but that, so far, the economic recovery has not been seriously damaged.

But it went on to warn: "If short-term interest rates were to increase substantially further ... a diversion of flows from mortgage lending institutions could begin to occur, and this would reduce the supply of funds for housing. Long-term interest rates might also be driven up."

Although the statement did not mention the Fed by name, it added that "rapid growth of the money supply is a matter of concern when it occurs in the context of a very rapid economic expansion, high employment and a worsening outlook for inflation. Those are not the circumstances we face presently."

The White House statement was issued shortly before the Federal Reserve issued its weekly statement on money supplies for the previous week. The measurement used for the nation's basic money supply, known as M1, showed no change from the prior week.

But because Fed watchers had expected a decline of more than $1 billion from the previous week, the results were still seen as indications that the Fed's efforts have not been successful at bringing growth under control and that it would soon move to further tighten its credit stance.

The measurement M1 represents the total of checking account deposits plus currency in circulation. In each of the past two reporting weeks it has averaged $334.1 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis.

In other business developments this past week:

—Growth in the Gross National Product—the measurement of the nation's output of goods and services—slowed to a 3.8 per cent annual rate in the third quarter. That was down sharply from the second quarter's 6.2 per cent annual rate but not much of a surprise to economists who expected growth in the second half to low substantially.

—The government reported encouraging signs on the inflation front. Consumer prices rose only three-tenths of one per cent in September, the same rate as the previous month. If averaged out over the whole year, that would be an annual 3.6 per cent rate of inflation. Government economists predicted the lower inflation levels would continue through the autumn as lower wholesale food prices work their way to the retail level.

By comparison, annual rates of inflation were 10 per cent in the first quarter of the year; 8.1 per cent in the second; and 4.2 per cent over the last three months.

—The steel industry, which has announced thousands of layoffs amid serious profit problems recently, increased complaints that foreign competitors are "dumping" steel products on the U.S. market. A number of companies filed formal complaints with the government charging Japanese companies with violating fair trade standards by selling their products at less than fair value to get a bigger share of the U.S. market.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Treasury announced it has started an investigation in response to a complaint filed several weeks ago by U.S. Steel Corp. That investigation covers carbon steel imports from Japan, which last year totaled $1.2 billion.

Culture, folklore subjects of meet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Scholars who know the difference between stickball and halfball, and who can tell you what a "ponykeg" is are gathering to discuss American culture and folklore.

During the meeting this weekend, about 100 historians, geographers and folklorists will exchange information that seldom concerns others.

Take Rod Roberts, a professor of English and folklore at the State University of New York-Oneonta. He caught a "mistake" in the motion picture "Rocky."

"There's one scene when Rocky talks about how great a stickball player he was," Roberts says of the movie that was set in Philadelphia. "That is a mistake. They don't play stickball in Philadelphia. They play a game called halfball there, using half of a rubber ball."

Some of the scholars will address themselves to the regional dialects of American English.

Fred Cassidy, a professor of English at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, notes that the word "ponykeg," used for an establishment selling beer and other party accessories, is spoken almost exclusively in Cincinnati. The word appears in that city's yellow pages more than 40 times.

Bruce Buckley, a spokesman for the sponsoring Society for the North American Cultural Survey, says the group hopes to publish a series of cultural atlases featuring maps, historical information and field notes. The atlases, he says, would focus on 10 cultural topics including food, religion, architecture and sports.

Prince Charles chats with members of the fife and drum corps following a ride to the top of the 630-foot Gateway Arch in St. Louis on the third stop of his United States tour. A crowd estimated at about 3,000 gathered by the arch to greet the prince. He left for Atlanta about six hours after the St. Louis visit. (UPI)

Folksy welcome given prince

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Beastly protocol went out the window when Prince Charles paid a sightseeing visit to this old city hard by the Mississippi River.

"Hi there, Charlie!" some yelled in greeting.

"Hi, Prince!" shouted others.

The British, who practically invented regal decorum, require that the 28-year-old heir to the kingdom's throne, Charles Philip Arthur George Windsor, Prince of Wales, be addressed upon first reference as "Your highness."

The thousands of St. Louisians who turned out under a bright royal blue sky Friday to welcome him to their city apparently hadn't been told.

The gradeschool children, who met the prince when his jet arrived at Lambert Airport, wondered why he was wearing a gray, pin-striped suit instead of a crown. The elderly matron who shook his hand wondered why she hadn't fainted, and the prince—he just kept smiling.

About a dozen Irish demonstrators were also in the crowd; the prince acknowledged their presence but did not speak to them. The demonstrators carried signs protesting British forces in Northern Ireland.

The prince was in St. Louis barely five hours, the third stop on a 12-day tour of the United States.

There was a special "stag" luncheon for him and a visit to the top of the 630-foot Gateway Arch, overlooking the Mississippi. There were also gifts, one of them a medallion struck for Queen Elizabeth's silver jubilee.

"At least I don't have to wear it around my neck," the prince quipped. "They hung one around my neck when they made me an honorary citizen in Chicago, and it was all I could do to stand erect."

Perhaps the high point of his stay was a visit to the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant, where he climbed into the cockpit of a flight simulator and shot town two "boogie" aircraft. The prince, an aviation enthusiast, has flown the McDonnell-produced Phantom jet at more than 1,000 miles an hour.

"We can make an ace out of you in a hurry," said William Ross, the company's former chief test pilot, who assisted the prince in the seven-minute dogfight.

Before he left for Georgia, Prince Charles spoke of his appreciation for his welcome in the United States, and said he would convey all the good wishes to his mother.

"I shall tell the queen that all is well in this part of the globe," he said.

U.S., Soviets are nearing agreement

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev both say the United States and the Soviet Union are nearing agreement on a new strategic arms limitations pact.

Carter, in a speech at a Democratic fund-raiser Friday night, said the United States and Soviet Union are making "great progress" in negotiations on a SALT agreement.

"I can tell you in a few weeks my prediction is that we will have a SALT agreement that will be a pride of our country," he said, "and following that, we will proceed to my ultimate goal of reducing nuclear weapons throughout the world to zero."

He declined to say exactly when he expects an agreement.

In Moscow, Brezhnev was quoted by the official Soviet news agency Tass as saying there has been "a definite turn for the better" in the arms talks.

"We would like to bring these negotiations to a successful conclusion without any undue delays," Brezhnev said.

Asked after the speech to elaborate about his comments on the SALT talks, Carter declined to say whether a breakthrough had been made. Asked specifically when he would expect an agreement, he said: "I don't know how many weeks. ... I think we have a good prospect, but it's not firmed up."

In Washington, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on Friday briefed members of the Senate Armed Services Committee on the SALT talks.

Afterward Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., a member of the committee, said he was "very encouraged" with the terms of the prospective agreement. He said the proposed package would impose equal limits on both the United States and Soviet Union.

Halloween caution urged by officials

With halloween coming up Oct. 31, Mayor Allen Hawkins and Police Chief William Miller have released several trick-or-treat safety suggestions designed to prevent injuries to young celebrators.

Hawkins and Miller recommend that young trick-or-treaters be confined to their own neighborhoods and that they not wear loose-fitting dark clothing, unsafe shoes and masks which reduce vision. They also should not carry bulky trick-or-treat bags or sharp or pointed toy weapons. Drivers should be alert, particularly at dusk, for children suddenly running and darting into streets.

The city officials also stressed that caution should be exercised when handling jack-o-lanterns and candles because certain billowing, flammable costumes and costume wigs can easily erupt into flames.

Treacherous treats to look out for include apples with razor blades, popcorn with tacks, candy with needles and poisoned popcorn, they said.

On Monday night, the police department will be bolstered by auxilliary police members, citizens band radio clubs and ham radio operators.

In other trick-or-treating news, it was announced that Oct. 30 will be observed as UNICEF Day in Sedalia. On this traditional day, set aside around the world to raise funds for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, persons trick-or-treat to collect money for UNICEF.

UNICEF has been instrumental in combating illness and disease in many countries through immunization programs, the planning and building of health centers and the training of health staff members. Last year alone, it was reported, 82 counties obtained clean water and better sanitation facilities with the help of UNICEF funds. In 64 countries last year, nutrition programs were developed and millions of pounds of food were provided for child-feeding programs. UNICEF has also helped equip thousands of schools and in training teachers.

Jump in taxes seen as likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Payroll taxes for most workers and all employers are likely to go up next year in an effort by Congress to rescue the financially troubled Social Security system.

The Senate Finance Committee is on the verge of approving a bill that by 1987 would mean taxes of $120 a year above current levels for a worker earning $10,000. For a person earning $20,000, the payroll tax would rise by $445 a year.

Under the bill approved by the committee Friday, the maximum tax an employer pays for each worker could rise by as much as $4,323.

Meanwhile, the House plans to begin debate next week on a plan that would mean $105 more in taxes per year for the $10,000 worker by 1987 and $415 more for the $20,000 employe.

Unlike the Senate version, the House keeps the employer's tax at the same level as the worker's.

Under either bill, taxes on middle-and upper-income Americans would increase at a greater rate than those paid by low-wage earners.

Even if Congress takes no action this year, Social Security taxes on all covered workers and employers will go up next year because of existing law. But experts say the increased money will not be enough to keep the pension system solvent for more than six or seven years.

When added to the tax increases scheduled under current law, backers say, the plan approved Friday by the Senate committee would raise Social Security taxes enough to keep the system solvent for 75 years.

Social Security is in trouble because the declining birth rate and high unemployment have resulted in fewer workers contributing to the system, while inflation has forced benefit increases beyond what was anticipated.

The plan accepted by the Senate committee would end the tradition of employers and employes paying equal amounts into the pension system. That change would have the greatest impact on colleges, hospitals, research facilities and other organizations with a large number of high-paid workers.

Present law requires that a worker covered by Social Security contribute 5.85 per cent of his first $16,500 of annual wages to the system.

That results in a maximum tax of $965, a figure that is matched by the employer. The maximum will rise to $1,071 next year.

Under the Senate bill, the maximum employe tax would climb to $1,196 in 1979, $1,288 in 1980 and to $2,390 by 1987. The last figure is for a worker earning $33,900 or more annually.

Special fund is established

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The University of Utah has established a special fund for donations to help defray medical expenses for the Siamese twins Elisa and Lisa Hansen.

The girls — children of David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden — were born six-to-eight weeks premature Tuesday in Ogden and are in intensive care at the University Medical Center here.

A hospital spokesman said Friday care of the twins, who are joined at the head, costs about $1,000 a day. The parents have no health insurance.

Don't Miss This Haunting Experience!

When we designed John Knox Village® East we had three things in mind.

1. Keep it carefree.
2. Keep it affordable.
3. Keep it in the country.

Those were our goals because those were the things people like you told us they wanted. And we succeeded.

John Knox Village is a Life-Care Retirement Community. Your Life-Care one-time Entrance Endowment provides you with a comfortable home for the future, without the cares of expensive and tiresome home management and repairs.

The Village offers studio, one- and two-bedroom apartments in our distinctive, contemporary-designed 3-story building. Every apartment features sound-conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, individual heating and air-conditioning controls, and an emergency nurse call system.

Because Life-Care is health-care too. Life-Care provides the immediate availability of health-care services, should the need ever arise. The Med Center is staffed 24 hours a day with professional nurses and aides.

Physicians are always on call for emergencies. Your own doctor is welcome, of course, and you'll find it doubly reassuring that the Med Center staff are people you already know and trust.

If you ever need nursing care in the Med Center, there is never an additional lodging charge, no matter how long you may require care. That's one more thing that makes Life-Care affordable!

Villagers never have to bother with snow removal, lawn care and house repair. The Village staff does it all. Your utility bills will be of no concern to you. The Village pays all utilities, except for telephones. Regular maid service and weekly flat laundry service are also provided at no extra cost.

Every apartment in the Village has an all-electric full kitchen. For those occasions when you'd rather not cook, the Village Dining Room is always available to residents and their guests. People who require special diets, such as low-sodium or low-sugar, have their menus personally supervised by the Village dietician.

What else does Life-Care provide? A wide variety of activities and the freedom to join or not to join in on them. There are exercise classes, woodworking and garden facilities. Villagers also have a pool table and a croquet court. There's even a Country Store at the Village, as well as a beauty shop, a barber shop, a gift shop and pharmacy.

Finally—and here's the difference—we placed John Knox Village East in the country because that's where you feel comfortable. With paths to walk. With trees and flowers. With good country air. With elbow room and independence.

Yes, John Knox Village East is calm, but it isn't dull. Come visit us and see. We're in Higginsville and easy to get to.

Laser weapon puts zip in firearm warfare

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON (NEA)— At least three federal law enforcement and security forces have quietly been equipped with (1) the world's most lethal rifle, or (2) the world's most humane weapon.

It all depends on how you look at it.

The gun is the American 180, a Buck Rogers piece that is aimed by laser beam and fires at the astonishing rate of 30 shells a second. The U.S. Park police have been training on the weapon for more than a year; the Secret Service and FBI are among more than 300 other American police agencies using the rifle.

The gun doesn't look like a new generation of firepower. Its pistol grip stock and barrel cooling fins are reminiscent of the Thompson submachine gun of the 1920s. And its circular cartridge magazine is not unlike that of the Lewis guns which were bolted to the fusilages of a thousand World War I fighter planes.

But under the skin the American 180 is devastatingly new. The laser beam locks it precisely on target, and when activated the gun fires 177 rounds in a scant six seconds. The rifle uses nimble .22 cartridges which contain 40 grains of lead apiece, thus the six second burst contains 7,000 grains, deadly to any living thing.

U.S. Park police sergeant Carl Clipper says the 180's full magazine can be fired into a four-inch bullseye from a distance of 35 yards. The laser keeps it zeroed it, and the weapon's balance all but eliminates barrel climb. Clipper indicates that the foot-pound force of the American 180 could chop a human being in half.

The rifle's developer says it is essentially a humane gun. Charles Goff of the Salt Lake City based American International Corp. says the 180 can cow a victim without a shot being fired. "Once the laser beam hits a man, he knows he's had it; usually, he'll give up."

Goff says the intimidation aspect of the rifle has had several tests in the three years it's been on the police-military market. Guards at Utah state penitentiary, for example, have successfully stopped a potential riot with an unloaded 180. "All they did," says Goff, "was fix the laser beam on the ringleaders; that did it."

The laser beam is a pencil-thin stream of scarlet light. It is flashed from a battery operated unit hooked under the gun's muzzle. On target, the beam appears as a red dot, clearly visible to both the shooter and shootee. Goff says that dot is the electronic equivalent of a bullet hole: "That's why a suspect should quickly surrender."

To insure intimidation, Goff says police forces presently have use the assistance of propaganda. Since the weapon is relatively new, and its reputation as yet confined, criminals must be instructed as to the relationship between the laser dot and death. Goff says police bullhorns are often used to educate fleeing or barricaded felons.

Then too, the laser education can be presented more bluntly. In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Goff says, police recently had to kill one suspect in order to save a second. The suspects were exchanging fire with the cops and would not be intimidated by talk of laser dots; when one man was blown away, however, his sobered companion yielded.

For all of its physicial and sociological potential, however, the American 180 has deficiencies as well. An FBI agent says "it takes all day" to load the 177 shells. It is also heavy, 12 pounds with laser. And it is expensive: Goff says the rifle itself sells for $300, and the cost of the laser unit is at least $700 more.

Further, the 180 has limited use in daylight. Outside in the sun the laser dot is difficult to see and almost impossible to aim. Carl Clipper says the gun does have some use indoors during the day, "But it's not a routine weapon, it's good only for special use, and for the most part that means during the hours of darkness."

Still, Clipper adds, the advantages of the 180 are hard to ignore. Particularly, the advantage of accuracy. Sometimes ordinary eye-aimed weapons cannot be used for fear of hitting innocent bystanders. Given the 180's laser beam, however, Clipper says thugs and thieves can no longer count on the cover of crowds.

So it is the weapon is apparently gaining in popularity. Goff says the 180 is in demand by military as well as police units. And foreign governments are among the most interested buyers. Goff says the Israeli authorities have purchased the rifle, but he refuses to name others; "Most buyers," he says, "are not interested in publicity."

The secrecy has to do with security. Goff says a police agency in Florida has already been approached by "people dressed as cops" wanting to check out the American 180. Observers say crooks, terrorists and crazy people are desperately trying to get the weapon. Ominously, the FBI believes the Mafia may already have it.

Bill buster

Constance Feola of Southfield, Mich., received an $896.26 bill after her son underwent a routine tonsillectomy at a Royal Oak, Mich., hospital. Mrs. Feola protested and five months later received a reduced bill. The original bill, for 36 hours of care, included $26.89 for a teaspoon of ordinary cough syrup that sells for $2.07 an ounce at the drug store. (UPI)

Bolshoi Ballet to appear as soloists

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For the first time, members of the prestigious Bolshoi Ballet will appear as guest soloists in the United States — performing with a little known group of New Orleans dancers instead of the huge Russian company.

Mikhail Lavrovsky and Natalia Bessmertnova, two of only a few Bolshoi dancers who have achieved star status, will be featured Oct. 29-30 with the Delta Festival Ballet, a regional troupe of 28 young dance students.

Lavrovsky and Bessmertnova appeared with the Bolshoi when it performed on tour in New Orleans in 1975. But this will be the first time anyone from the Bolshoi has danced outside the company in this country, although some have made solo appearances in Europe.

"I think the fact that the Bolshoi played to full houses in New Orleans — and the present ease in diplomatic relations — contributed to the decision to have the soloists come here," said Joseph Giacobbe, director of the Delta Festival company.

Giacobbe, who frequently invites top performers for leads or solos in Delta Festial performances, said he got the idea from a member of his company, a devotee of the Bolshoi, who suggested he try to get Russians for the next guest stars. He declined to say how much the contract would cost the company.

"Having the soloists come to New Orleans and not to a big company in New York is really a boost for regional ballet in this country," Giacobbe said.

Giacobbe made his own arrangements through Gosconcert, the Soviet government agency that handles all performers in the Soviet Union.

He was apparently breaking new ground. A spokesman for the State Department said as far as he knows this is the first time a U.S. dance company has attempted to contract Bolshoi performers directly.

Until his death, Sol Hurok handled the Bolshoi's tours in the United States.

In the New Orleans performance they will be featured in excerpts from "Spartacus", "Don Quixote" and "Swan Lake." The corps de ballet of the Delta Festival will dance in the "Swan Lake" segment. The soloists will practice for a week with the company before the performances.

Founded in 1970, Delta Festival is made up mostly of high school and college students who perform a half-dozen times a year at the New Orleans Center for the Performing Arts. In addition, they tour the region with special performances in neighboring towns and festivals.

Age of the home computer is fast approaching

EDITOR'S NOTE — If you're fed up because a computer has fouled up your electric or telephone bill, just wait a couple of years. You'll soon be able to get a computer for your home — one that can get back at the electric company by regulating your electric lights. In fact, you may already have a home computer in your calculator or microwave oven.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Get ready for the era of the friendly computer.

A computer that turns your lights on and off, protects your home, balances your checkbook, takes your pulse — a computer you may not even know is there.

You may own a computer already in your pocket calculator; or you may have one in your microwave oven. Or your sewing machine. Or your automobile.

To many people, computers are huge, multi-million dollar devices used to send men to the moon.

But the development of the microprocessor — a tiny, low-cost computer with the capability of a room-size machine — has changed that picture.

In less than 10 years, you'll find some limited-use computers costing under $10; more complex systems will cost little more than a good stereo set does today.

"You'll find computers in everyday life within two years in that there will be computers in things that you have in your home," says George E. Lindamood of the National Bureau of Standards.

A computer is a machine that follows human instructions, making thousands of calculations per second. "It's like an automatic pilot," says Lindamood. "You figure out ahead of time what you want done and you make that up into a sequence of steps ... That constitutes a program."

Earl C. Joseph, a futurist for Sperry-Univac Computer Systems, says, "What we're looking at is embedding computers into things ... to make those devices smart."

You may be able to tell the device what to do simply by talking to it. Voice-control of computers already is being tested in some areas such as prison security and Joseph said it could be in the home within the decade.

"You could awaken some morning five or 10 years hence, speak a few simple instructions from your bed to your toaster, coffee pot and frying pan and walk into the kitchen minutes later to a fully prepared breakfast," Joseph wrote in a recent paper.

The development of voice-control or some other simple method of telling the computer what to do could be a key in determining how fast the computers move into the home.

Joseph and other experts say the hand-held calculator has done a lot to help people get over their fear of computers as "Big Brother" machines. "We've really entered the era of the friendly computer," says Joseph "People trust them."

Lindamood says children — who have no preconceived opinions about computers — are often more ready to accept them.

Richard F. Brown, president of the Computer Store Inc. of Cambridge, Mass., which caters to computer hobbyists, says, "Anybody over 35 is still petrified by computers. It's a foreign technology because people weren't brought up with it. It's a hangover of when we presented the computer as a magic brain."

A growing number of people apparently are overcoming this type of fear, however, and are buying full-fledged computer systems for personal use. Stores like Brown's are multiplying.

Computer systems — with keyboards and display terminals that look like television screens — already are being offered for home use at prices as low as $600 and some experts predict that by 1985 the cost will be down to $100.

These systems require some basic knowledge of computer terms. They must be programmed, usually through the use of a tape casette. The user must learn a sort of shorthand to communicate with the computer.

A $600 system offered by Radio Shack, a nationwide chain, can be programmed to take care of a payroll for up to 15 people, keep track of recipes, teach arithmetic, play games and handle personal finances, depending on which of a series of tape casettes is used.

Steven Jobs, vice president of Apple Computer Inc. of Cupertino, Calif., was on hand to demonstrate his firm's $1,300 "Apple II" system, which, used in conjunction with an ordinary tape recorder and television, can be programmed to do everything from determining an individual's biorhythmic chart to balancing his checkbook.

Jobs admitted that very few people would spend $1,300 — or even $600 — on a gadget to balance their checkbooks. "People are buying them not to do something practical, but to familiarize themselves with the computer. People are learning about computers."

What else is on the horizon?

—Personalized, computerized wristwatches that take the wearer's pulse and temperature and monitor such things as blood-sugar levels, says Joseph. "Perfect for diabetics and others needing ... health monitoring and control attention."

—Automobiles built to last 60 or 70 years with computerized controls to prevent accidents and designed so that individual parts could be replaced to keep up with style changes. The cars would be expensive and people would buy automobiles the way they do houses, with long-term mortgages.

—Appliances with built-in computer systems designed to alert you when something goes wrong. "There may even be a telephone link between the computer in your appliance and the computer in the repair shop," says Lindamood, noting that one auto manufacturer already has placed a diagnostic computer in its repair shops.

Haiti's per capita income rose from $74 a year in 1972 to approximately $200 a year in 1976.

IWY squabbles continue over resolutions

By BEVERLY ESSER
Living Today Editor

Eleanore Wasson, Route 4, is a housewife, mother, a blue collar worker who has her own paper hanging business, a member of the Green Ridge school board, Camp Branch Baptist Church, a junior high Sunday school teacher, meets with the youth group on Sunday evening, is a member of Telephone Assurance, Camp Branch Extension Club and is a 4-H project leader. Her husband, Robert, is manager of Consumer's East, and her two daughters, Deanna, 15, and Denise, 12, attend school in Green Ridge.

Mrs. Wasson is also one of 30 Missouri delegates to the national conference on International Women's Year Nov. 18-19 in Houston.

"This thing (International Women's Year) has been a disaster from the beginning. Probably 96 out of 100 women have no idea about IWY and what it is," Mrs. Wasson said.

The United Nations designated 1975 as International Women's Year. President Ford appointed a 35-member national commission on IWY that attended the World Conference for Women in Mexico City in June, 1975.

President Carter appointed a National IWY Commission and Congress authorized $5 million for state and national conferences. The end result of these conferences is to be listed in a report to the President, which he must submit to Congress, to furnish a blueprint for future legislation.

The Missouri state meeting was held June 3-5 in St. Louis at which time the 30 delegates to the national conference were elected and a list of resolutions was passed.

Much controversy has arisen over the way the conference was handled and the way the delegates were elected.

Though Mrs. Wasson prefers to call herself "pro-family" (and says so do most of the rest of the delegation) the group has been called anti-everything from anti-abortion to anti-ERA. But Mrs. Wasson says, "I have never been asked what my feelings are on these two subjects."

The delegates and their supporters mostly are upset over the way the Missouri conference was handled. "It was almost a closed meeting. I found out on Wednesday that it would take place on Friday and I had already made commitments that made it impossible for me to attend," Mrs. Wasson recalled. "They said in the state report that buses were available in every part of the state, but they didn't let anyone know."

Eleanore Wasson

The delegates sent a representative, Karen Dukewits of Independence, to Washington to the "Citizen's Ad Hoc Hearings" held by Sen. Jesse Helms in September to testify on their complaints about the way the Missouri meeting was handled.

Her testimony included the following statements:

"Blatant violations (at the meeting) were as follows: having only one pro-life, neutral-ERA member on the 36-member Coordinating Committee; promoting the viewpoint of the feminist minority; lobbying for ERA and other legislation; denying the opposition's request for poll watchers; incorrectly ruling the opposition out of order; allowing no discussion on motions; bringing up a defeated resolution; accepting ad hoc lesbian resolutions; ignoring motions to adjourn, etc."

Her testimony also included charges of passing the 11 controversial resolutions without a quorum and without a reading of each resolution individually, a vote to bind the delegates to support these resolutions at the national conference, no listing of delegates in the official Missouri report and no accounting of the allotted budget of $59,854.

Undoubtedly part of the reason that the entire Missouri delegation has been labeled anti-abortion is that the chairman of the delegation, Ann O'Donnell, a nurse from Ladue, is state president Missouri Citizens for Life. Another member of the delegations, Elaine Middendorf, St. Louis, is national vice president of Stop-ERA.

Mrs. Wasson does say that she does not like ERA in its present form and that she is not in favor "of a 15-year-old girl being able to get an abortion without her parent's consent when she needs permission to get her ears pierced.

"Most of us are admittedly pro-family and there are two delegates who favor ERA, which is a better percentage in their favor than on the state coordinating committee in ours." Mrs. Wasson said.

The state committee levels' countercharges at the delegates saying that they bused women in to vote for delegates who did not participate in any other part of the conference and that the delegation does not represent a broad cross-section of Missouri women.

"We were just using their tactics against them," Mrs. Wasson replied. "Although many more of the women participated in the workshops than they are willing to admit, most of them did not stay to vote on the resolutions because of the inconvenience of the meeting."

Voting on the resolutions was held from 9 to 11:30 on Sunday morning. "That is church time for most women, and for those from outside St. Louis it meant another night in town for those few hours," she said.

"The reason I would like women to know about what is going on is so they will write to their senators, congressmen and the President and tell them they are appalled to find out these (the resolutions) are supposed to be their views and that they want all funding discontinued for IWY," Mrs. Wasson said.

The Resolutions include:

—Social Security for homemakers.

—Federal government assurance of equal employment of women and equal appointment to judgeships by means of affirmative action.

—Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

—Prohibition of sex discrimination in public accommodations and public facilities.

—Endorsement of national health insurance.

—Federally funded and planned sex education programs at all levels of elementary and secondary education.

—Federally funded abortion on demand for all women.

—Emphasis on education for parenting to strengthen the family structure.

—Rights of persons who are not heterosexual to rear children.

The delegates to the national conference have been asking for responses from Missouri women on these resolutions to let the delegates know if the resolutions really represent their opinions. Responses should be sent to The Missouri IWY Delegation, c/o Mrs. Patti Kemp, Box 113, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Besides Mrs. Wasson, Mrs. Dukewits, Mrs. O'Donnell, Mrs. Kemp and Mrs. Middendorf, the other Missouri delegates are Rep. Judith G. O'Connor, D-Bridgeton; Sen. Mary L. Gant, D-Kansas City; Mrs. Angie Bennett, Springfield; Mrs. Joan Brier, Columbia; Mrs. Shirley Clough, Glendale; Mrs. Mary Gale Doyle, Des Peres; Mrs. Mae Duggan, Creve Coeur; Mrs. Frances Frech, Kansas City; Mrs. Joan Hart, Lebanon; Mrs. Donna Hearne, St. Louis; Mrs. Mary Fran Horgan, St. Louis; Miss Peggy Keilholz, Jefferson City; Mrs. Adele Kelman, Clayton; Mrs. Delphine McLaughlin, Des Peres; Mrs. Odile Mecker, St. Louis; Mrs. Frances Noonan, St. Louis; Mrs. Eline Rodrigues, Arnold; Mrs. Jackie Schlef, Dellwood; Mrs. Lucille Selsor, Oakville; Mrs. Claire Simon, Florissant; Mrs. Ann Slaughter, St. Louis; Mrs. Louise Grant Smit, Clayton; Mrs. Mattie C. Smith, Kansas City; Miss Mary Treis, St. Louis; and Mrs. Vi Wilson, Kirksville.

Head Start plans special activities

Next week is Head Start Week in Missouri and the three local Head Start Centers are gearing up to celebrate.

The highlight of the week at the Buckner Head Start Center, 357 Buckner Court, in the Anthony Buckner Apartments, will be an open house in the newly remodeled center. The center will be open from 1:15 to 3 p.m. for the open house.

The other two centers, Sedalia 1 and Sedalia 2, are both located in the Sedalia Community Center, Fourth and Washington. Each of the three centers serves 20 children.

Scheduled activities for the week include: Monday — Mrs. Camilla Knox, retired children's librarian, will visit Sedalia 1 and 2; Tuesday — Sedalia 2 will entertain at Burt Manor Nursing Home; Buckner will entertain at the Rest Haven Nursing Home; Wednesday — Elvera Satterwhite, children's librarian at the public library, will bring puppets to Sedalia 1 and 2; Buckner will entertain at the Nutrition Site; Thursday — Sedalia 1 will entertain at Hawthorne House and Brooking Park Geriatric Center; Buckner will hold open house; Friday — the centers will be closed for a teachers' meeting.

Head Start began nationally 12 years ago. It is a developmental program to help economically disadvantaged children to achieve social competence or everyday effectiveness in dealing with their environment and later responsibilities in school and life.

Head Start is based on the premise that all children share certain needs and that children from low-income families in particular can benefit from a comprehensive developmental program to meet those needs.

Help and referrals are available for the total Head Start family through the outreach work of each center. Mrs. Louise Woods is the community aide for the Sedalia Community Center and Mrs. Shirley Merk is the community aide for the Buckner Center.

The program receives most of its funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The balance of funds must be furnished by each center. The percentage of funds supplied by the centers does not need to be a cash donation. It may include services provided by the community, buildings and space for classes and time volunteered by members of the community.

Each Head Start class that serves 20 children has one teacher and one teacher's aide. In order to establish a better child-adult ratio, each class needs at least one volunteer at all times.

Services available to each child enrolled in Head Start include a medical examination and follow-up; dental examination and follow-up; psychological and speech evaluation and follow-up; immunizations; toothbrush and toothpaste for home and center; a classroom with staff, materials and field trips to provide educational experiences; meals, including breakfast, a morning snack and lunch, and transportation.

"A great loss to the community"
I heard a woman say
And people who never knew him
I am sure, too, feel that way
For on walls, canvas and paper
Can be seen all about
His works of art that seemingly Without effort he turned out,
They have watched history come to life
As he started with paper plain,
Such things as the Civil War
Or the James gang robbing a train,
With pastel crayons in his hand
Bit by bit the pictures grew,
A few strokes here, a few strokes there,
History blossomed as he drew.
Express himself, yes indeed he did,
And no one wondered at all
What was in his heart and mind
With his paintings on a wall.
"Oh, look, there is Harry Truman"
Said a small boy in delight
For among the portraits of presidents
He picked his president out and was right.
Then there is the horse race mural
Of the Missouri State Fair
So real you can almost smell the dust
And feel that you are there.
On the walls of the Chamber of Commerce
Hang bits of history as well
The portrait of George R. Smith,
A picture of the cowboy hotel,
Yes, a great loss to the community
This man who had much to give
For in so many places here
He has made local history live
For he had a love for people,
His manner was friendly and warm
And life from his paints and brushes
Is something with story and charm.
Yes, his talent brought him money
But he gave of that talent, too,
An example to budding artists
Of things that they might do
For he loved to share his talent
And now, reaching eternal dawn,
He has left to his community
A joy that will live on and on.

Wedding bells chime for couples

Goodier-Williams

Miss Georgiana Goodier became the bride of Mark Clinton Williams in a 7 p.m. Friday wedding at the Broadway Presbyterian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Goodier III, 2613 Plaza, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Roger E. Williams, 3100 Wing.

The father of the groom performed the double ring candlelight ceremony. Mrs. Lou Tempel, organist, provided the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory gown of organza. The high stand-up collar edged with ruffles gave way to the cluny lace yoke and seed pearls outlining the lace pattern on the long fitted sleeves. The princess-line skirt was enhanced at the hem with a cluny lace ruffle that swept into a chapel-length train. A cathedral-length veil was secured by a matching headpiece. The bride wore a diamond and pearl pin which belonged to the groom's great-grandmother.

Mrs. James D. McCubbin, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Miss Kathy Goodier, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. They wore identical long burgundy gowns fashioned with a V-neckline gathered to a diamond shape at the bodice that gave way to a pleated skirt. Long sleeved jackets were worn over the sleeveless dresses. Miss Mary Williams, sister of the groom, Miss Ann McKinney and Miss Carol Royals were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to those of the honor attendants. Miss Marci McCubbin, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

John A. Williams, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ed Williams, brother of the groom, Kenny McDowell, James Sneed and Chuck Myers were the groomsmen and ushers.

The parents of the groom honored the couple with a rehearsal dinner Thursday at Maxine's Gourmet House.

The bride, a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, graduated from State Fair Community College with a secretarial science certificate. She is employed at the Natchez, Miss., Democrat. The groom, also a S-C graduate, is employed by Benoist Brothers, Inc., Natchez.

The couple will be at home in Natchez.

MRS. GEORGE F. DOWDY
Miss Sheila Dee Childers

Childers-Dowdy

Lighted candles flanked the pews and white Grecian columns with candelabra and greenery decorated the altar of the Otterville Presbyterian Church as Sheila Dee Childers and George F. Dowdy exchanged wedding vows at 2 p.m. Oct. 8.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Benware, Florence, and the late Walter R. Childers. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Dowdy, Otterville.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an ivory floor-length gown of bridal satin. The bodice, overlayed with imported lace, featured a scooped neckline, long, gathered lace-accented sleeves and gave way to a flared A-line skirt. Matching lace trimmed the long train and mantilla veil. She wore an opal pendant, a gift from the groom.

Kelly Childers served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a peach colored gown of crepe polyester. The scooped neckline and short flared sleeves were edged in lace. She wore a pompon in her hair. Cathy Dowdy, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaid and wore a gown identical to that of the maid of honor.

Elaine Williams and Becky Griffin were candlelighters. Melinda Dowdy, sister of the groom, was the flower girl.

Ronnie Dowdy served his brother as best man. David Griffin was the groomsman. Seating the guests were Randy Williams and Russell Childers, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the church immediately following the ceremony. For traveling to the Lake of the Ozarks, the bride wore a beige and rust polyester gabardine pantsuit.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and is attending State Fair Community College majoring in clerical skills. She is employed at Missouri State Motor Bank. The groom is a 1975 graduate of Otterville High School and is engaged in farming.

The couple will be at home in rural Otterville.

DAR is open to men, too

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — Mrs. George Upham Baylies, president general, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), known to her friends as J.O. (she was Jeannette Osborn), said at a recent meeting here: "People do not think of us in the forefront of the liberation of women, but when the Sons of the American Revolution would not let us join, we started the Daughters in 1890, and these headquarters are the largest group of buildings in the world owned and maintained exclusively by women."

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was founded Oct. 11, 1890, and incorporated by an act of Congress in 1896. The national headquarters buildings in Washington cover an entire city block on beautiful 17th Street near the White House.

There are 100 chapters and 6,207 members in Missouri.

The total membership is 205,789 in 3,082 chapters in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, England, France and Mexico.

The Society functions through 24 national and a number of special and standing committees, to further its three-fold objectives: historic preservation, promotion of education, and patriotic endeavor.

Believe it or not, the DAR has opened its doors to men who qualify for membership. Qualify is the key word. The four-page application on legal size paper make it essential that the applicant be 18 years of age and have a lineage dating back to a Revolutionary ancestor.

As indicated in the application, the descendant must be "from a man or woman who with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American Independence, served as a sailor, soldier or civil officer in one of the several colonies or states, or as a recognized patriot, or rendered material aid thereto; provided the applicant is personally acceptable to the Society." Marriage means legal and lawful marriage. Any applicant must be able to prove her or his blood line back to the ancestor as stated above. This often requires long periods of genealogical study.

The Daughters are serious and proud of their activities. They promote historical pilgrimage, maintain student loans and scholarships, publish a manual for citizenship and assist immigrants at Ellis Island, support two schools in the Appalachian area, and conduct special state meetings in the Valley Forge, Pa. chapel.

Strategy needed

How to collect from a friend

NEW YORK (AP) — How do you get someone to repay a loan and not go away mad?

It may not be easy. But with some careful strategy, you may be able to recoup some of your hard-earned cash and save a friendship at the same time, says Dr. Robert Bell, an assistant professor at Fordham University.

Bell is author of the recently published "Have It Your Way," in which he sets forth a "strategy of settling everyday conflicts," including techniques for getting back that overdue loan, to handling office politics, divorce settlements and when to believe a promise.

Bell, who has lectured worldwide on game theory, systems analysis, business strategy and human relations, points out that recovery of a private debt is usually a cut-and-dried procedure, but when dealing with a friend it's a lot more tricky.

There are several things to consider, Bell explains. The friend may feel very sensitive about being asked to pay back the loan. He may feel guilty about waiting so long to repay. He may not have the money. He might even resort to avoiding and ignoring the lender.

Even the very friendship may be at stake over the matter, the professor cautions.

Some lenders may take the full-steam-ahead approach and throw all caution to the wind in trying to regain their money, he continues. One gambit he described was that designed by an exasperated lender who thought of bringing the matter up in public to create a scene and embarrass the person into paying the debt. Upon closer reflection, it didn't take the person long to realize the heavy burden that such tactics would place on the friendship. The plan was abandoned and a new approach sought. But Bell says that "some lenders become so desperate to claim the debt that even the loss of a long-standing friendship can become unimportant."

Music clinic set Monday at SFCC

The Kaysing vocal music clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday in the Media Forum Room of the Yeater Learning Center at State Fair Community College.

Approximately 185 students are expected to participate from the following area high schools: Warsaw, Joe Bockelman, instructor; Lamonte, Barbara Schrader, instructor; Cole Camp, Dr. Mike Groves; Grene Ridge, Tom Deke; Stover, Bob Belser; Lincoln, Sandy Schlesselman; Hughesville, Lee Lewis; Smithton, Ann Zumsteg. Each school is limited to 20 students selected by their instructors.

"Future Telephone Communications" was the topic of David Hammock's speech at the Tuesday meeting of the Sedalia chapter 660 of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Using slides, Hammock stated that the national telecommunications policy was not clear after over 100 years. The real issue, according to Hammock, is how the FCC Reform Act will effect the basic home phone rate.

Mrs. Della Gasperson read a resolution in memory of Raymond Herndon.

Yearbook talks about mulch

What's best? Chemicals or doing without

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's new yearbook says to "think mulch" when considering organic gardening. But it does not debate the subject of whether vegetables grown without chemicals are better for you than those doused with ammonium nitrate and pesticides.

Over the years USDA has assumed an aloof attitude about so-called health foods, organic gardening and the merits claimed by advocates that vegetables and fruit grown without chemicals are more nutritious.

Department scientists still say that there is no evidence to support claims that rhubarb grown organically is better for you than if it had been supplied with an ounce or two of 1-10-10 chemical fertilizer.

The yearbook article on organic gardening was written by Wesley P. Judkins, emeritus professor of horticulture, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va. It provides a clear explanation of what organic gardening is and how a backyard enthusiast can proceed.

Organic gardening involves the production of crops without the use of "inorganic" chemical fertilizers or pesticides, Judkins said.

"This means that only organic fertilizers such as manure, sewage, sludge, cottonseed meal, bone meal or dried blood are used," he wrote. "Also, diseases, insects and weeds are controlled by natural resistance, birds, predator insects or mechanical means, rather than by using pesticides or herbicides."

But Judkins also points out a basic scientific fact sometimes overlooked or obscured in heated arguments between health-food adherents and commercial fruit and vegetable growers who say they would go broke if all chemicals were banned.

Regardless of the original source of the fertilizer, it must break down into ionic particles before it can be absorbed by a living plant, and Judkins says the ions then absorbed "are identical, whether derived from an organic or inorganic source."

"Therefore, in terms of benefits to plants, when similar quantities of nutrients are available there is no advantage for either organic or inorganic fertilizer," he continued.

Organic gardening also means that no chemical pesticides are used to control the grubs, aphids, beetles and other munchers and chewers that attack lettuce, carrots, sweet corn, tomatoes and similar favorites.

Judkins said if possible plant "only those crops which are not susceptible to damage by pests" or those which are resistant to pests and disease.

"There is no conclusive evidence to indicate that crops grown organically are more resistant to pest damage than similar vigorously growing crops which have received commercial fertilizer," he said.

Other USDA publications have recently taken a look at organically grown fruits, vegetables and other so-called "health foods" on the market, including the array of processed items ranging from cereals to ice cream.

In the current issue of "National Food Situation" published by USDA's Economic Research Service, health food is described as a growing market item in other countries as well as in the United States.

But reliable statistics on organically grown foods and other of the health-food items are difficult to find, the report said.

"So-called organic farms which raise fresh fruits and vegetables are often very small. Many engage in direct sales. For example a list of 56 certified organic farms in California in 1972 were under 10 acres and over half of the 56 sold only to consumers," the report said.

Health foods accounted for less than one-half of 1 per cent of the nation's food spending in 1970, but could rise to about 1 per cent by 1980, according to some estimates, the report said.

Although this is a very small share of the food market, some authorities believe that in time health foods could force the big processors to undergo significant changes in the methods of preparing food.

For example, the report said, one manufacturer of baby food early this year announced it would no longer add salt, artificial flavors, artificial colors or flavor enhancers to its products.

Thus, with organic foods apparently making an imprint gradually on more consumers, USDA's latest yearbook chapter by Professor Judkins takes on added significance.

But the yearbook includes many other articles on gardening or the more ordinary kind, including tips on how to use chemicals to control insects and diseases. Articles on many specific crops such as sweet corn include advice on how much chemical fertilizer to apply.

The yearbook is for sale at government book stores for $6.50 a copy or can be ordered from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Congress also gets a supply of yearbooks for free distribution to constituents. Each senator gets 550 books and each member of the House 400.

Many students don't get shots

KANSAS CITY (AP) — More than 22,000 students in 17 Kansas City area school districts have failed to meet Missouri immunization requirements and may be excluded from school, according to state officials.

State health officials said they will order the school districts to exclude the children from school as soon as possible but will not set a definite date for exclusion.

"We would prefer to get the law accomplished without any punitive action," said Gary Shipley, assistant director of the state Bureau of Immunizable Diseases.

Students will be removed from the exclusion list if they obtain the immunization or provide the districts with written permission from their parents for immunization at a school-operated clinic. Parents also may provide the districts with a written statement of exemption from a physician or a statement saying they prefer their child not to be inoculated.

Officials in most school districts said the number of noncomplying children has decreased somewhat since the report was given to state officials last Saturday.

About two-thirds of the names submitted to the state from the area districts came from the Kansas City School District, which filed an incomplete report because the records of only 34,949 of 47,000 Kansas City School District students had been reviewed by the deadline last Saturday.

Don Eubanks, director of immunization for the Kansas City region, estimated that 18,000 Kansas City School District students were not in compliance with the requirements.

Although Missouri began requiring inoculations 16 years ago, the state decided in the last school year to enforce the state law more stringently after receiving federal funds to improve immunization levels and after several outbreaks of measles, Shipley said. The state now requires immunization for diphtheria, measles, rubella and polio.

Prison system in Kansas criticized

LANSING, Kan. (AP) — Calling the state's prison system "an expression of our collective ignorance," a University of Kansas professor urged Friday that the Kansas Correctional Institution for Women be closed immediately and that communities develop their own correctional programs.

"Communities cannot be any less successful than the state has been, and, indeed, I think they might be more successful," said Forrest Swall, an assistant professor in the KU School of Social Welfare.

"We do virtually nothing that contributes to a meaningful work program in our prisons," Swall charged. "We talk about rehabilitation and punishment, but we neither rehabilitate nor punish very well."

Swall spoke during a seminar arranged by a group of inmates serving life sentences at the Kansas State Penitentiary. The group, called the Lifers' Club, has 112 members, most of whom have been convicted of murder.

About 50 guests, including state legislators, sociologists and social workers, spent the day inside the penitentiary, a maximum-security facility built in the late 1800s. They discussed issues relating to the state's attempts to deal with crime and criminals.

Swall singled out the women's prison, also at Lansing, saying it removes women from their families, provides little vocational or educational opportunity and fosters dependence rather than an ability to solve problems.

"It tells them they must behave like adults, but it treats them like young girls," he said.

Swall said Kansas communities should form committees to study crime and develop local programs particularly for nonviolent offenders.

A new medium-security prison would "fail as miserably as our other prisons have failed," he said.

Kansas needs local programs that divert offenders from state prisons to work and training programs, halfway houses, counseling and educational facilities, he said.

Education through involvement

Students learn to work within system

EDITOR'S NOTE — Using the system, instead of bucking it, to get what they want has become the norm for thousands of high school students across the country. They are beneficiaries of special courses in law and politics.

By SUE SHELLENBARGER
Associated Press Writer

High school students in St. Paul, Minn., wanted to eliminate the stench from nearby factories.

Students at Woodrow Wilson High School in Washington, D.C., wanted a shopkeeper to remove a sign barring young people from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

All got what they wanted, working within the system with skills they learned in school.

"We want to teach kids how to deal in a society that's increasingly bureaucratic. Whether we like it or not, that's the way it is," says high school teacher Joe Nathan of St. Paul.

Nathan and his students at the St. Paul Open School filed complaints against local companies and achieved installation of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of pollution control equipment, although Nathan says the air "still doesn't smell terrific."

The students in Washington, D.C., knew they could sue the shopkeeper for violating age discrimination provisions of a human rights ordinance. The sign came down after a brief talk on the law.

Some $15 million has been spent on law-related education in the past 20 years, according to the American Bar Association. Most of the money has come through grants from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

"Being a director of law-related education is like selling motherhood and apple pie," says a state project director. "The conservatives love you because you're teaching law and order, and the liberals love you because you're teaching constitutional rights."

Police in Fort Worth attend teacher training seminars; judges in Rockford open their courtrooms early to talk to students; legislators in New Jersey spend hours talking with students, and officials in Des Plaines, Ill., grant three-week jobs in village government to a summer class of "clinical government" students.

LEAA grants support many of the programs but are about to expire, and in most cases organizers have been unable to convince state or local officials to pick up the funding.

Critics argue that law-related education amounts to no more than a superficial study of Kojak-style criminal law using simulation games and mock trials.

But the supporters argue that the courses teach many important basics and get the students started in getting involved in the world around them.

Castle Gate people aren't too happy

HELPER, Utah (AP) — Two years ago, the 61 families of Castle Gate pulled up roots and moved, making way for expanding coal production. Now, some of them are bitter, saying they are having problems sinking new roots in a community four miles away.

All of the houses in Castle Gate, a coal-mining town in eastern Utah, were moved by the landowner, McCulloch Oil Corp. The company, saying it needed the land for its growing coal interests, paid for the moves and gave each family a plot of land.

To some, like Pete Tabone, Castle Gate's last mayor, the move has meant problems. To others, like veteran miner Willard Craig, it has been a boon.

Tabone complains that his taxes have risen and, "here, the wind never stops. It howls and gets colder than hell in the winter.

"I've had lots of bills since we moved here. I mean we wanted to fight it, but found we didn't really have a chance," Tabone adds.

Craig, though, says the new subdivision, carved out of a canyon, with squared off streets, a new coat of paint on the houses and yards lined with fences and flowers, pleases him.

"I'm happy — greatly so," says Craig, a machinist for 35 years. "We've got a pretty town. It's clean and I think we'll be happy here."

Like Tabone, most of the residents of Castle Gate Subdivision of Helper are on fixed incomes. Some, Tabone says, made the move only to find their savings depleted and debts increasing.

"If we wanted a basement, we had to pay for that," Tabone says. "If we wanted a car port we had to pay for it. Since we made the move, some of us are finding it was something we couldn't afford, no matter what McCulloch said."

Although Vanda Hreinson's wooden-frame house suffered cracks from ceiling to floor during the move, she says she is delighted with the way things have worked out.

"Look at what we did to the house," she says, pointing to re-paneled walls trimmed with flowered designs, a modern kitchen and a western-style garden in the back yard. "We never could have had anything like this at the old place."

Dr. Won Jong Sull, 403 West Broadway, a native of Korea, recently was named among 1,700 initiates from around the world who became fellows of the American College of Surgeons, the world's largest organization for surgeons.

Formal convocation ceremonies were held in the Callas, Tex., Convention Center Thursday.

Members of the college may use the designation "F.A.C.S." (Fellow, American College of Surgeons) after their name, indicating they have fulfilled comprehensive requirements of medical education and advanced training in general surgery or one of the other 10 surgical specialties recognized by the college.

Chester T. O'Bannon, Slippery Rock, Pa., and son of Mr. and Mrs. T.M. O'Bannon, 1220 West 11th, has been appointed assistant conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir of Pittsburgh, Pa. He is a professor of voice and director of choirs at Slippery Rock College.

The new post was created because of the increasing demands being made on the choir in meeting their active concert schedule.

Butz portrait still waiting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5,000 oil portrait of Earl L. Butz is still waiting to be ceremoniously hung in one of the dim corridors of the Agriculture Department.

The portrait of the former secretary of agriculture, who served almost five years in the Nixon and Ford Cabinets, was delivered last month, but is waiting until Butz notifies Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland when he can attend a hanging ceremony.

"Butz said he would let us know when he could attend but said he wasn't going to make a special trip just to see his picture hung," an aide to Bergland said Friday. "So far we haven't heard when he is coming."

The portrait was painted by New York artist Everett Raymond Kinstler, who also was commissioned for $5,000 to portray Butz' successor, John A. Knebel, the last secretary of agriculture in the Ford administration.

Butz resigned Oct. 4, 1976, in the wake of protests over racial remarks made public at the height of Gerald Ford's unsuccessful presidential campaign a year ago. The remarks included Butz describing the bathroom and sexual preferences of black people.

Some of the Carter farm people wanted to hang Butz' portrait without fanfare, but Bergland overruled them and said, "Let's get Earl in here," the aide said.

Traditionally, the portraits of agriculture secretaries and other Cabinet officers have been paid for at taxpayer expense. Carter, however, passed the word to stop the practice. Lower-cost likenesses of his Cabinet officers will be used.

In addition to the $5,000 artist fee, it cost another $750 for framing and lighting of Butz' portrait.

The photographic likeness being planned for Bergland will cost about $500 for the first unmounted portrait and $175 for each copy. But the framing and lighting are expected to make the total cost around $1,000.

Butz, who is a professor emeritus at Purdue University, where he taught for many years, still maintains an office there and occasionally lectures. He also travels widely making speeches and does a radio farm show, a department spokeswoman said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite weather problems in much of the nation, including drought in the West, supplies of fresh market vegetables are expected to be about 6 per cent larger this fall than they were a year ago.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that as a result prices paid to growers "may average slightly less" than a year ago. Retail prices, although expected to increase seasonally, are expected to be "close" to the fourth-quarter levels of last year.

Much larger quantities of tomatoes and sweet corn are also helping push up supplies of vegetables used for processing, officials said. On a total tonnage basis, the supply of processing vegetables is expected to be 18 per cent larger.

"Wholesale prices for canned vegetables rose steadily between March and August, but with heavier supplies for the months ahead, it is likely that canned vegetable prices will average about the same or barely higher than in late 1976," the report said.

Potato prices also will be down, due to a near-record crop of fall varieties.

"Had it not been for untimely late September rains in several Eastern and Midwestern districts, the crop might have turned out even larger," the report said.

Use of liquid protein may be dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors specializing in weight control say the unsupervised use of liquid protein in a crash diet is dangerous and may even cause death.

The doctors, meeting at a conference on obesity, said Friday there have been reports of deaths involving persons engaged in so-called starvation diets using liquid protein as a supplement.

"Unsupervised use of liquid protein without proper supplements such as potassium is dangerous and potentially life-threatening," said Dr. Saul M. Genuth of Mount Sinai Hospital in Cleveland.

A spokeswoman for the Food and Drug Administration said the agency has recieved one report of a death involving starvation diets and has heard informally of possibly several others.

"We don't think anyone would die as a direct cause of taking liquid protein, but the diet is essentaily a starvation diet. So any deaths would be like what comes from starvation," the FDA spokeswoman said.

It was easy

Kim Hyong Wook, a former chief of the Korean CIA, appeared before the House Ethics Committee probe of the Korean bribery scandal and indicated that indicted rice merchant Tongsun Park said in 1969 he had "with much ease" begun to give tens of thousands of dollars to "many U.S. congressmen" to help South Korea on Capitol Hill.

4-H News

Bob Simon, Route 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Simon, has been named a state 4-H winner in the electrical energy awards program. He will receive an all-expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 27-Dec. 2.

Simon is a nine-year 4-H member and has been an electricity project member all of those years. This year he designed an exhibiton solar energy that was displayed at the Missouri State Fair.

Foreign reaction worries him

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Justice Minister James T. Kruger says he is concerned about foreign reaction to the suppression of black organizations in South Africa but "I have no doubt I have done the right thing."

Protests mounted Friday against the new government crackdown on blacks. Police arrested 150 blacks and Indians, and a school was burned.

Kruger's action Wednesday banning 18 black organizations, shutting down two black newspapers and detaining 50 black leaders also brought a storm of protest from abroad and the recall of the American and Dutch ambassadors for consultations.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance personally ordered Ambassador William Bowdler to return to Washington to report on the situation in South Africa. The black congressional caucus had asked for Bowdler's permanent recall and a lowering of the U.S. representation in South Africa to non-ambassadorial level.

Kruger, in an interview Friday in Pretoria with the American television network ABC, defended his action, saying he was trying "to stop the unrest in my country."

(In an interview with The New York Times, Kruger said President Carter was partly to blame for the situation in South Africa because Carter's "holier-than-thou" pressures on behalf of South African blacks had encouraged black militant groups to believe "the Americans are backing us to the hilt, whether we do it peacefully or by violence.")

("I think he bears a lot of responsibility particularly that this thing had to come now, because once people get the idea that a large country like America is backing you up, obviously it's an incentive to people who want virtually the same thing by violence that Presient Carter is calling for by peace.")

More than 50 black students were arrested Friday after disturbances in the segregated township of Sharpeville, south of Johannesburg. In Johannesburg's Lenasia Indian township, 97 Indians were arrested at an open-air meeting. A black school at Queenstown, 420 miles south of here, was burned.

A former executive of the now-banned Interdenominational Christian Institute, said the government is trying to wipe out the "black consciousness" movement before the release of an autopsy report on black leader Steve Biko, regarded as the movement's founder.

Biko's death in police custody Sept. 12 aroused new antigovernment feeling among blacks. Newspapers have reported he suffered severe brain and body injuries, and many blacks and antigovernment whites believe he had been beaten to death.

More unity being shown

JERUSALEM (AP) — With a new look of political stability, Prime Minister Menahem Begin's expanded coalition in parliament presents a more united front in Israel's dealings with the Arabs.

Though few changes are foreseen in basic Israeli policy, political analysts say Begin is likely to take a more determined stance as President Carter presses U.S. efforts to resume the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

Begin's coalition — his own Likud group, two religious parties and two independents — held a shaky 63-seat majority in the 120-member Knesset until Thursday, when the centrist Democratic Movement for Change (DMC) decided to end a five-month holdout and add its 15 seats to the ruling alliance.

The move gives Begin the elbow room on domestic and foreign affairs that he sorely lacked since winning the May national elections.

"We are now facing the toughest test we've faced since 1948" when Israel became a state, said DMC leader Yigael Yadin. "Therefore we must help the government ... or else we won't survive."

After Begin's right-wing Likud bloc defeated the entrenched Labor party in May, Israelis looked to the DMC to join the government as a moderating influence on Begin's tough approach to peace and his reluctance to relinquish captured Arab territory.

The Likud-DMC coalition talks broke down, but suddenly on Thursday the DMC, with Yadin citing an "approaching crisis" with the Carter administration, accepted a union.

The DMC move was an astonishing victory for Begin, a newcomer to power, and virtually ensures a long life for his government.

"Begin now has what gamblers call a split," said a source close to the prime minister. "He can manipulate the odds so he can't lose. If any party drops out he still has a majority."

Political and international circumstances have changed since May, and Yadin will have less influence on foreign policy than he might have had if the DMC had entered the government at the start.

Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan have formed a strong team that dominates foreign policy, and it is unlikely Yadin can break into this two-man circle.

The giant Manta, an often graceful, yet formidable sea creature, will perform impressive aerial feats up to 15 feet out of the water in order to elude parasites that it finds annoying.

PAINTING and WALLCOVERING TIPS
By Jane Dugan

LET'S PAINT We will take it for granted that most people are familiar with the rudiments of painting. These articles are not intended to cover all aspects of painting, but only to pass along "tips" that have been proven by experience to make a paint job go easier and faster.
If you have read earlier articles in this series about preparing to paint a room, we will assume you have taken down drapes, curtains and rods, removed switchplates, dropped light fixtures and repaired cracks, holes and other defects in the walls and ceiling.
You are going to paint the ceiling first, and just a couple of things remain to be done before you start: (1) If it is impractical to take the furniture out of the room, move it to one corner in orders to paint the ceiling in the cleared area: then move the furniture to the middle of the room to finish the ceiling and start on the trim and walls. (Naturally you'll cover the furniture with a plastic drop cloth.) (2) Cover the floor. We recommend a plastic drop cloth to prevent paint from getting through to the floor.
Before you start come into our friendly store, for quality and fair prices.

You won't believe the difference over conventional records when you play this "Rough Trade" Direct-To-Disc album on your new system. As its name implies, the Direct-To-Disc method of recording eliminates several sound deadening stages of tape recording as the music is captured directly on a master disc. It's the most faithful sound reproduction yet devised and the most fragile for unlike tape, once the master album is worn out there can be no more copies made. As a result, each recording is a limited edition and each album is numbered like a limited edition art print. 'Slowdown' not to be found in Hope dictionary

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope is 74 years old going on 35. At least, that's the pace he keeps.

"I'm going like two houses afire," he said the day after arriving home from tour that, took him to Las Vegas, Dallas, Chicago, Peoria and Waterloo, Iowa. He averages nearly 200 appearances a year.

"You get into a trap," he says. "You book yourself. I like appearing in person so much, it's so much fun to go out and do things. I just got back last night. Luckily we had our own plane borrowed from a friend — not Bert Lance."

Hope paused over his plate of chicken livers at the Lakeside Country Club, a few blocks from his Toluca Lake home. Behind him golfers were on the greens, but he says he doesn't get much chance for his favorite pastime these days.

Hope, starting his 28th year in television, looks ahead to his next television special, "Bob Hope's Road to Hollywood." It will be aired on NBC this Friday.

That show will chronicle the comedy highlights of his 54 films in 40 years, from "The Big Broadcast of 1938" to "Cancel My Reservations."

Hope admits that he does slow down, and paces himself like an athlete.

"I go down to Palm Springs. I actually train. I have a masseur down there. I play golf. I have a little nap. I eat dinner, watch the news, take a walk. That's style."

Hope says he is considering a Broadway play, but "I wouldn't have the time. I haven't been on Broadway since I left 'Red Hot and Blue' in 1937.

"I'd love to play Broadway again, but that's a real commitment. How would I have time for my television and my other commitments?"

In March he goes to New Zealand and Australia for personal appearances, winding up in Perth to tape a television special. But before that he will log thousands of miles on other appearances.

Stick a pin in a world map and Hope probably has played there. In World War II he became a prodigious traveler, entertaining American troops. He hasn't stopped traveling since.

He's even played in the Soviet Union.

One country he hasn't played is China. Not that he didn't try.

Henry Kissinger suggested he write the Chinese embassy in Canada. Hope says, "I dictated a letter to the embassy and said I wanted to go to the Republic of China. And I didn't hear from them. I called Bill Rogers, who was then Secretary of State, and he started laughing and said, 'You want to go to the Republic of China?' I said yeah. He said, 'You mean you want to go to the People's Republic of China.' And I wondered why I hadn't heard from them."

Hope was asked if people around the world laugh at the same things.

"They laugh at the jokes they understand. They don't know the U.S. slang. But if you tell a joke like I was on the deck of a boat and a woman had her dress over her hat. And I said, 'Lady, you're getting your legs all wet.' And she said, 'I don't care. My legs are 50 years old but the hat's brand new.' They understand that in any country. You can tell a joke like that, and I've done it."

Hope says his wealth has been overstated.

"I have to work to pay my taxes. I swear if I didn't have personal appearances to cover my taxes I'd be in trouble. I'm the largest individual property owner in the state of California. My property taxes last year were $900,000.

He said he made his first big money 28 years ago when he and Bing Crosby hit oil in West Texas. He and three other partners sold their share for $20 million, but Crosby held onto his share. Hope invested that money in property, including 10,000 acres in the San Fernando Valley and many thousands more from Riverside to Oxnard.

"I'm wealthy, but nowhere near $500 million. I think if you figure my property I am worth $50 million. If I could sell it."

"It's so much fun to go out and do things," says Bob Hope. At 74, Hope is "going like two houses afire," as he puts it, averaging nearly 200 personal appearances a year. (AP)

Kick fails

S-C loses by one

By KIRK WEBER
Sports Editor

There were some tears in the Smith-Cotton dressing room following Friday night's game.

The Tigers, struggling through a disappointing season, lost 7-6 to the Mexico Bulldogs after coming within one pass and 14 yards of winning.

Trailing 7-0 at the half, the Tigers scored a touchdown early in the fourth quarter. The extra point was blocked, but the Bulldog lead was cut to 7-6.

Keith Fletcher hit Kirk Fletcher with a 20-yard pass to move the ball out to the 48, then, following an incomplete pass, the duo combined again to move the ball down to the Mexico 28.

On first down, Fletcher's pass was tipped by a lineman and fell incomplete. His next pass also was incomplete, but a Mexico defender was called for interference and the ball was moved to the 14, where S-C got a first down.

Fletcher again threw incomplete, then hit David Albright with what appeared to be a completed pass at the two-yard line. Albright claimed he caught the ball, but the referee said it was trapped and ruled it incomplete.

On third-and-ten from the 14, Fletcher dropped back to pass again, but he was rushed hard. A Mexico defender hit him and the ball squirted loose and Mexico recovered.

Smith-Cotton's hopes for a dramatic comeback and an end to a four-game losing streak died. Instead, Mexico escaped with the win and the Tigers' streak is now five games.

It was a night of almosts for the Tigers, who racked up 223 total yards to 179 for Mexico.

Late in the first quarter, Tiger running back Bo Poindexter broke one from the S-C 31 all the way to Mexico's 15, but the play was called back because of an illegal procedure penalty.

Poindexter, who had an outstanding night in leading all rushers in the game with 83 yards on 14 carries, also had runs of eight and 11 yards called back on penalties. Both times the runs would have picked up first downs in third-down situations.

Mexico's lone touchdown was also an almost for the Tigers.

The Tigers had the ball third-and-five on their 25 late in the second quarter. Poindexter carried the ball for five yards, but was inches short of the first down and S-C had to punt.

Keith Fletcher boomed one that hit on Mexico's 30 and rolled to the nine before being downed.

A first down play by the Bulldogs gained four and on second-and-six, Bob Pasley, a reserve running back, carried into the middle of the line. He was stopped cold, but bounced off the pile and broke free to the left.

Mexico went to work from there, moving down to a first-and-goal inside the Tiger 10-yard line.

Three plays took it inside the one. On fourth-and-goal, quarterback Jerry Bell sneaked the ball. A strong Tiger surge stacked up the middle, but the referees ruled Bell broke the plane of the goal line. Regan Fuhrer kicked the extra point to give Mexico a 7-0 lead with just 55 seconds left in the half.

On the other side of the ledger, Smith-Cotton got a break leading up to its touchdown.

In the closing seconds of the third quarter, the Tigers were forced to punt from Mexico's 47-yard line, but a clipping penalty on the play gave S-C a first down at the Bulldog 32.

On the last play of the third quarter, Poindexter carried the ball 19 yards to the Bulldog 13.

Keith Fletcher ran a keeper for nine yards to the four, but a delay of game penalty moved it back out to the nine.

Another keeper lost two more yards to the 11, but on third and eight Fletcher hit Kitchen with a pass that was good for a first down at the three.

On first-and-goal, Fletcher carried it in on a keeper.

Smith-Cotton probably played well enough to win Friday night. The Tigers totally dominated the second half rushing for 80 yards and passing for 52, while Mexico gained just 38 yards, six passing and 32 on the ground.

Keith Fletcher finished the night four for 15 passing for 76 yards. Bell, for Mexico, was one for four for six yards.

Mexico's leading rusher was halfback Bill Fountain, who gained 62 yards on 19 carried. Pasley, who broke the long gainer that killed the Tigers, ended with 57 yards one two carries.

Smith-Cotton's cross country squad finished tops in the Central Missouri Conference this year with an impressive win at Jefferson City Saturday. Tigers capture title

JEFFERSON CITY — Smith-Cotton captured the Central Missouri Conference cross country title Saturday, setting varsity and junior varsity course records in the process.

Smith-Cotton's Brian Dickman set the pace and a new course record for the 2½ mile course with a time of 13:36.

The host team tried to use a "rabbit" by sending Kent Denny to the head of the pack early.

"At the first mile," said track coach Leonard Butler, "Jefferson City was winning. If they would have kept the place they held at the mile they would have won."

He credited his harriers with a "great team effort" in holding off the Jays aggressive challenge to the Tiger's course plan.

"We wanted to stay in a group," Butler said of S-C's strategy.

Junior Nick Hall took over the lead for Smith-Cotton at the mile and a half point. The Tigers refused to relinquish the lead from that point on.

"He came up from fourth place to take the lead," Butler said. "He held the lead until the two mile point when Brian Dickman came on up and took it over. It was also at this point that Dwight Dabney, Mark Montgomery and David Paul moved on ahead of Jefferson City's fourth and fifth place runners."

Butler later commented; "It was those fine individual and team efforts that sowed it up for us."

John Miller captured the junior varsity event and set a new course mark in that division at 14:17.

Administrators of the conference have not sanctioned an all-conference team. However, coaches each year draw-up a "mythical all-conference team".

"If we had an all-conference team," said Butler, "we would have placed three people on it."

Butler said the mythical squad would have included: Dickman, Smith-Cotton; Dirk Allman, Jefferson City; Dabney, Smith-Cotton; Hall, Smith-Cotton and Keith Denny, Jefferson City.

Olympic committee

New look at politics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee is preparing a strong new stand against political interference in sport.

A week of talks in Lausanne, involving the IOC executive board and the International Sports Federations, ended with creation a three-man team to prepare a declaration redefining the attitude of the Olympic movement towards politics.

Mohamed Mzali, a vice president of the IOC and education minister for Tunisia, will head the team. The other members are Charles Palmer of Britain, president of the International Judo Federation, and Col. Raoul Mollet, president of the Belgian Olympic Committee.

The choice of Palmer was an indication of the strong line the IOC is planning. He recently canceled the World Judo Championships, scheduled for Barcelona, because the Spanish government refused to admit competitors from the Republic of China (Taiwan) which the judo federation recognizes.

A similar issue threatened to wreck the Montreal Olympics last year when the Canadian government refused to let in athletes from Taiwan unless they dropped the name of Republic of China.

After the Montreal row, Palmer advocated a five-year ban on all international sports events in Canada. The IOC and the federations did not take up his plan.

An IOC source said the new declaration will strengthen the position of the IOC in future disputes of this kind.

Mzali and his team plan to have their document ready for a meeting of the IOC executive board in Tunis in January. It will then be placed before the full session of the IOC in Athens next May, and if approved, will be presented to UNESCO.

As delegates left Lausanne, the IOC had still received only two bids for the 1984 Olympics—from Los Angeles for the Summer Games and Sapporo, Japan, for the Winter Games.

Would-be host cities have until Oct. 31 to post their bids. Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia were all reported planning to compete againstSapporo for the Winter Games.

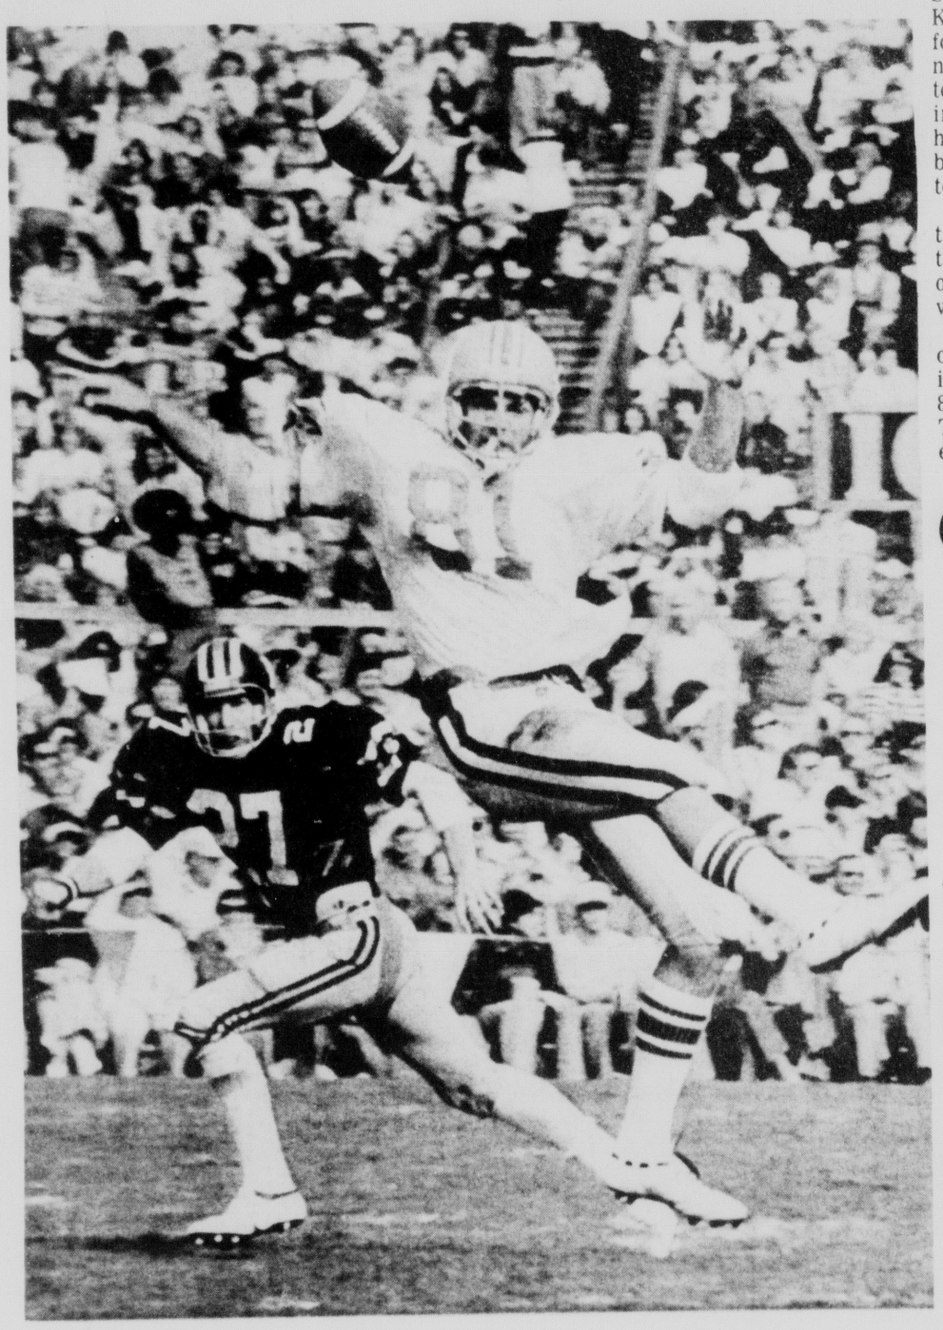
Offense rolling again

MU Tigers trounce KU, 28-13



COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Senior Pete Woods ripped Kansas State's pass defense for 205 yards and senior Annise Davis plowed for two touchdows Saturday, powering Missouri to a 28-13 homecoming victory in a battle of second-division teams in the Big Eight.

The Tigers, while advancing their record to 2-5, also lifted their conference mark to 1-2 on the strength of an offense which rolled up 375 yards.

Woods, who connected on 15 of his 20 aerials and had one interception, guided Missouri 83 yards the second time the Tigers had the ball. He teamed with tight end Kellen Winslow on a 51-yard play and sophomore Jerry Ellis dashed two yards around end for the score.

Davis clinbed over the middle into the end zone from the Kansas State two and scored again for the Tigers midway through the second quarter.

Missouri's lead grew to 21-0 when Woods delivered a strike to flanker Joe Stewart on a 39-yard play four minutes after Davis scored.

Kansas State struck back when reserve quarterback Dab Manucci passed to tight end Paul Coffman for 89 yards in third quarter, the longest strike ever by a Tiger opponent.

Kansas State's second touchdown came on Ken Lovely's one-yard dive with two minutes and 12 seconds left. Brad Wagner, a Wildcat safety, had picked off a pass by Missouri's Phil Bradley at the Tiger 23.

Kansas State's loss was its 17th in a row in the Big Eight. The Wildcats, while suffering a fourth straight setback, dropped to 0-3 in the conference and 1-6 over-all.

A hard-charging Missouri defense harassed Kansas State's starting quarterback, Wendell Henrikson, pirating three of the Wildcat senior's passes before Manucci took over in the third quarter.

End Gene Twellman engineered one of the Missouri interceptions, stealing a pass that set up a march from midfield and the the first Davis touchdown. Missouri led 14-0.

Kansas State ran three plays after taking the kickoff but had to punt. The Tigers scored two plays later on the long strike from Woods to Stewart.

Kansas State bogged down on parades to the Missouri 13 in the opening period and to the Tiger 12 in the closing quarter.

Cowboys shut out Kansas 21-0

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Terry Miller, Oklahoma State halfback, became the all-time rushing champion of the Big Eight and scored a touchdown on a 34-yard romp as the Cowboys blanked Kansas 21-0 on a wet, slippery field Saturday.

Miller, a senior All-American from Colorado Springs, Colo., skirted right end in 10:12 of the fourth period for six yards, pushing his four-year total to 4,075, eclipsing the record of 4,071 set by Joe Washington of Oklahoma in 1972-75. Miller, who also became the first Big Eight back to record three straight 1,000-yard seasons on the same play, finished with 149 yards for the day and a career total of 4,110 yards with four games remaining.

The wet turf and prodigious punting by Oklahoma State's David Hanna and Mike Hubach of Kansas kept both teams at bay throughout most of the day. The game began under a heavy downpour but skies cleared midway through the first period leaving the artificial turf wet and treacherous.

After a scoreless second period, Oklahoma State's defensive end Mike Edwards tipped a fling pass aimed at Bill Campfield, juggled the ball momentarily, then danced 19 yards into the end zone for the Cowboys' second touchdown.

Miller, breaking free for his only long run of the day, burst over right tackle for 34 yards and OSU's clinching touchdown late in the fourth period.

Big Red wins - Hipp, Hipp hooray

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)— Running back I.M. Hipp scored key touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters Saturday to lead 18th-ranked Nebraska to a 33-15 Big Eight Conference football victory over 7th-ranked Colorado.

Hipp's second TD, from four yards out, and a one-yard scoring plunge by Dodie Donnell spelled defeat for the previously unbeaten Buffaloes before Nebraska's enthusiastic homecoming crowd.

Hipp picked up 172 yards on 31 carries for his fifth straight 100 yard plus performance.

NU turned key Buff turnovers into scores to earn a 16-15 come-from behind halftime lead.

Billy Todd's 42-yard field goal gave NU a 3-0 lead but Howard Ballage returned the ensuing kickoff 98 yards and Colorado led 7-3.

The Buffs led 15-3 after fullback James Mayberry tallied from the one in the second quarter. The drive began when the Buffs recovered a Husker fumble on NU's 20.

Todd's 46-yard field goal was the only third quarter score.

Colorado had rolled up five victories before settling for a 17-17 tie with Kansas last week.

The victory, which marked the Huskers' rebound from a 24-21 loss to Iowa State last week, gave Nebraska a 5-2 mark and a 2-1 conference record.

Sooners capture Big 8 lead

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Fullback Kenny King returned to the Oklahoma lineup Saturday and led the Sooners to a 35-16 victory over Iowa State as the Sooners took over sole possession of the Big Eight Conference lead.

King sat out last week's game against Missouri with a bruised shoulder but was healthy Saturday, and his presence made the difference in the Oklahoma wishbone attack. He rushed for 146 yards on 23 carries and continually got the Sooners out of deep holes with his slashing runs.

The Sooners elected to kick off to open the game, figuring they could stop the Cyclones and get good field position. That's what happened, but the Sooners were unable to move and on the next possession Iowa State scored on a 44-yard run by Dexter Green.

On the next possession, with King leading the way, the Sooners went 71 yards in seven plays for the tying touchdown. King gained 65 of those yards, but the score came on a six-yard run by David Overstreet.

From then until the middle of the third quarter it was a close see-saw battle as the two teams traded touchdowns, a five-yard run by Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott and a 12-yard pass by Cyclone quarterback Terry Rubley to Guy Preston. The Cyclones also had a safety when Oklahoma kicker Uwe von Schamann was tackled in the end zone while trying to punt.

But Oklahoma broke the Cyclones' back in the third quarter when free safety Zack Henderson picked off a Rubley pass in the end zone to stop a scoring drive and then halfback Freddie Nixon went 85 yards with a punt return to make it 28-16.

Oklahoma added its last touchdown on a nine-yard run by Lott late in the fourth quarter.

Gophers shut out Michigan

Sophomore quarterback Mark Carlson started his first game for Minnesota, completing 6 of 10 passes for 60 yards.

Rogind kicked field goals of 41 and 37 yards in the first half, and Marion Barber scored on a three-yard run to give Minnesota a 13-0 halftime lead.

Rogind added a 31-yard field goal with just over four minutes remaining in the game to complete the scoring.

Michigan fumbled four times, losing possession three times, while the unranked Gophers played mistake-free football and harassed Wolverine quarterback Rick Leach all afternoon, intercepting two passes in the final quarter.

Leach did set an all-time Michigan total offense record while gaining 122 yards. It gave him 3,727 career yards to break Don Moorhead's 1968-1970 record by 86 yards.

George Plimpton, in his book "One More July," discussed with former All-Pro center Bill Curry many aspects of the life of a professional football player.

In the fifth of six excerpts from that book, Plimpton and Curry discuss some the crazy things that happen in football.

By GEORGE PLIMPTON with BILL CURRY

We're getting close to Chicago now, another six hours to Green Bay, and we are talking about some of the stranger happenings in football. Like the time 40 NFL stars went to France one May to play a football game. Curry is telling us about it:

"By and large we had a terrific time. Of course, there were some problems. There was a bus strike going on and we couldn't get to a lot of our functions. People got upset and I was the guy whose phone always rang at two in the morning if somebody had been stranded somewhere. 'Hey, Curry?' 'What it is brother man?' 'How am I going to get back to the hotel?' 'Gosh, I don't know. I don't even know where you are.' 'Gyat-da*ham*, man. How come this bus ain't come to pick us up?' 'I don't know, I guess they're on strike.' Well, you know how tours are.

"We just went on having a good time until it came down to the football game. Of course, we couldn't play a real football game. Our insurance could not apply to a real contact-type game. But the promoter had promised that we would and he got the French excited enough to get it on national French television.

"I guess it looked a little like a football game. Because of the Olympics, Bob Hayes — who had won gold medals in the dashes — was really quite the toast of Paris while we were there — 'Le Bub' Hayes. So we had Pastorini throw Le Bub a couple of seventy-yarders for touchdowns, and they cheered. We had about 12,000 people there, which was capacity for the stadium. It was a good crowd. The ambassador was there.

"It was all programmed of course. The quarterback would come to the line of scrimmage and call out so everybody on both sides of the line could hear, 'Sweep right for eight yards.' So Tom Matte or someone would be assigned to run eight yards and then somebody'd come up and knock him down. Then the quarterback'd come up to the line and call out, 'Sweep left for a touchdown.'

"Jim Kiick, who was then playing for the Dolphins, was the one who was supposed to run for a touchdown. When the play started, I fired out on Willie Lanier and as I hit him he fell down and I fell on top of him. We lay there a minute. He lifted his head and kind of looked around to see what was happening. I asked, 'Has Kiick come by here?' He said, 'No; we'd better stay down here a minute.' It seemed like about ten seconds had passed. I said, 'Where the hell is Kiick?' About this time Kiick finally came running by us, people diving on the ground and missing him, and since he was tired out and looked like he was about to fall down himself, they were calling to him, 'Don't fall down, Kiick, you've got to go all the way!'

"So he kept dodging tacklers. A really great-looking run. He finally got into the end zone, but what had made it such a long run was that he had fumbled the hand-off; it had taken him about fifteen seconds to pick it up back there. In my case, it goes down in history as my greatest block on Willie Lanier. Might be the only time I ever blocked him!

"The huddles were a riot ... people laughing at each other so they could barely stand up. Big Ben Davidson got up a terrific act for the opening kickoff. He was the wedge-buster and he came running down, just flying down. Tom Keating was to block him, and they'd worked it out so that when Tom hit him below the knees, Big Ben would do these three great flips in the air and land on his head. The two could handle it because they're both in such great physical shape. Of course, the place went crazy when they did it.

"We had one anxious moment. We'd assigned 'Le Bub' Hayes to run a reverse and Alan Page forgot where he was. As Hayes cut back, Page really cut him down. Hayes was upset. He asked, 'What are you doing?' Alan said, 'I don't know, man. I forgot! I'm sorry. You were just there, I just didn't ...' "

The memory of the Paris game gets us on the subject of other crazy happenings and Bill brings up Tom Regner, a former Colt.

"Tom was a great storyteller. He told me about a quarterback he used to play with, Pete Beathard, who afterward played with Kansas City. Beathard used to get so nervous trying to call a play he would throw up in the huddle ... Tom's mimicry of Beathard was just great. He'd start calling his play, and then he'd begin to gag little by little, until he was literally vomiting the play from his mouth. Then up at the line of scrimmage, Tom, playing guard next to the center, Bobby Maples, said that he could hear Beathard trying to call out the cadence and continuing to lose his pregame meal on the back of Bobby Maples' jersey. I mean, I was always a little nervous before a game, but my gosh, I've never heard of anything like that.

"It reminded me of the time in Dallas when Cornelius Johnson, who was the guard for us on the Colts at that time, got a little overheated and threw up on Bob Lilly's hands. Lilly jumped up and hollered, you know, and drew his hands back. Just about that time we snapped the ball, went ahead, and ran the play, and Bob had the unfortunate distinction of being the only person standing up at the time. A year later when we went back to play Dallas, we came up over the ball, and Corny faked his illness this time, kind of belching a couple of times like he was gonna throw up, and Lilly jumped back and stood up again, apparently remembering what had happened the previous year."

This gets Bill going so now he's telling us Don Shinnick stories. Shinnick was a Colt linebacker who led the league for years in interceptions.

"The thing about Shinnick stories," Curry is saying, "is that you're better off telling lies about him because nobody believes the truth. Listen to this one. In 1968 we were in Yankee Stadium against the Giants. Shinnick had pulled a hamstring muscle — which was understandable because it was the only muscle in that body of his. But he had been healing for about four weeks and Shula wanted to give him a little play so he'd be ready for the playoffs. We were beating the Giants pretty bad. Shinnick didn't know he was going to be put in the game. With about four minutes left to play, Shula looked down the bench and he called out, 'Shinnick! Shinnick, get ready!'

"Well, Shinnick was standing there, having undone his belt buckle on his football pants and put the belt through his headgear. It was hanging there in front of him off his belt. He had a warm-up jacket on and he was eating a sandwich, standing there in the sun enjoying the game.

"When Shula began to yell, he stripped off his jacket. As he ran out onto the field he was trying to get his helmet off the belt without dropping his pants in front of sixty thousand people. When he finally got on the field, the Giants were just breaking the huddle. He got the defensive assignment from the middle linebacker, and as he lined up in front of the tight end, he discovered to his horror that he was still holding the sandwich in his hand. He turned and handed it to Roy Hilton, the defensive end. Roy turned next door and stuck it in the defensive tackle's — Freddy Miller's — hand. Why Freddy didn't just throw it on the ground I don't know, but with one hand down in his stance, he reached out with the other, wiggling it behind him to try to get the referee to take the sandwich. The referee stood there, you know, with his mouth hanging open."

"What finally happened to the sandwich?" I can't resist asking.

"Damned if I know," Curry answers. "Somebody probably ate it ... very likely Fred Miller, who was a big eater and had ahold of the sandwich anyway."

Underdog Colts facing 'crucial' game

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"Must-win" games don't usually come along this early in the season, and when they do, it's usually the coach of the underdog team labeling the game that way.

Not surprisingly, that's what the coach of the underdog is saying this time — but quite surprisingly, its Ted Marchibroda's undefeated Baltimore Colts who have been listed as the underdog for Sunday's game against the New England Patriots.

"It is a big game for us. It's a must game ... a crucial game," Marchibroda proclaims. His Colts sit atop the National Football League's American Conference East while the Patriots, staggering along most of this year season, are 3-2, trailing not only Baltimore but the surprising Miami Dolphins, too.

Despite the disparity in records, the Patriots are rated favorites by about a field goal, probably because the Colts have failed to really steamroller anybody this season (in their last game they beat winless Kansas City 17-6) while the Patriots have begun to put themselves together, upsetting San Diego 24-20 last weekend.

Sunday's other games are Seattle at Miami, Dallas at Philadelphia, Denver at Cincinnati, Oakland at the New York Jets, Cleveland at Buffalo, Houston at Pittsburgh, Atlanta at Chicago, Green Bay at Tampa Bay, the New York Giants at Washington, New Orleans at St. Louis, Detroit at San Francisco and Kansas City at San Diego. On Monday night it's Minnesota at Los Angeles.

New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks isn't concerned only about the Colts. He's got some long-distance worries. The Patriots play five straight games against division opponents.

The biggest matchup will be between the AFC's top pair of runners. Lydell Mitchell of the Colts has amassed 511 yards, just 29 ahead of the Pats' Sam "Bam" Cunningham.

Marchibroda is "very happy with the way the team has played so far. The teams we played have improved tremendously defensively from last year."

Last year the Colts and Patriots battled neck and neck all season, split their two games (Baltimore winning 27-13, New England rebounding 21-14) and wound up tied for first place with 11-3 records. The division title went to Baltimore by virtue of its better record against AFC foes — and both teams went out of the playoffs in the first round, the Colts clobbered by Pittsburgh 40-14 and the Pats edged by Oakland 24-21. The two teams were expected to slug it out for first place again this season but so far it's been no contest.

The Colts have a sort of passing interest (no pun intended) in the Seattle-Miami game. It's a sort of Baltimore alumni meeting between two former Colts assistants, now head coaches, Jack Patera of the Seahawks and Don Shula of the Dolphins.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An incurable flair for late dramatics, says St. Louis Coach Don Coryell, makes his Cardinals able to "turn anything into a game" in the National Football League.

Coryell's "Cardiac Cards" are therefore considered likely to keep their fans on the edges of their seats until the conclusion of their Sunday game against the New Orleans Saints.

St. Louis during its most recent in a series of nail-biting finishes, advanced its record to 2-3 after squandering most of a 21-3 lead and struggling to a 21-17 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

"We just can't do anything easy," a relieved Coryell later sighed last week. "We aren't good enough to overpower anybody. If we win by one point, I'm happy."

New Orleans, which is 1-4, is expected to challenge the Cardnals with an improved defense and an offense which clicked at the start of the season but has recently sputtered.

The Saints' losses in the last two weeks have been 14-0 to the San Diego Chargers and 14-7 to the Los Angeles Rams. But before that, quarterback Archie Manning ran for three touchdowns and passed for another in a 42-24 romp past the Chicago Bears.

Manning, New Orleans' oft-injured star, suffered a sprained ankle against the Rams and was replaced late in the game by Bobby Douglass. Manning's status at midweek was uncertain.

"I don't know how we can play a better and more intelligent game and not come away with a win," Saints Coach Hank Stram lamented following the defeat at Los Angeles. "When you give up no sacks, have no turnovers and do an excellent job on your special teams, you expect to win."

Prior to the setback, breakdowns along New Orleans' offensive line enabled San Diego to sack Manning eight times. More consistent have been Manning's 52.8 per cent passing and meager total of three interceptions. Still not up to its full potential is running headed by Chuck Muncie's 287 yards.

"Those 42 points they scored against the Bears proves they are a quality team," St. Louis' Coryell insists. "Archie Manning is an excellent quarterback, and he's got excellent runners behind him."

An upset by the Saints would rrepresent a triumphant return to Missouri for Stram, a former Kansas City Chiefs pilot who needs one more victory to tie Weeb Ewbank for seventh place among the NFL's all-time winningest coaches.

Also observing homecomings will be New Orleans fullback Tony Galbreath, an ex-University of Missouri standout whose 24 pass receptions rank second in the National Conference, and John Gilliam, a onetime Cards wide receiver.

That St. Louis can ill afford to lose is pointed up by the Cards' position in the NFC East behind the Dallas Cowboys, 5-0, and Washington Redskins, 3-2.

"We're backed into a corner. Our people know that," acknowledged Coryell. "It'll be tough, but that doesn't mean we can't do it...We'll make those playoffs."

MANILA (AP) — Japan took a 2-1 lead over Manila Saturday in the second round of the Eastern Zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

Ken Hirai and Shigeyuki Nishio of Japan beat Manuel Valleramos of the Philippines 5-7, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2 in doubles Saturday. The two remaining singles matches will be played Sunday.

K.C. Chiefs pin hopes on Adams

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The winless Kansas City Chiefs will gamble on a new quarterback and a former star running back when they invade San Diego Stadium in a National Football League game against the Chargers Sunday.

Kickoff time is 3 p.m. CDT.

Coach Paul Wiggin, whose Chiefs are the only American Conference team at 0-5, will start former World Football League passing leader Tony Adams while 10-year veteran Mike Livingston watches from the sidelines.

Adams, a 27-year-old former Charter draftee from Utah State, says he's "fortunate to be in this position. I'm looking forward to it. At this stage, our team just needs something new. Hopefully, I can provide that."

Wiggin also has former Green Bay Packer star John Brockington, recently signed by Kansas City as a free agent to replace the injured MacArthur Lane.

Brockington was the first NFL running back to gain over 1,000 yards in his first three years, but gained less than 500 the past two seasons.

The optimistic Wiggin shrugs off last week's 17-6 loss to undefeated Baltimore, which saw the Chiefs' defense surrender a season-low 241 yards.

The Chargers, 3-2, lost 24-20 last week to New England. Tommy Prothro, in his fourth year as San Diego coach, said the team had "fine practices" this week, marred only by the aggravation of wide receiver Johnny Rodgers' hamstring injury, which has sidelined him for most of the last three games.

Rodgers has been receiving acupuncture treatments, which he claims are helping somewhat. Prothro disagrees. therapy. "I don't encourage it, but I don't care. I don't think it's helped him much."

With the exception of Rodgers, the Chargers are healing.

"Mike Williams is getting better; Ray Preston is getting better," Prothro said, "and I was amazed that Billy Shields (who has a lower back injury) could come out for practice."

While Kansas City's offense has lacked consistency, it was newcomer Brockington who scored the Chiefs' only touchdown against Baltimore on a one-yard run. Running back Tony Reed, with 306 yards on 63 carries, continues as the AFC's leading rookie rusher.

The Chargers' stingy defense faltered for the first time this season in last week's game against the Patriots, but against the pass, they're still rated No. 1 in the conference.

'Strongman' blocks Spinks' title path

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Minnesota farm boy Scott LeDoux proved to be the first roadblock in Olympic champion Leon Spinks' path toward a title shot Saturday when the two heavyweights slugged their way to a 10-round draw in a nationally televised bout.

But little brother Mike Spinks, also a gold medal-winner at Montreal, and "Big John" Tate, who won a bronze medal in the Olympics, kept their records spotless. Mike Spinks scored an eight-round unanimous decision over Gary Summerhays, and Tate knocked out Lou Esa in the third round of their scheduled six-rounder.

The big fight of the day, however, was the Leon Spinks-LeDoux matchup, because LeDoux is the first "strongman" to face Spinks in his young pro career.

Spinks, now 5-0-1, was at marked disadvantage in experience and weight. LeDoux, 21-6-2, weighed in at 224 pounds, while Spinks, a light heavyweight in Olympic competition, came in at just 194.

Although there were no knockdowns in the fight, LeDoux and Spinks began trading heavy blows early, with LeDoux smashing lefts into Spinks' midsection and Spinks retalitating with hard rights and flurries to the head.

Readers are all behind Bakke

Readers of The Democrat-Capital who responded to last Sunday's Sound Off question left no doubt about it — 11 out of the 12 who answered believe a white California college entrance applicant was the target of reverse discrimination. However, only four of them offered written opinions.

The question asked: "The Supreme Court is now studying the Bakke 'reverse discrimination' case, in which Allan Bakke claims he was denied admission to a California medical school in favor of less-qualified minorities. Based on what you know of this case, do you think Bakke should win?"

A Lincoln reader who did not wish to be identified wrote: "Any discrimination by race, age or sex is in violation of the law of the land. It was shocking to learn a California university was violating this law. The best qualified persons and only the best should be considered for doctors, with no discrimination of either race or sex."

Another reader who didn't want to be named wrote, "If our social system decrees that an individual should have priority just because he is a member of a minority group, isn't it really saying that individual isn't intellectually capable of competing on an equal basis? It seems this attitude offers no inducement for study or work. Why put forth honest effort if already assured of the prize?"

And another unsigned letter said, "Yes, I do think he should win, but I seriously doubt if he will. From what I know, black leaders say that if Mr. Bakke wins, it will set back civil rights 20 years. I really don't think that will happen, but I do think it will leave it wide open for discrimination to continue where it exists, and to begin where it does not exist. What we need is some happy medium. I don't know what the answer is, but there has to be something between the two extremes.

"Because, when we have a student who has a very high academic point average, who is denied to pursue his career because of his color, and another student is admitted to the same institution because of his color and has a lower academic point average, it is discrimination. And there's nothing 'reverse' about it. Black or white, red or yellow, it's just plain old discrimination. And that's wrong," the letter said.

And finally this view: "I think Allan Bakke should win. If we don't see to it that our best qualified people are educated, soon we will have second-class professional men and women. Assuming that less qualified people are admitted to medical schools, it follows that teachers will be reluctant to flunk these privileged students. So — some day you and I might have to put our lives and those of our children into the hands of second-class doctors," it said.

Rules are revised

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Board of Education has revised its regulations governing special education programs in public schools.

Among the major revisions approved at the board meeting on Friday was the requirement that public school officials obtain the consent of parents before a child can be evaluated for possible handicaps.

The new regulations are aimed at insuring due process for handicapped students and providing state reimbursement for the excess costs of transporting handicapped pupils.

"Along with these changes, the special education regulations have been greatly condensed and simplified," said Education Commissioner Arthur Mallory. "The volume of existing rules has been cut nearly in half.

This is part of a concerted effort by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education to simplify the regulatory burden imposed upon local schools."

The board also revised the method of calculating state aid to schools for summer school and parttime enrollments in light of the new formula for distributing state aid to schools.

Those changes will provide a moderate increase in state aid for schools offering summer classes and permit school districts to count parttime students in calculating their state aid allotments for the first time.

The revised regulations, which officials said "may encourage more districts to provide summer school classes, also give schools more flexibility in organizing those classes. Beginning next year classes may range from 120 to 240 hours in length rather than the minimum 160 hours required in the past to be counted for aid purposes.

Strong call for one church heard

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The moderator of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) issued a strong call for unity Friday night at a service in Kansas City opening the general assembly of the church.

"We want to continue our struggle to become church rather than churches," the Rev. James A. Moak told about 8,000 persons. "(We want) to affirm that we want to be more than an association of somewhat congenial, middle-class congregations, more than loosely-held-together batches of special interest groups of believers, that we want to be more than religious alumni associations."

The leader of the 1.3-million member denomination said, "We cannot be empowered and converted by God from our tribalism into the universal body of Christ."

Speaking on the theme of the six-day convention, "Empowered by Love," Dr. Moak said that those attending the assembly want to be empowered by the love of God to become what He wants them to be and to do what He wants them to do.

The biennial general assembly will consider a wide range of topics — from homosexuality to gun control and U.S.-China relations — when about 12,000 church members gather in Kansas City today for the first business meeting.

The church, which has its strongest following in the Midwest and South, will be considering preliminary proposals for a merger with the United Church of Christ.

There are four items on the agenda regarding homosexuality, including a study paper that raises questions about biblical condemnation of homosexuality and recommends further study.

The general board of the church has recommended approval of the study paper and a separate proposal for an end to discrimination against homosexuals. The board recommended disapproval of a resolution that labels homosexual acts as sinful, saying the resolution is premature in light of the proposed study paper. The board also recommended delay until 1979 of a resolution opposing the ordination of homosexuals.

Among the other items to be considered by the general assembly:

—A resolution urging an equitable and comprehensive national health care system to "assure quality care at controlled cost."

—A proposal to monitor television programs in an effort to reduce violence on television.

—A recommendation that women, who now hold only 20 pastorates in the church, be considered for employment equally with men.

Want town moved

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The 325 residents of flood-prone Clinchport, Va., want to keep their community together and are asking the Tennessee Valley Authority to move the entire town five miles.

"TVA is basically buying the town to get the people out of the flood plain," Lee Boggs, exeuctive director of the Scott County, Va., Redevelopment Authority, said Friday.

The request to relocate the town on a county-owned 90-acre tract near Duffield, Va., is scheduled to come up at the TVA's board of directors meeting next Thursday.

Some TVA officials have said the project would cost about $2 million.

A delegation from Clinchport appeared before the TVA board in July in a preliminary request for help after 10 of the town's 100 homes were destroyed and another 58 were heavily damaged by flooding last April.

Judi Crabtree, a Clinchport school teacher, said the flooding of the Clinch River in April marked the fourth time in 60 years.

"We want to keep our community together," she said. "We're all very close to each other."

Mrs. Crabtree said many of the towns' citizens are retired while the others commute to work in Bristol or Kingsport, about 10 miles to the south across the Virginia-Tennessee line.

The residents made a similar request in 1973, asking TVA to either build a dam on the Clinch River to control the flooding or to help in relocating the town. However, TVA officials said a cost-benefit study did not justify the project then.

TVA Chairman Aubrey Wagner has said the agency would try to find the funds to help move the incorporated town to an area where the residents would be safe from flooding.

Sedalian takes to sky in do-it-yourself plane

By RON JENNINGS
Staff Writer

"It's, ugh, tight quarters, but if you slide down right, you can j-u-u-st make it," grunted George Goodier, 2613 Plaza, while squeezing his frame into the small cockpit of the Experimental. "You've just got to take it easy."

The Experimental? It seemed almost blasphemous, Goodier agreed, to besmirch such a romantic contraption with this laboratory label. And yet the Federal Aviation Administration would have it no other way. And if that weren't enough, the FAA also ruled there wasn't enough room for Goodier to build a small t-hangar at his home airport to house his $1,200 "Sunday-afternoon-cruise-around-Sedalia" plane.

But, he said last week with a dash of devil-may-care defiance worthy of Rickenbacker himself, there's one thing the FAA, or even the CIA, couldn't stop him from doing — building his plane himself, step by steady step, over the past 10 years.

For Goodier, the culmination to a decade of careful tinkering and crowded basements came this summer when he took his first short flight at the Warrensburg Municipal Airport, where his plane is kept.

Do-it-yourself flying

It was a long way from the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk, but, "We felt like old Orville and Wilbur ourselves," recalled Goodier's ace advisor and confidant Jimmy Baumgardner, as he helped wheel the Experimental from the crowded hangar. "Yep, it was quite a trip we took turns takin'."

"Everything went smooth, except the plane was just a shade tail-heavy at the very first," Goodier broke in. "We had to reset the horizontal stabilizer just a quarter-inch and then it flew perfectly."

The compact "rag" plane, so named because its spruce and plywood frame is covered with a skin-tight wrapping of dacron, looks like a throwback to those heady, "aeroplane" days of baling wire, bubble gum and barnstorming.

How to best describe Goodier's single-prop pride and joy? Beginning with the basics, it is 18 feet, 10½ inches long and 6 feet, 11 inches high. It weighs 605 pounds empty and can carry up to 925 pounds including a full fuel tank and passenger. It has a wingspan of 28 feet, a fuel capacity of around 16 gallons and a cruising speed of some 90 miles per hour.

Of course, such statistics are necessarily incomplete — for the Experimental isn't just a plane; it's a literally soaring symbol of what can happen when a man's heart, head and hands are inspired to excellence.

Goodier started flying in the late 1940s while attending Arkansas Tech at Russellville and then honed his skills by flying jets in the Air Force. It had been years since his last flight, however, when he passed a few idle minutes in 1966 by browsing through an aviation magazine. He eyes drew quickly to an article about an aircraft engineer who had won a $1,000 prize by submitting the best plans for a plane that could be inexpensively hand-made. He sent off for the plans.

What he got back for $25 was a set of plans "which set it all out in black-and-white," Goodier said. "All you had to do was work hard and follow the directions carefully."

If he had pushed himself, Goodier said, he conceivably could have built his plane in about half the time it finally took him. Of course, he pointed out, "If I'd gone at it like that, I probably would have ended up chucking the whole thing. This way, it was just my hobby, so to speak; something I could putter around with just when I wanted to."

As the years rolled by, Goodier built the wings and tail section in his basement and the fuselage in this garage. The relaxed routine, however, wasn't the only thing that caused delays. There was also the matter of getting parts. Although he belonged to the Experimental Aircraft Association, there was no EAA chapter nearby so Goodier had to scrounge for parts. Sometimes a particular piece turned up in two weeks; other times, it took two months.

Although parts were often hard to come by, expert help wasn't. Sedalians who assisted Goodier included the late Dale Lane, former manager of the Sedalia Airport; George Hazel and Pat Moriarity. Friends from Warrensburg, in addition to Baumgardner, included Greg Buschmaster and Dr. Denzil Swiger. Former Sedalian Leroy Young was also a big help, Goodier said.

When Goodier finally assembled the finished plane early this year, he towed it by trailer to Central Missouri State University last March. Here, aviation students took the Experimental apart and then put it painstakingly back together again. After it was re-assembled and approved by the FAA (There were only a very few minor discrepancies which were easily corrected.), Buschmaster, Baumgardner and Goodier each took a turn in the cockpit on that exhilirating first day of flight.

Despite being a homemade project, his plane is safe, Goodier says. If they weren't, he indicated, he wouldn't ever climb inside one.

"You know, we had a saying in the Air Force," he chuckled.

"There are old pilots and bold pilots, but there are not any old, bold pilots.' Well, I plan on growing old."

Cyclist discovers agony in achievement

By ADOLPHE V. BERNOTAS

HAMPTON, N.H. (AP) — The next morning my ankle was swollen. My knees and thighs hurt so much I could hardly climb stairs. My knuckles were so numb I could barely make a fist.

For two days I felt like an old man.

But I also swelled with pride because I earned what I consider an Olympic Gold Medal — the "Law National Century" patch. It certifies I rode a bicycle 100 miles within 12 hours.

It's child's play for some cyclists. The Los Angeles Wheelmen, for instance, ride "quads" — 400 miles in 24 hours. But my century is a personal achievement.

Cycling clubs across America ride their centuries in autumn. My club, the 250-member Granite State Wheelmen, planned its century along the Atlantic Coast, touching parts of Maine, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

The League of American Wheelmen requires completion of a century in 12 hours. My club's self-imposed limit is 10 hours.

I rode my first century in the best and worst 9½ hours of my life.

I am 36, and six months ago I was 60 pounds overweight. I decided to make a physical comeback, resumed active cycling, joined Weight Watchers and did aerobics excercises at the YMCA.

Four months later and 60 pounds lighter, I was cycling even more. I began anticipating autumn — and the century.

In finest cycling clothes — even socks endorsed by Eddy Merckx, the Belgian millionaire professional, cycling's Joe Namath — and on the best stock machine money could buy, I was the first rider out from Hampton.

The route went north about 30 miles to Ogunquit, Maine; then south, 50 miles to Newburyport and Plum Island, Mass., where it turned back the final 17 miles to Hampton.

The temperature, according to the tiny thermometer on my bike, was 59 degrees and, mercifully, it didn't rise above 71. The early morning fog condensed in my beard and on my eyeglasses.

I cycled the first 12 miles along U.S 1A in 45 minutes — too fast a pace, as I later regretted. I was king of the road as I rolled along the fog-hidden beach and surf, past the seagulls, fishermen, lobster boats and beachcombers.

I cycled into the island community of New Castle, which looks much the way it did in the early 1700s. From New Castle, I pedaled into Portsmouth's Strawberry Banke, also a museum of colonial America, across Memorial Bridge over the Piscataqua River into Kittery, Maine, enjoying the sun as it burned away the fog.

The beachplums in York were past their prime. The leaves ever so subtly had begun to turn to their autumn hues. On one downhill, I easily outcoasted an acorn that fell from a roadside oak and rolled down the pavement.

From Ogunquit I pedaled back south on U.S. 1, a treacherous road with too much traffic and rough shoulders. By mile 38, other cyclists started catching up — and passing me.

Back in Kittery, the century's half-way point, a 17-year-old who started 90 minutes behind me zoomed by as if he were on a motorcycle.

Back at Strawbery Banke's formal flower garden, I treated myself to a 20-minute rest, yogurt, walnuts and raisins, and a bottle of salt-replenishing drink.

My bad ankle, crushed in a car wreck in college days, became uncomfortable. The saddle grew harder. I shifted to lower gears. Stronger cyclists — old, young, male and female — passed me steadily.

I made it back to headquarters, 65.7 miles finished. The autumn day had lost its hue. I did not want to continue.

Roy Marshall, 51 and still a racer, urged me on. "Thirty miles? You can do that standing on your head." Maybe on my head, but hardly on my sore seat. Should I settle for a half-century? No. I pushed on.

By Massachusetts, my left knee was aflame, neck and shoulders hurting, left arm numb.

At 77 miles, I considered cheating, taking a shortcut to save a few miles. But conscience, pride and the other cyclists kept me honest.

At mile 78, the rear tire blew, a welcome catastrophe. Destruction of a $38 Italian silk sew-up is infuriating, but this time the forced stop provided blessed rest.

I pushed lower and lower gears. More cyclists passed. On Plum Island, I passed a closed comfort station — and stopped anyway.

Seventeen miles left, all pure pain. Stronger cyclists rode in front of the file to cut into the wind for the stragglers.

I could not keep up. In Seabrook, I propped myself against a traffic light for a minute's rest. It seemed I was there hours. I never would have believed it possible to be numb and in pain simultaneously.

In a very low gear, slowly, deliberately, revolution by revolution, I cranked through Hampton Beach, past the seawall and to the intersection where I remembered leaving headquarters.

I was wrong. The end was at the next intersection, another quarter-mile.

Yard by yard, I wobbled in — 100.1 miles, farther than I had ever imagined.

The memory of my adventure recalls the pride — and the pain. Nevertheless, there's a double century next year ... perhaps a climb to 6,288-foot Mount Washington.

Jolson poster is removed

NEW YORK (AP) — A poster depicting Al Jolson in blackface has been removed from post offices around the country following complaints that it was insulting to blacks.

The poster, distributed to 5,000 major post offices, including eight in New York City, was designed to publicize a commemorative stamp marking the 50 years of talking pictures since Jolson's "The Jazz Singer" first appeared in 1927.

"It wasn't the kind of thing you try to defend or argue with," said Ronald McDowell, manager of stamp development for the U.S. Postal Service. "We found that we had offended people and we responded just that way."

The stamps show a drawing of a 1927-vintage movie projector. The poster, 30 inches by 40 inches in size, shows the black-faced Jolson with whitegloved hands spread wide. Above him appear the words: "You ain't heard nothin' yet!"

Base getting ready for mock problems

KNOB NOSTER — Whiteman Air Force Base will conduct its annual "attack response exercise" from 5 a.m. to 12 p.m. Oct. 31. The purpose of the exercise is to test the ability of the base to perform its mission under emergency conditions.

Base agencies and individuals will have to cope with many simulated problems, such as mass casualties, fires, vehicle accidents, sabotage and so on.

It was also pointed out that residents in area communities should not be alarmed by sirens or unusual activities.

The Missouri Public Service Co. announced the other day that it was not accepting any new requests for natural gas hookups in its southern gas system. Besides Sedalia, Marshall and Clinton in this area are among the 12 cities affected.

But before you get mad at MPS, understand that it is only abiding by a ruling from the Federal Power Commission (now the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission) affecting its natural gas supplier, the Cities Service Gas Co. Last month the commission told Cities Service it could not sell any more additional natural gas after Jan. 1.

What is curious about this order is that it came at a time when Cities Service Co.'s natural gas supplies had been greatly boosted by recent discoveries of fields in Wyoming. This has roughly doubled the company's reserves.

Locally, MPS reports that about 80 applications for new natural gas connections were on hand before the cutoff order went into effect last week. These connections will be made. Beyond that, if you were planning on using natural gas in your home or business, better think again — at least until things can be untangled.

That won't be easy. Rehearings on Cities Service Co.'s objections are not even scheduled by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission until next April. Right now the situation is so indefinite that MPS feels it has no alternative but to stop taking natural gas applications, since it faces the possibility of heavy cost penalties should it exceed its quota.

All of this is an object lesson in the sheer lunacy of having Washington call the shots on who can and can't get natural gas in Missouri. The whole business is outrageous.

If this is a foretaste of how efficiently the federal energy policy is going to work, we can only regret that the Senate didn't finish it off entirely.

Country is choking on rules, regulations

By JACK ANDERSON
and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Legislative bodies at all levels — federal, state and local — enact an estimated 150,000 laws each year. On the average, each new law will require the issuance of 10 regulations. The end result of all this is growth beyond control or comprehension of government regimentation in the United States.

Add to this regulatory entanglement the voluntary standards which are accepted by industries and often adopted by the government. These technical, eye-straining codes determine such details of commerce as the width of tires, space between struts of children's playpens and impact resistance of football helmets.

Even the indomitable Superman has been bound up by the Lilliputians who write the regulations. His derring-do is carefully prescribed by the comic book industry's code of conduct, which mandates that good must triumph over evil. Thus Superman must go on, page after page, overpowering the bad guys who are doomed in advance to defeat.

Every private enterprise of any consequence is now ensnarled in red tape. For the federal government alone, businesses had to prepare 114 million forms last year.

It is the genius of the free economy that it does not require the innovator to secure the permission of organized society to launch his schemes. If he can get a few speculators to bankroll him, he is on his way — free to create if he can. If he succeeds, the rewards for him are spectacular and society shares in the gain. If he fails, only he and his improvident backers are the losers.

But the difficulty is getting an innovative proposal, or even a routine one, past all those regulations. The rigid observance of rules and procedures requires the interminable seeking of permission for any divergence. Kept within its proper sphere, such rigidity is beneficient. Imposed upon society at large, it results in stagnation, which ends in putrifaction.

The goverment clerk seated in his cubicle pondering an application and deciding it runs afoul of regulations is getting a stranglehold upon us. But so gently, prosaically, gradually and invisibly does he tighten his clutches that we never appreciate the extent to which we are in his grip.

We protest only the inconveniences the bureaucrat imposes upon us — the late letter, the length of government lines. This finesse, this capacity to narcotize, makes possible feats of domination unimaginable to Charlemagne or Napoleon.

There are benevolent bureaucrats who protect the public and restrict the predators with fairness and restraint. There are also relentless and rapacious bureaucrats who harass the citizens they are supposed to serve. And finally, there are reluctant regulators who befriend the lawyers and lobbyists of the industries they regulate.

It is not unusual for regulatory agencies to adopt the standards that the industries impose upon themselves. These standards are seldom subjected to the rigorous evaluation that goes into developing government regulations. They are often vague, with no provisions for oversight.

The voluntary standards are coordinated by the American National Standards Institute, a nonprofit federation of 985 private professional, scientific and trade groups. One government expert told Senate investigators that ANSI standards appeared "to be written by persons who primarily represent the business interest of their own company or industry."

SUCCESS FORMULA — Many hospitals are being deluged with free bottles of infant formula by the two giant corporations that dominate the market.

Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs, which sell about 85 per cent of all infant formula in the United States, have been sending truckloads of free samples to the nation's larger hospitals to influence new mothers. Admitted a Bristol-Myers spokesman: "Obviously mothers are impressed with a product they receive from a hospital."

But the hospitals are getting so much free formula that they have had to rotate between each company's freebies. So the firm's promotion men, who visit hospitals as often as once a week, have had to offer other inducements, such as free architectural consulting work, symposiums and speakers.

Spokesmen for both firms told our reporter, Warren Fiske, that their promotion practices are a "public service." But they refused to tell us how much they spend on promotion or what other inducements they offer.

Two years ago, however, a small company named Baker Beechnut sued the two corporations for unfair competition and antitrust violations. Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs settled the suit by paying large sums to their tiny rival.

Judicial legislation is blasted in book

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Now and then a book comes along, so stunning in its impact upon society that it finds its own place in the political and social history of a period. Such a book has just come to hand. It is Raoul Berger's Government by Judiciary.

Kilpatrick.

In bell-like tones that ring with a scholar's authority, Berger exposes and denounces the trend toward judicial usurpation of political power. He charges the Warren Court with effectively amending the Constitution in the school segregation and reapportionment cases. He concludes with a fervent plea for a turning back to old principles of judicial restraint.

In one sense, there is nothing much here that is new. Twenty years ago, at the peak of controversy over Brown v. Board of Education, hundreds of Southern lawyers, scores of Southern editors, and even one Southern justice, James Byrnes of South Carolina, said very much the same things. Dozens of pamphlets appeared, expounding the intention of the framers of the Fourteenth Amendment. In 1957, I myself wrote a book, "The Sovereign States," arguing the very case that Berger argues now.

Our Dixie fulminations fell upon deaf ears. In those days it was automatically assumed that any Southerner who attacked the court was not truly opposed to usurpation of power; he was opposed only to integration of schools.

No such taint attaches to Berger. Born in Russia in 1901, he came to the United States and was naturalized as a child. He took up the study of the violin with such skill that in his twenties he soloed with the Cleveland Orchestra and became assistant concertmaster in Cincinnati. Then he turned to the law and fashioned a brilliant second career in both federal service and private practice. In 1970, he went to Harvard as a senior fellow in American legal history. He gained national attention in 1974 as a leading authority on presidential impeachment.

Government by Judiciary crowns Professor Berger's distinguished career. It is not the easiest reading of the autumn. Freighted with 1,600 footnotes, the text does not race, but rather chugs to its inevitable conclusion. The railroad metaphor is not bad. Berger's thesis cannot be sidetracked; he gathers momentum as he goes along; and his scholarship packs the massive authority of a locomotive.

Berger is not the first legal historian to sift the debates of the 39th Congress, searching for the meaning of the Reconstruction Amendments, but his meticulous examination of the evidence stands in a class by itself. Neither is he the first law professor to emphasize the importance of determining the "intention of the framers." A century ago, Thomas McIntyre Cooley of Michigan termed intention "the very polestar" of constitutional construction.

Berger's gift is to bring it all together. He finds "no trace of an intention" in the records of the 39th Congress to indicate that the Fourteenth Amendment was intended to encroach upon state control of schools and suffrage. Members of the Warren majority, in his view, simply imposed their own notions of decency and fairness upon the Constitution. Earl Warren himself did not merely "shape" the law: "He upended it; he revised the Fourteenth Amendment to mean exactly the opposite of what its framers designed it to mean."

"When the judiciary substitutes its own value choices for those of the people," says Berger, "it subverts the Constitution by usurpation of power." He poses a sobering question: "How long can public respect for the court, on which its power ultimately depends, survive if the people become aware that the tribunal which condemns the acts of others as unconstitutional is itself acting unconstitutionally?"

It is too late, Berger concedes, to roll back the segregation decisions. "That is more than the courts should undertake and more, I believe, than the American people would desire." But he pleads for a fresh start: "The judges might begin by curbing their reach for still more policymaking power."

"I assert the right," says Berger, "to look at the Constitution itself, stripped of judicial incrustations, as the index of constitutional law and to affirm that the Supreme Court has no authority to substitute an 'unwritten Constitution' for the written Constitution the Founders gave us and the people ratified."

The polite sport of football

WASHINGTON — If there is anything that really bugs me it is watching a pro football game with a foreigner. I had the experience last week. My friend was visiting from London with his wife, and they both seemed very excited about seeing their first American football game on television.

Buchwald

It happened to be the Redskin-Dallas game, and for a Redskin fan I knew it wasn't going to be much fun. The game started out all right, but before long it got rather bloody. This is when they both started asking questions.

"Is the object of the game to injure as many players on the other team as possible?" the husband asked.

"No, that is not the object of the game," I said.

The wife said, "Do you get more points for breaking a man's leg or his neck?"

"You don't get points for breaking either his leg or his neck. You get penalized for it."

"Oh," said the husband. "What is the penalty?"

"Your team is penalized 15 yards."

"Do you mean to say that if you break an opponent's leg, you only get 15 yards against you?"

"What do you think he should get?" I said, trying to hold my temper.

"In England I believe it's three years in prison," the wife replied.

"It's a game!" I said. "The men who play expect to have their legs broken. That's what makes it so exciting."

"Of course," said the husband. "One must expect injuries."

"I didn't see anyone get hurt," the wife said. "Why is there a penalty?"

"Because one of our men was holding one of their men."

"What is the penalty for that?"

"Ten yards."

"Do you mean to say, if you hold a man the team loses 10 yards, but if you break his leg you are penalized only 15 yards?" the wife asked.

I was beginning to lose my patience. "That is correct. In football, holding is almost as serious as breaking someone's leg."

"Of course," the husband said. "It does make sense when you explain it."

"That's not permitted," I said.

"Then why doesn't someone do something about it?"

"No one saw it," I replied.

"Everyone on television must have seen it," she said.

"The referee didn't see it. If he had, he would have called a personal foul."

"Which means the player would be thrown out of the game?" the husband asked.

"Of course not. You don't get thrown out of the game for slugging another player. If that happened you wouldn't be able to have a pro football game. The thrill of football for a player is to hit an opponent and not get caught doing it."

"How long is he permitted to lie on the field," the husband asked, "without being penalized?"

"As long as he wants to. When a man is seriously injured, we even permit a doctor to treat him."

"How civilized," the wife said.

I couldn't keep my temper in any longer. "What do you think we are — barbarians?"

"Quite," the husband said.

Philippines regime is blasted by report

NEW YORK (AP) — A church-funded, international legal inquiry into government in the Philippines, once considered a far-eastern outpost of democracy, finds that it is unjustifiably continuing martial law and trampling human rights.

The regime has kept hundreds in jail for long periods without trial, condoned torture, harassed churches, suspended parliament and restricted speech the press and the courts, the report says.

It says the "principal and most effective opposition" to the military rule has come from leaders of the Roman Catholic Church, bringing it particularly under attack, including suppression of its outlets, arrests and threats.

The report was drawn up by a three-member team of the International Commission of Jurists of Geneva, Switzerland, in a study funded by the National Council of Churches, made up of U.S. Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Commission law experts, who made three trips to the Philippines, concluded that President Marcos has kept martial law in force, not primarily for national security as claimed, but to perpetuate his "personal power" and that of the military.

Under martial law imposed five years ago, on Sept. 21, 1972, the president "rules by decree," the report says, adding:

"There is no legislature, no elections, and very little judicial review. The people are not allowed to choose their representatives. Citizens languish in jail without charge.... Military authority is supreme."

The inquiry team of the international commission, made up of lawyers and judges, included attorney William J. Butler of New York, chairman of the commission's executive committee; attorney G.E. Bisson, head of the commission's New Zealand section, and law professor John P. Humphrey of Canada, former director of the United Nations human rights division.

As for the occasional "referenda" ordered by President Marcos, resulting in "apparent approval" of his rule, the report says they were held under such conditions that "they cannot be considered a true expression of the will of the people."

They all were carried out when "all legitimate opposition to the government by way of the press, radio and television was totally silenced," when opposition leaders either were in prison or in fear of prosecution, and when voting allegedly was "influenced by the presence of military personnel at the polling booths," the report says.

It says that since the inception of martial law, the government has arrested about 60,000 people, most of them eventually released, but with the government conceding about 4,000 still are under detention, 1,400 called "subversive detainees." Some have been held five years without charge or trial, the report says.

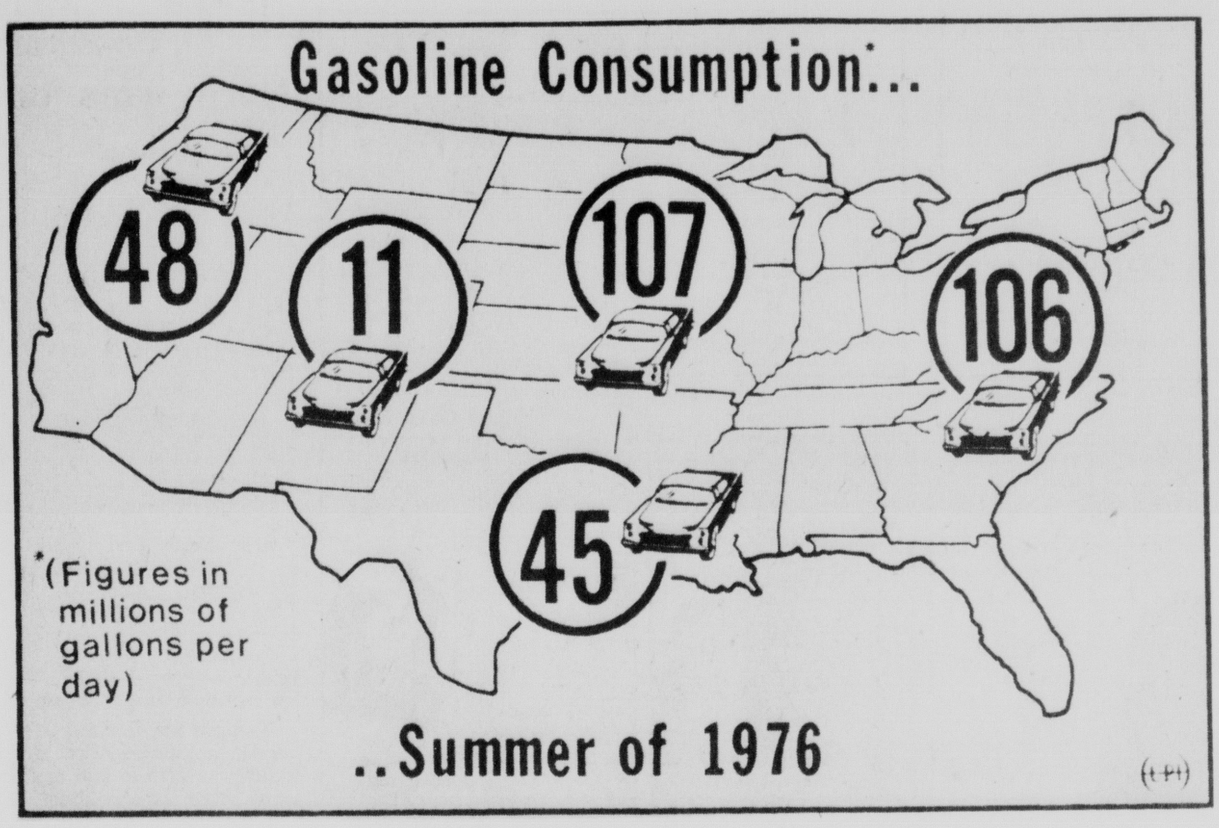
INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — A 43-year-old Independence man was electrocuted Friday night as he attempted to put a citizens band radio antenna on his house.

Jerald Chandler was found about 7:15 p.m. lying on the ground near the south side of his house. He was pronounced dead at a local hospital.

Chandler was lying on his back about three feet from the house with the antenna across his body, authorities said. He apparently came in contact with nearby power lines as he attempted to place the antenna on the house, they added.



Where the gas got guzzled

Licensed American drivers last summer consumed an average of 2.3 gallons of gas a day, government figures show. The highest regional consumption was recorded in the heavily populated East and North-central states, which averaged 106 million and 107 million gallons a day respectively. The chart shows consumption by areas.

Liverpool is not keen about Beatle statue

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — The Beatles may have put Liverpool on the map by dominating pop music for more than a decade, but that doesn't mean they're necessarily going to have a monument built to them.

The City Council's General Services Committee voted 11-9 Wednesday night against erecting a monument to the four Liverpool natives.

"In my opinion they're not worthy of a place in our history," said city councillor Roy Stoddard, 59, explaining his negative vote.

Another city father, Tony McVeigh, who also voted no, said, "They ended up taking drugs and bringing discredit to the city."

The issue now goes to the full council, which numbers 99 including the lord mayor.

John Chambers, 29, an unemployed ship's carpenter and head of an unofficial group of Beatles fans, launched an appeal for $31,500 to build the monument and is organizing a series of rock concerts to help raise the money. An anonymous London businessman has offered to start a fund with $875.

Football fan

By ERMA BOMBECK

I wouldn't have put it in quite that way. In fact, I have experienced greater "emotional highs" getting a piece of dental floss caught in my teeth.

Psychologically speaking, men have a lot of reasons for enjoying a football game. They act out their repressions, live vicariously through their heroes, experience renewal and feel like "one of the gang."

To me, it's a two-and-a-half hour sedative. The way I see it, a football stadium is the one spot left in the world where a fan can enjoy diplomatic immunity from (a) being arrested for being drunk and disorderly (b) charged for making obscene calls to the players and coaches and (c) committed to a home for standing on a seat in the driving rain, waving a thermos in the air and shouting, "You're getting on my nerves, Ricky!"

Happily, I have learned to busy myself at games and try to have a good time in spite of all the noise and those little knee-grabbers running up and down the field. Among some of my more provocative games are:

The Fashion Alphabet: Two women alternate with naming a style worn by another woman in the stands from Accordian pleats and Blouses to Yokes and Zippers. The first woman who can't come up with a style for the letter has to be penalized by watching the game until a first down is made.

The Hot Dog, Cola Caper: Disguising your voice, you yell down an order of a hot dog and cola to the vender at the end of the the row. Without an eye leaving the game, people will pass it down an entire row of 138 people. When it gets to the end, pass it back to the next row and see how many rows that hot dog and cola will cover.

Restroom Touchdown: Using strategy, experience, and perseverance, see if you can effectively get a play to work that actually gets you into the restroom before the game is over.

Stump The Fans In The Stands: Establish a pool of what it is the band is trying to spell out on the playing field. (I once correctly identified a tuba player as an anchovy on a field of pizza and won $8.)

Woman's intolerance to football is not going to kill the game. Football ... like head colds and Doris Day will be with us forever.

But an emotional high? As I told my husband when he announced the game was going into overtime and I began to cry, "This is as emotional as I get!"

We have just decided to establish a "Jacoby Silence is Golden" award to that bridge player who remains silent under the greatest provocation.

West held the first trick with the jack of hearts and promptly shifted to a low trump.

South won in his hand and led a second heart. Back came a second trump and South had to lose a third heart and a club.

"What could I have done?" complained South. "The defense was too good."

North could have said any number of things starting with the mild suggestion that South would have made his contract. If he had led a small club and played low from dummy instead of that heart, all the defense could do would be to cash a second heart to keep South from making an overtrick.

Or North could have said something stronger such as "Play bridge!" or maybe "Use your brain, if you have one."

In any event North merely said, "Deal" and gets our award.

Ann Landers

Plant causes brother's death

Dear Ann Landers: Last year my mother bought a Ricinus Communis plant, commonly known as the castor oil plant. The salesperson assured her it was not poisonous. My three-year-old brother ate the large seeds off the plant and died. Mother went to pieces after my little brother's death and has been under psychiatric care ever since.

Because of this tragedy I have done a lot of research on plants and was shocked to learn that there are a lot of poisonous plants in homes with small children. Unfortunately, many plant shops employ people who are uninformed. So, will you please warn your readers to check with a knowledgeable horticulturist or with a poison control center before they buy a house plant? I wish my mother had.

The following ARE poisonous if eaten in large amounts and will result in death:

The berries of the daphne plant.

Any and all parts of the rhododendron plant.

Sign this letter — One Less In The Family

Dear One Less: Thank you for a letter that may save many lives. Too bad you had to lose your little brother, but hopefully you will have saved someone else's.

Dear Ann: My wife is 27. I am 29. We have been married five years. From the beginning I knew Martha had emotional problems but was sure that with a lot of love and understanding we could work things out.

Everything was fine until last January when our little girl was born. Martha became depressed, couldn't do much housework and wanted nothing to do with me sexually. I got her to go to a counselor. It helped.

In May Martha announced she was switching to an unlicensed hypnotist. Since that day she has become stubborn and unpleasant. She phones the hypnotist several times a day and can't make a decision on her own. She has a bad cough but won't go to a doctor — says the hypnotist is curing her. What can I do? — Stymied

Dear Sty: If the hypnotist is unlicensed and practicing medicine (which he seems to be doing) he should be reported to the County Medical Society and to the district attorney at once.

Dear Ann: My mother and I just had a big argument. We both respect your advice and have agreed to go by what you say. Here is the problem: A very good friend (a boy) didn't know what to buy me for my 15th birthday, so he handed me a $20 bill and said, "Here is your birthday present. Buy what you want. I can't think of anything."

My mother did not like the idea. She says it is not proper for a young boy to give a girl money as a gift. I think it's more sensible to give money than buy something dumb. Please settle this. — Only Friends

Dear Only: I'm with your mom. If the friend couldn't think of an appropriate present, he should have given you a gift certificate rather than cash.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Good-bye Hollywood, hello Texas, Georgia

California faces stiff competition in quest for film dollar

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — States from Georgia to Montana, Texas to Virginia have discovered the treasure of the Hollywood Hills and set out to entice movie and television producers to their backyards.

The picture-poaching has reached the point where California, long the undisputed center, has set up a commission to beat back the raiders, as have several cities in the state.

"We realized we were losing $100 million in annual revenue going from our state to theirs," says Liz Brady, executive director of California's Film Development Council. And that figure, she says, is conservative, involving only direct revenue.

Considering the money spent by film companies for car rentals, hotels, restaurants, lumber, services and the like, the loss to the state's economy could be as high as $375 million a year, quite a kick in the coffer to the state where movies grew up.

The California film council started work 1½ years ago to counter the activities of some 30 film commissions in other states that are busily luring film business away from the Hollywood precincts.

Miss Brady says her agency has managed to wrest some of the business back through devices ranging from issuing permits for filmmakers to shoot in state parks to frequent soul sessions with film executives.

California has set aside $120,000 this year for its bring 'em back alive project.

Other states have already been spending millions of dollars collectively to lure film budgets from Hollywood's backlots.

The Motion Picture Association of America says that more than 20 states have full-fledged film commissions. Most of the others have at least one official, usually within the department of commerce or tourism, to handle film development within their borders.

"They're all trying to get our business," says Lou Rachmil, vice president and production manager at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "They come out here. Sometimes the governor comes out with them, and they do a very good sell. They turn loose their best people. They open doors. It's a very helpful situation."

The scramble began in the late 1960s, when the industry began to look for sites outside Hollywood because of audience demand for greater realism, high overhead at the studios and other reasons, says Bill McCallum of the Arizona Motion Picture Development Office.

Arizona grossed $5 million business in fiscal 1976-77. Its film office has a budget of $109,000 this year.

In terms of revenue, the Texas Film Commission, a division of the governor's office, is a giant. Director Pat Wolfe says it's drawn $60 million in film production in the past two years.

Eighteen major films were shot, partly or wholly, in Texas last year and 13 more through the summer of 1977. They include "Semi-Tough" and "The Bad News Bears Breaking Training." Both made use of Texas sports stadiums.

The states compete briskly among themselves. New Jersey hired the public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan, which specializes in entertainment industry accounts, to tout its wares.

Primarily, says Henry Rogers, they try to persuade producers that it can be done cheaper in Jersey.

New York is working hard to accommodate filmmakers and recently allowed a company to burn down a derelict building in Brooklyn for the movie "Nunzio." It meant money for a far from affluent neighborhood and jobs for kids as extras. In addition, the company shelled out part of the replacement costs of the building.

Ohio made $1 million last year from filmmakers attracted by the state film bureau's promotion. That includes use of a northeastern Ohio community, Chagrin Falls, for a New England setting sought by a television film crew.

Ed Spivia of the Georgia Film Office, one of the more active in the country, says the Peach State has drawn more than 100 television and feature films in the past five years. It's meant about $100 million.

Georgia made a maximum security prison available for Paramount's "The Longest Yard," starring Burt Reynolds. For the filming of another Reynolds movie, "Deliverance," the Georgia Power Co. cut off the flow of the Chattooga River so the crews could pull boaters into positions required.

The sequel to it all?

Arizona's Bill MacCallum looks forward to increasing state raids on the movie business for years to come. California's Liz Brady says the state, never one to share top billing for its prime industry — much less with 49 other stars — will continue to fight off the rustlers and fence off its grazing land once again.

That's some gun

Judy Taylor, director for the Office of Programs for Handicappers at Michigan State University and a quadraplegic since childhood, uses this modified single action .357 magnum for recreational target shooting. The gun was designed by a friend and made by a gunsmith after Judy became interested in shooting. A mirror allows her to see through the telescopic sight by looking straight down and the gun adjusts horizontally and vertically by two levers and wheels. Recoil from a shot is absorbed by the wooden table that the gun is mounted on and by the wheelchair.

Berkowitz will go on trail

NEW YORK (AP) — David R. Berkowitz has been granted his wish to stand trial for murder in the last of the six Son of Sam killings he is accused of committing with a .44-caliber revolver.

Minutes after a psychiatrist hired by the state declared Friday that Berkowitz' "mind is free and there are no signs of any schizophrenic condition," state Supreme Court Justice John Starkey ruled the defendant was competent to stand trial in Brooklyn for the murder of 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz. She was shot to death last July 31, the last victim attributed to Son of Sam. No trial date was set.

The 24-year-old Berkowitz said he wanted to face a trial so he could "warn the world about the demons." He said he was even willing to die as long as he could tell his story. Under state law the harshest possible penalty would be life imprisonment.

Defense attorney Ira Jultak said Berkowitz was "significantly pleaded" and "quite satisfied" with the ruling, which is not subject to appeal.

Friday's ruling applies only to the defendant's competency to stand trial. He could still plead insanity as a defense.

Jultak said in court Friday that there is no defense for his client other than insanity.

According to previous testimony by court-ordered psychiatrists, who had found Berkowitz incompetent, the defendant believes he is possessed and was forced to kill "by demons demanding blood."

Dr. David Abrahamsen, who examined Berkowitz on behalf of the prosecution, said Berkowitz' delusions were invented, not genuine. He testified that Berkowitz was able to stand trial.

Berkowitz' competency also is at question in proceedings before courts in the Bronx and Queens — for five other killings — and there is the possibility he could be found incompetent to stand trial in any those proceedings.

Cleveland schools may remain open

By The Associated Press

A federal court in Ohio has issued an order allowing Cleveland's schools to remain open, and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court has been asked to do the same for Philadelphia schools.

Both cities face financial problems that have threatened closing of the schools.

In Cleveland, school Supt. Paul W. Briggs said Friday the schools will operate normally despite $15 million in outstanding bank loans.

Meanwhile, bankers in Philadelphia have turned down requests from that city's school system for $45 million in short-term loans unless the district's budget is balanced.

The budget is not balanced, school officials say, because Philadelphia Common Pleas Court Judge Eugene Gelfand ruled that the district, with 250,000 students, could not obtain $50 million in long-term loans from the banks.

School officials said that without the loans, the district will run out of money next Friday.

Without the funds, classes will have to close. The Philadelphia system's next state subsidy is not due until January.

Officials have said they will not be able to pay teachers in November or December unless financing is found.

In a hastily called hearing, lawyers for the district asked the state Supreme Court to overturn the lower court's ruling. The attorneys said Gelfand erred when he ruled the long-term loan would violate state law.

Under Pennsylvania law, a school district must receive court approval for an emergency loan. Also, the district must prove it has legally incurred a deficit that necessitates the loan, in addition to satisfying several other requirements.

Meanwhile, Briggs said Cleveland's 5,400 teachers will be paid on time, but it is not known how the 112,000-pupil school system will make up its debt.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank Battisti issued a ruling relieving Cleveland school officials of liability for keeping the system open. His order also directs the school board to continue operations, "and maintain such minimum standards as maybe required," regardless of the auditor's certification that the schools were broke.

Under Ohio law, school officials could be subject to penalties for spending money when the state auditor has certified that there is not enough cash to pay the system's debts.

Mother of 5 is scheduled for execution

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A mother of five children has been sentenced to death by hanging for the ax murder of her alcoholic husband, it was reported today.

Pauline Tolken, 40, was convicted of killing her 39-year-old husband Drik last year. Her mother testified at the trial that he often beat Mrs. Tolken with a whip and spent most of his money drinking.

However, Judge P.W.E. Baker said in imposing the sentence Friday that there were no extenuating circumstances. He cited evidence that Mrs. Tolken had planned to do away with her husband for a long time.

FAMILY WEEKLY

TV'S SWEET SUSAN DEY BECOMES A VERY GROWN-UP MOVIE STAR

REP. PAUL ROGERS: YOUR HEALTH IS HIS BUSINESS

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EDWIN NEWMAN, author and news commentator

What's the most difficult part of your job? —C.M., Port Arthur, Texas

● Waiting. You may spend hours or days outside somebody's house and get nothing. You may make dozens of phone calls that yield nothing. It is not easy to keep yourself keyed up and alert when this sort of thing is going on. The next most difficult part of the job is not allowing the routine to take over and not automatically reacting to a story in the same way you reacted to a similar story in the past.

FOR JOAN MONDALE, wife of the Vice President

What about being in the public eye pleases you most and distresses you most? —S.A., Olympia, Wash.

● The loss of privacy can be distressing, but it is exciting to have the opportunities that it brings. I have particularly enjoyed being a sort of spokesperson for the arts. If I can direct more attention to American artistic achievements and to the need for increased support for the arts, it will be well worth the small loss of privacy.

FOR DOLLY PARTON, country singer

● I love the convenience of just slapping on a wig and looking like I spent hours getting my hair to look that way. Wigs are my weakness — dressy ones for shows, softer, shorter ones for off the stage. I do go without one sometimes, but when I leave it off, I feel very strange — almost naked.

FOR JIMMIE WALKER, star of Good Times

Since you're so thin, do you agree that skinny people are more inclined to have temper tantrums than fat people? —S.R., Fayetteville, N.C.

● I don't want to give a definite yes or no, since I haven't taken a poll of all the scrawnies. As for me, I'm not one to throw fits for no reason. What does frustrate me is coming up with a new idea and finding it doesn't work. I also get annoyed with autograph hunters and if I'm recognized on the street. If I never sign another autograph, I'll be happy.

FOR MERV GRIFFIN

When you get time off for peace and quiet, where do you go to be alone? —Mrs. M. Jago, Fords, N.J.

● Every Thursday, when I've finished taping my fifth show of the week, I head for Monterey (I recently sold my home on the Pebble Beach golf course and moved to a ranch in the same area) and lunge into a heavy tennis schedule until the following Monday morning. Between sets, I either entertain or am entertained by close friends.

FOR PEGGY FLEMING, skater

How old were you when you began skating, and why did you start? —Camille More, Livingston, Calif.

● At 9, I rented my first pair of skates. There was a rink down the street, and I went there because it seemed a nice place to spend my time. I had no dreams of becoming another Sonja Henie. In fact, I adored ballet and was taking lessons. Nine months after that first session, I bought my own skates. According to my parents, I was a "natural" and never waddled or fell. What I liked most was the sensation of gliding.

FOR SALLY FIELD, actress

● Start early, at 2, the way I did — I began in my own room. Then get involved with school drama courses. It's an invaluable experience. If you can please a student audience, you can please anyone, because they're the world's worst. If they don't like you, they spit or throw rocks and books. Then act for the family in the living room. You won't get an honest appraisal, but you'll get practice in acting in front of people.

FOR ARTE JOHNSON, actor and comedian

Is it true you have degrees in journalism and law and, if so, have they helped your career? —V.L., Gadsden, Ala.

● It's true. One needs all kinds of knowledge in order to be satirical. If I can take one sentence that is a piece of honest information and use it as a jumping-off place, I have piqued the interest of those knowing the same fact (and those who don't). One of my college professors said that if all those graduating from universities remembered one sentence from each course they took, they'd be well educated. It's quite a remark, and I never forgot it.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

As one who grew up adoring Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, it's sad that today's youngsters aren't exposed to ventriloquism. Why has it died? —I.J., York, Pa.

FOR DON WILLIAMS, singer

How did you get interested in the guitar, and how many songs have you written? —M.C., Savannah, Ga.

● My mother was responsible. She was my first and only teacher and gave me my first lesson at 12. We were living in Missouri at the time, and I can remember rushing home from school to get to my guitar and pick out a tune I'd heard on the radio. Reckon I've written about 500 songs.

PRO AND CON

Should Parole Be Abolished?

PRO Aryeh Neier, executive director, American Civil Liberties Union

Parole makes a sentence depend on behavior in prison. It assumes parole authorities can predict future crimes on the basis of prison behavior. This is unfair to everyone. The underlying crime should determine the sentence. Predictions based on prison behavior have proved wholly unreliable. While I would abolish parole, I don't advocate that we "throw away the key." Many sentences are far too long. Short, sure punishment is best. Even for the most vicious crimes, a maximum sentence of 15 years — without parole — is adequate. That is a long time. It would protect society since few violent crimes are committed by people after their mid-30's.

CON Robert B. McKay, director, Program on Justice, Society and the Individual, Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies

The only fair answer is that "it depends." If prison sentences continue to be indeterminate, that is, for a time not fixed in advance, parole is necessary to decide upon release dates. If judges continue to sentence without guidelines, to make their sentences more rationally understandable, parole is necessary to relieve injustice. But in most states parole procedures themselves are infected with such great disparities in the handling of individual cases that new injustices result. Parole could be substantially modified or eliminated if sentencing guidelines could be adopted that would lead to a fair and relatively determinate sentencing shortly after conviction.

AN UNKNOWN MENACE PUZZLES CATTLEMEN

By Lawrence Ferguson

Most of the witch hunters, private detectives, state investigators, UFO seekers, bounty hunters, soldiers of fortune, freelance writers, self-appointed sleuths and curiosity seekers gave up on the complex mystery a long time ago.

But not Sheriff H.L. "Tex" Graves of Logan County, Colo.

"It's the strangest thing I've seen in 24 years as a lawman, and I'm not about to give up," he says. "I still don't know who is responsible for these crimes, but one thing is certain — whoever or whatever they are, they're nothing but a bunch of common thieves."

The strange events to which Graves refers are officially categorized as crimes against property but have come to be known simply as "cattle mutilations." Ranchers in at least 22 states, stretching from Oregon to Florida, have reported cattle mutilations, but so far no one has explained the bizarre occurrences. However, dedicated lawmen like Graves are determined to find the answer.

The mutilations began in late 1974 and peaked in the summers of 1975 and 1976. Reports of them started in the North Central states and quickly spread.

Bewildered ranchers began finding their cattle dead in the fields, with precise, surgical cuts. Parts of the dead animals — eyes, ears, tongues, tails, various organs, patches of hide — were cut out and taken. Left behind were tons of choice meat.

In Colorado, the hardest-hit state, about 1,500 suspected mutilations were reported, according to the Colorado Cattlemen's Association.

John Welsh, director of cow-calf stockers service for the National Cattlemen's Association, estimated the national total now to be around 3,000.

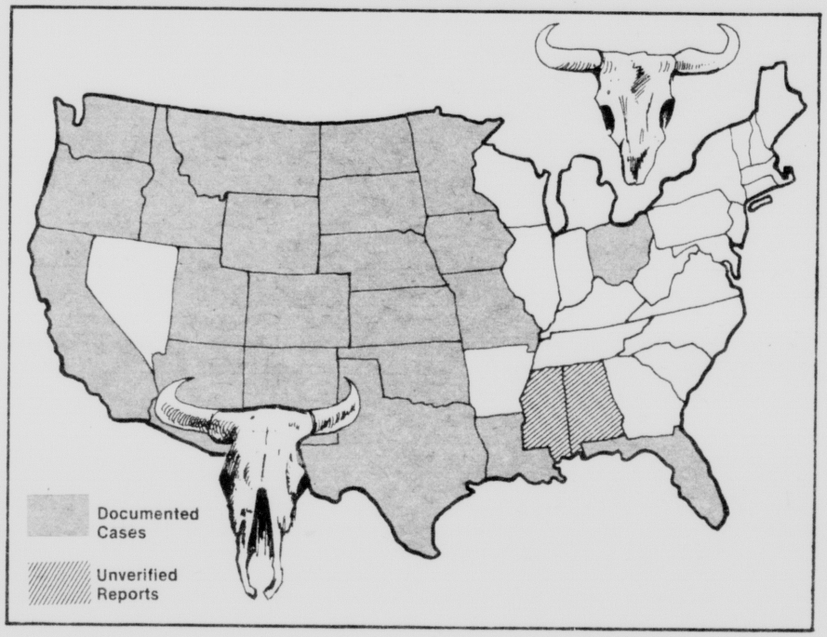
As the cases mounted and no solid clues were found, public interest grew. Rural sheriffs like Tex Graves were besieged by people offering advice, many of them convinced they could solve the puzzle.

"You wouldn't believe the weirdos we had through here," says Graves. "They came in droves. We never knew when someone might have the clue we were looking for. So we tried to listen."

Soon, sheriffs were facing a new danger. They shuddered at what might happen to curious outsiders wandering the countryside while ranchers patrolled their property with guns.

As the mystery deepened, the theories flourished. Among the most popular:

- The mutilators belong to a satanic cult that uses animals' organs in its rituals.
- The Government is secretly testing new biological and chemical warfare weapons, as well as secret air-land vehicles.
- The mutilators are visitors from outer space, who swoop down out of the night sky and zap the animals with their weapons, taking the parts to create their own herds by cloning.
- The mutilators are hitherto unknown humanoids, resembling the Big Foot of West Coast fame or the legendary Abominable Snowman.
- Natural predators, such as coyotes, bears, mountain lions and eagles, are the culprits, and somehow cattlemen are victims of a form of mass hysteria, seeing things that do not exist.



Though thousands of animals appear to have been mysteriously destroyed, some scientists say nothing unusual has actually been happening.

Late in the summer of 1975, Graves and other Colorado sheriffs went to Gov. Richard Lamm for help. He called in the Colorado Bureau of Investigation.

"This is one of the greatest outrages in the history of the Western cattle industry," proclaimed the Governor to officials of the state Cattlemen's Association. "It is important to solve this mystery as soon as possible. The cattle industry is hard hit from an economic point of view. From a humane point of view, we cannot allow these mutilations to continue."

Joining the CBI was the Colorado National Guard, which began searching for unauthorized planes or helicopters flying over cattle country.

A $25,000 reward, put up by various rural groups, was offered to anyone providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the mutilators. The American Humane Association offered a $500 reward.

In late 1975 law-enforcement officers in Colorado tracked every lead. The CBI infiltrated offbeat cults of devil worshippers and the hippie underground in Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo.

The veterinary lab at Colorado State University began examining animal carcasses. One animal subjected to a thorough exam was a female buffalo, found at the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo in Colorado Springs on Oct. 20, 1975. An autopsy was performed by Dr. Rodney Walker, zoo veterinarian. Tissues from the animal were submitted to Dr. Raoul Urich, El Paso County coroner. Fluid samples were sent to the college lab.

A month later, Don Davis, zoo director, announced the disturbing results of the investigation:"...the animal died from unknown causes. After it was dead, a mutilation was done with a sharp instrument by man. Blood samples and pathology work showed no evidence that the death was caused by drugs, poison or anything else but natural causes."

Sheriffs next staked out farm and ranch locations and patrolled the countryside more frequently. Sheriff Graves and his men spent night after night in Logan County's back country, which is so desolate and unpopulated "you could hide a freight train out there," one of the searchers noted laconically.

When the information gathered in the massive CBI search was analyzed and revealed, cattlemen found that the CBI had come to a curious conclusion: The mutilations were being performed by natural predators, the CBI said, and only in rare cases had the cattle been slain by humans.

The technicians at Colorado State agreed, saying that in 300 examinations of so-called mutilated cattle, only nine or 10 were the result of human butchers.

"When the mutilations first began in Colorado, there was lots of speculation that different types of cults were involved," said Carl Whiteside, CBI agent. "After a two-and-a-half month undercover investigation, we have no evidence whatsoever that this is the cause of the problem."

Astonished sheriffs and ranchers couldn't believe their ears and were outraged. They stopped sending carcasses to the lab. They stopped talking openly about mutilations. They quit trusting what the "experts" said.

Sheriff Graves, a patient and determined man, was bitter. He and his staff have always been more inclined to believe what they see, not what they are told. That bitterness was shared by many other sheriffs, who were baffled by the CBI's findings. To "outsiders," it had been a fascinating puzzle, a good story to read in their newspapers, a curious, oddball mystery to ponder.

But for ranchers it was anything but a game. They were the ones who took the financial loss. They were the ones who wondered if the mutilators would someday take to cutting up people instead of cattle. And they were the ones who had elected men like Tex Graves to uphold the law. It's a responsibility most sheriffs take seriously, especially Graves.

In the corner of his office in Sterling is a metal file cabinet. In one of the well-used drawers are more than 200 photographs of mutilated cattle, and they are damning evidence that the state investigators either didn't know what they were saying or were not telling the whole story.

"Look at these pictures and then tell me how anyone can blame it on natural predators," Graves urges. "I'd like to see the coyote that can do that.

"Predators are never as selective as the mutilators," Graves says. "A coyote wouldn't leave all the tender parts. If he tore a piece of hide from the critter's belly, he'd leave it around, not take it with him. And he'd go after the meat under it.

"At least three of the 74 animals mutilated in Logan County were cut upon while they were still alive, based on the evidence we've collected," he continues. "Also, the blood in 29 animals was completely drained from the animal. Yet we seldom find much blood on the ground."

During the summer of 1977, the number of reported mutilations in Colorado decreased drastically. In Logan County, only five were reported.

"A lot of people are glad to see it slowing down," Graves says. "I'm glad too, mainly because the ranchers are going to need all the profits they can get.

"But there's a bad thing about it slowing down. It means it's going to be even harder to catch them now. It worries me that we don't know why the mutilations ever began or why they are slowing down. That means we don't know when it might get bad again."

"My wife got me to switch to Vantage."

"I smoke. My wife doesn't. And she would remind me of the stories being told about high-tar cigarettes.

"Well, I began looking into those new low-tar cigarettes. I tried just about every one that came out. They didn't satisfy my taste.

"Then I read about Vantage. I didn't expect much but I tried a pack anyway.

"They were quite a pleasant surprise. They tasted really good and they actually had less than half the tar of my old brand.

"So now I smoke Vantage. "I get the taste I want, and the low tar that she wants."

YOU CAN PROFIT FROM THE COLLECTING MANIA

A comic book or movie souvenir that sells for pennies today may be worth hundreds in the future.

By Bob Weinstein

Never throw anything away is the unspoken credo for thousands of collectors. Collectomania is sweeping the country, and it is as American as apple pie. In the past decade, more and more people, ranging in age from 9 to 90, are collecting everything from expensive mechanical banks to tin cans and barbed wire.

As the demand for collectibles increases, the market becomes more volatile, and for many mementos of Americana, prices begin in the thousands. Twelve years ago, few people collected comic books; now there are at least 100,000 dedicated collectors throughout the United States.

Today collectors are putting away everything associated with the hot sci-fi epic, Star Wars — comic books, bumper stickers, buttons, programs, games, toys and autographs, all will be worth a lot on the collectible market in less than 10 years, say professional collectors.

Collectors use a simple formula: they monitor the marketplace for fads, and when one catches on, they buy all the paraphernalia associated with it.

That's what Chick Darrow of Chick Darrow Fun Antiques in New York City has been doing for the past three decades. "I was collecting battery-operated toys when nobody would touch them," he says. "Now they're worth a fortune. Look what happened to the Star Trek deadly rapid-fire tracer gun that shoots real pellets and sold for about $2 when it first came out. Now you can't find one for less than $15."

Some collectors specialize in nothing but buttons, which are manufactured by the thousands to advertise a product or to promote a TV or political personality and sell for 15¢ to 25¢. Eventually, however, some buttons increase in value. A Buck Rogers in the 25th Century button sells for $25; Dick Tracy Secret Service Patrol-Sergeant, $30; Buster Brown, $35; and a Joe DiMaggio TV Club, $20.

Comic and television heroes are consistently big sellers. Whether it be buttons, comics or toys, Superman is still a superstar among collectors. If you happen to have a scarce Superman Krypto Ray Gun for showing film strips, you're in luck. It's worth at least $50.

TV Western memorabilia is equally popular. In the 1950's, TV Western series were the rage. Hopalong Cassidy, Gene Autry, Roy Rogers, The Lone Ranger, Tom Mix and, later on, John Wayne conquered the hearts of Americans for better than a decade. Now you can't pick up a Hopalong Cassidy 1935 Paramount 16-page pressbook from Hoppy's first film for less than $65-$75. A Hopalong Cassidy 21" doll, with cloth body and simulated leather belt, holster and boots, sells for $75-$85. The Lone Ranger Republic serial pressbook (16 pages) costs $50-$60.

Depending upon age, condition and the demand at the time, the sky is the limit on some collectibles. And there is no telling what a collectible will be worth in the future. Who would have dreamed that a 10¢ comic book could appreciate to where it is worth a few thousand dollars. Serious comics collectors go after the first edition of a particular line or the original art work. Action Comics No. 1 is touted as one of the most famous comics in existence. A few years ago, it sold for $1,800. Depending upon its condition, it is now worth $3,000. The hunt for this comic is particularly exciting because only about ten or twenty are in existence.

Pop musical memorabilia soon will be a hot commodity. Mementos associated with such superstars as Mick Jagger, Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis and the Beatles are rapidly increasing in value. A woman in Texas recently paid a few thousand dollars for a pillow Elvis slept on. Outside a souvenir shop in Nashville, Tenn., a Jerry Lee Lewis custom-made limousine, circa 1950, is selling for $28,000. For some collectors, that's a bargain.

The key to collecting is patience. Don't listen to anyone. Professional collectors all say the same thing: select items associated with successful trends, keep them in good condition and follow the collectible market closely. Before you know it, you've realized a handsome profit on your investment. As one collector put it, "It is like money in the bank, earning compound interest."

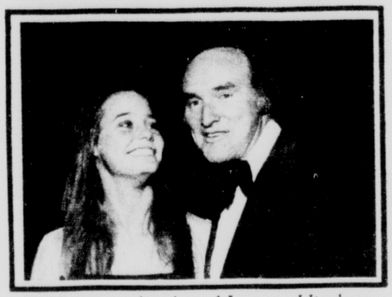
TV'S SWEET LITTLE GIRL BECOMES A MOVIE STAR

A lot has happened to Susan Dey since The Partridge Family, including a starring role in a very grown-up film.



Globe Photos

With agent-husband Lenny Hirshan

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Only a few years ago, Susan Dey played the part of a 14-year-old in The Partridge Family, the long-running family-oriented TV series in which she costarred with Shirley Jones and David Cassidy.

A few weeks ago, she finished the lead in her first major motion picture, First Love, in which she has some passionate love scenes and uses a lot more salty language than in her old series. In between these events she married her agent, who is twice her age and has a daughter just 10 years younger than Susan. So what's happened? Well, she has grown up. She's now poised, elegant and beautiful.

After a stint as a model in New York (Vogue, Mademoiselle, Seventeen), Susan moved to California to star in The Partridge Family for four years. "The show was fun and good experience," she recalls, "and David [Cassidy] and I had a marvelous relationship. When the show was canceled, I lost a person out of my life. Of course, I had a nice relationship with Shirley [Jones], too, but David and I were of the same age group. I started playing a 14-year-old and grew up very slowly. In fact, when the show finished, I was 21 and still playing a 16-year-old."

Last December Susan married Leonard Hirshan, who looks 15 years younger than the 50th birthday he recently celebrated. He is a Hollywood superagent, who was impressed by Susan's beauty, potential and personality.

Susan would like children of her own, but not now. "Since Lenny is involved in his work and I'm so involved in mine, we have little time together," she says. "To have a child under those circumstances would be wrong."

Having her husband as her agent is not a bad thing, Susan insists. "I don't mind if he talks about business when he comes home at night," she continues. "It gives him a release to discuss it, but when his business concerns me as his client, not as his wife, we try to do it over the phone. I want to deal with him at home as my husband, not as my agent. So we don't let business interfere with our relationship."

Their relationship was affected, however, when Susan played those love scenes in First Love. The night Lenny first saw the film in a private screening, she was so nervous about his reaction she refused to go with him. "I was so relieved when he came home and told me he was proud of me," she recalls.

What is Susan's feeling about nudity in films? "If there is a reason behind it, as there is in First Love, where it's very important, I don't mind. If it's done for exploitation, then I won't have any part of it.

"Filming First Love became a delicate time for both Lenny and me. So it was my job to reassure Lenny that it was my work. The problem started when I first read the script. Lenny was very funny because when I asked what he thought of it, he suddenly realized that I wasn't asking him as my agent, on a business level, but as my husband. He said, 'Well, as your husband there are a lot of things you do that I don't like' — which I thought was absolutely wonderful. He understood. He knows that our love is secure. He showed no resentment or jealousy. It's obvious that he doesn't have to worry."

Nor does Susan. And with the release of First Love — despite the love scenes, many critics say the film is done with taste and is appealing to young people — her career seems assured as well. TV

EARLY AMERICA'S FAVORITE SWEETENER

By Marilyn Hansen

WHAT IS MOLASSES?

A dark, sweet syrup, molasses is a by-product of refined sugar cane. Usually three boilings of the cane juice are made. The molasses extracted during the first boiling, from which only a portion of sugar is removed, is sweeter and lighter in flavor and color than the second boil, or dark molasses, which contains less sugar. Third-boil molasses is often called "blackstrap" and is dark and bitter. Not intended for direct consumption, it is used in industrial processes, such as the manufacture of alcohol, principally rum.

MAKING YOUR OWN BROWN SUGAR

You can use molasses to make your own brown sugar at home. To make the equivalent of ½ cup, blend together ½ cup ordinary white sugar with 2 tablespoons molasses. You can make any amount of brown sugar, but for best results, it is preferable to make it only as you need it.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

2 lbs. dried pea beans or Great Northern beans
1 large onion, peeled
2 onions peeled and stuck with 2 whole cloves
Salt
1 cup dark molasses
½ cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon dry mustard
½ lb. salt pork with rind left on

1. Bring water to boil, add beans, boil 2 minutes, and then turn off heat and let soak 1 hour.
2. Add peeled onion and 1 teaspoon salt; bring to boil again and simmer 1 hour.
3. Drain and discard onion but reserve cooking liquid.
4. Mix molasses, sugar, mustard and 1 tablespoon salt in large bean pot or Dutch oven. Add bean liquid and beans. Mix to coat beans well.
5. Place onions with cloves into bean mixture.
6. Score the fatty side of the salt pork with diagonal cuts. Push salt pork down into beans, letting top edge of pork surface. Cover.
7. Bake in preheated 300°F. oven for 6 to 7 hours or until deep brown and tender. Makes about 3 qts.

AMBER DRESSING

1½ tablespoons lemon juice

1. Combine all ingredients; blend with wire whisk.
2. Serve with fruit salads or with shredded carrots and raisins. Dressing keeps refrigerated up to 2 weeks. Makes ¾ cup

BLACK FRENCH DRESSING

¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon molasses

1. Combine all ingredients in jar with tight-fitting lid. Cover; shake well to blend. Makes 1 cup

Editor's note: Imaginative additions include: ½ cup thinly sliced pitted black olives, 2 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds or toasted sesame seeds.

SHOO-FLY CAKE

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Dash ground cloves
¾ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup molasses
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon baking soda

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.; grease and flour a 9- x 13-inch pan.
2. In mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, butter, salt, spices and walnuts. With pastry blender or two knives, cut in margarine to make "crumbs." Reserve 1 cup crumbs for topping.
3. Combine molasses, boiling water and soda; add to remaining crumbs and mix until blended.
4. Pour batter into pan; top with reserved crumbs. Bake for 30 to 35 minutes at 350°F. or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean.
5. Cool; cut into large bars. Sift confectioners' sugar over top if desired. Makes 12 large bars

INDIAN PUDDING

6 cups milk
½ cup molasses
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup yellow cornmeal
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease a 2-qt. baking dish.
2. In a heavy 4- to 5-qt. saucepan, beat the eggs with a wire whisk until well mixed. Add 4 cups milk, molasses, sugar, baking soda and salt; blend well.
3. Cook over moderate heat until mixture simmers, stirring until molasses and sugar dissolve.
4. Add cornmeal slowly, making sure mixture continues to simmer; stir constantly.
5. Cook, uncovered, stirring from time to time, until the pudding is thick enough to hold its shape solidly in a spoon.
6. Add butter by tablespoonsful, stirring until melted. Then pour in remaining 2 cups milk in a thin stream, beating constantly.
7. Pour mixture into prepared baking dish and bake in middle of oven 1 hour. Reduce oven temperature to 300°F. and continue baking 4 hours longer or until pudding is very firm.
8. Serve pudding at once, directly from the baking dish, or let it cool and serve at room temperature. Serve with heavy cream, whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Makes 8 servings

DUPONT

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

There's a great new freedom of spirit in the latest fashions. Everything is relaxed and easy, with simple, uncluttered shapes that let the body move.

The Key Word — Softness

Blouson tops, smocklike dresses and coats and dirndl or full-gored skirts provide a fluid, gentle look. The ultimate accessory — the soft shawl — tops everything this season, even coats.

Softness is found in fabrics — richly patterned challis, mohair, chenille, camel hair, knit jerseys and shearling — all so light even capes and coats have a sense of weightlessness.

Layering is still important. With the new softness of the silhouette, more women than ever can achieve this look without bulk — and stay warm.

The Personal Touch

Gone are the structured dresses of the 60's. Today a woman controls the shape, pulling drawstrings or elasticized waistlines up or down, sashing dresses or blouses as she likes, making adjustments that personalize the clothes.

Lengths have settled in the area of the calf, but precisely where is a matter of taste and how the style looks on you.

Color Trends

The new color directions are to be found in the soft, muted tones of lavender, navy, rose and khaki. Winter whites look very fresh, and lots of "face powder neutrals" are available, such as melon, pale blue, peach and celery. They will be even more in evidence around the holidays. For evening, the hottest shade is black, with the gem colors of amethyst, garnet and dark emerald playing close seconds.

A special word should be said about gold. It is biggest in accessories — in sandals, belts, jewelry and handbags. Expect to see the golden touch being worn for day as well as evening.

All changes this season are subtle. But one thing is obvious: women are going to look a lot more romantic and feminine than in the recent past. Gayle Kirkpatrick, designer for Tudor Square Fashions, says that styles should be selected to suit your own proportions, personality and lifestyle. Here are some of his specific fashion pointers.

If You Have a Full Figure

With a little planning, you can wear the layered look successfully, without adding heaviness. First, try a narrow-pleated challis skirt under a solid-color blazer, perhaps in a bright navy. Wearing a blouse underneath in a paler color and in a lightweight fabric will soften the tailored lines of the blazer. Over all, toss a challis scarf. The shawl-effect is great for a full figure because it draws attention to the neck and face, giving a very romantic look. Capes also are fine for this figure.

Overblouses are always good. This season, many of them, especially for evening, are in satins, crepe de chines and chiffons. Wear one over a long skirt in white flannel or over slender black velvet pants for a festive evening.

While you probably prefer to dress conservatively, don't be afraid occasionally to add something with a lot of flair — such as gold accessories or a pair of sandals that enhance pretty ankles.

If You're Thin

The new fluffy fabrics, like mohair and cloud-soft knits, are perfect. They add bulkiness but aren't overwhelming. The oversized cowl collar is good, too, as it offers a face-flattering look and adds fullness.

You have the perfect figure for layering. This year, try loose and easy shapes worn one over the other, or the blouson look in a dress or jacket. If you wear a slim skirt, select one of the new plaids in a rich, tawny shade. They will "fill out" your figure.

You can add the appearance of width to your legs by wearing boots or the new leg warmers (knitted stockings that go all the way up the leg).

It's easy to go overboard with layers. If you're also small, too many can make you look overdressed. To avoid this, check your finished look in a full-length mirror.

If You're Short

A terrific boost if you're under 5'5" is the new shorter blazer or the box jacket, which is better suited to a short figure than a regular-length jacket. Your skirt should be slightly gored, slim or with tiny pleats, but never gathered, which causes too much bulk around the waistline and tends to shorten the figure.

Wear stockings in a hue to match your skirt or choose boots with the new stacked heels. Make sure the boots aren't too high; you don't want to give the illusion of being on stilts.

Complete your outfit with a wrap coat or short poncho. (Leave full-length capes and ponchos to your tall friends.) Fringed shawls are perfect, too, for the short woman — they add another layer of warmth and fashion.

If You're Tall

You're going to have a lot of fun wearing the soft look. Some of the new pastel plaids are definitely for you. A flounced plaid skirt in flannel with matching shawl is a great new silhouette. Add a ruffled blouse in crepe de chine for more softness. Scalloped hemlines are another look you can wear well.

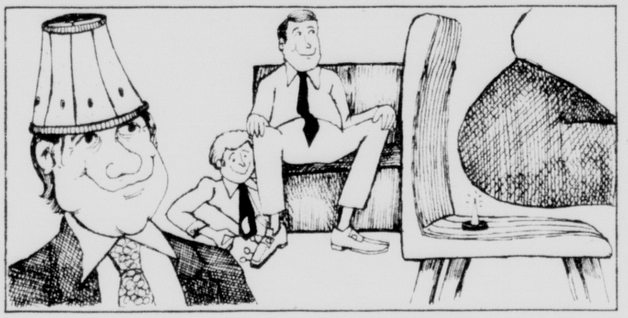
The blouson top is one of the most feminine shapes around and also is perfect for your figure. If your waistline is your best figure feature, however, a blouson will conceal it and play up your hipline, which many women don't want. You can solve the problem by tying the blouson at the natural waistline so the indentation is definite. Avoid bold colors — they're overpowering and maximize your height.

A final recommendation from Gayle Kirkpatrick: "The most important thing is to understand your proportions (don't forget to study yourself before a full-length mirror). Then take the best from a new fashion and adapt it to yourself. I have seen petite women look fabulous in midi-skirts because they understand the proportions of their leg lengths and just where the hemline looks best on them."

THE CAPITOL HILL JOKESTERS



Fall used to be a vacation time. No more. So now merriment helps fill the tedious hours.

By Frances Spatz Leighton

"October and November are the months of the punsters, funsters and pranksters in the halls of Congress," says former Congressional Doorkeeper William "Fishbait" Miller, who has proven to be a colorful reporter of his 28-year tenure in the House.

"It used to be that Congress quit work in summer and was gone till January," continues Fishbait. "No more. Now they have to stay around — but to ease the anguish of the grueling hours they work to wind up all that important legislation, they release their tensions in humor.

According to Fishbait, almost everything has been thought of to beat the October blahs: from shipping in strange foods from home districts, ranging from muskrat and bear meat to billy goat, to tossing strange bills into the hopper, such as a bill to "Tax the Only Thing That Has Not Been Taxed" and without which there would be no future generations.

And then there are the little notes delivered by pages to freshmen members to make them blush. One might say, "If anything interesting happened last night, smile." (During those days when there had been some notice of Congressmen "dallying" after hours, there were many self-conscious smiles.)

Top joker in recent Congressional history, according to Fishbait, was Bill Ayres, a Republican from Ohio who would do anything for a laugh. One prank of Ayres still remembered on Capitol Hill occurred when John Kennedy moved into the White House with his new baby, John-John. The Ohio Representative went to a store, bought a baby buggy and personally wheeled it to the White House, demanding to see the President. At the front gate, the guards, who were sure they were dealing with a nut, still took the precaution of calling the President's office. "There is a guy out here with a baby carriage who claims to be a Congressman," they said apologetically.

"Wait," said the President. "That's got to be Bill Ayres. Let him in."

It was a story JFK liked to recall when people asked him how he was doing on Capitol Hill. He would say the Hill wasn't supplying him the votes he needed, but, on the other hand, it was doing very well with supplying him with baby carriages.

The "Top Joker" designation has now been filled by another Republican — Barry Goldwater Jr., who also has a penchant for practical jokes.

He made Capitol history not too long ago by posing as a carpenter and installing a pay toilet in the private office of Rep. John Burton of California, a liberal Democrat. Young Goldwater, a conservative Republican, had gotten tired of hearing the Democrat rail on about the unfairness of placing pay toilets in public places, so he took action. Donning a carpenter's outfit and carrying his tool kit, he shuffled into Burton's office, mumbling that he was supposed to do some work on the door of the Congressman's private bathroom.

Soon there was hammering, and before Rep. Burton had returned from the floor of the House, Goldwater had managed to install a device on the door that would not permit it to open without the insertion of a dime.

Goldwater also takes pot-shots at the White House. It was he who said, "I wasn't worried when I saw all the Carter relatives moving in with him at the White House. After all, who else is going to help him plow the White House lawns to put in this year's peanut, 'tater and corn pone crop?"

According to Fishbait, the Democrats need no sympathy, since they are well able to defend themselves and give the Republicans a whack. He tells the story of Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, who walked clear across the state drumming up votes.

"Chiles was stopping wherever he saw a crowd gathered. Well, one day he saw a crowd in a farmer's barnyard. There was no place he could stand so they could all get a look at him, so he just climbed aboard a manure spreader and said, 'Gentlemen, I must apologize: I feel a little uncomfortable talking to you from up here because it's the first time I've ever spoken from a Republican platform.'"

The public would be amazed, says Fishbait, at the antics and humor of their elected heroes. What else do they do back there out of sight in the cloakroom? They sit around kidding and making up definitions and lists of things — for example, things at which Republicans would draw the line:

"Republican boys date Democratic girls. They plan to marry Republican girls, of course, but they feel they're entitled to a little fun first."

But the storyteller most missed on the Hill is Sam Ervin. Senator Sam, as his colleagues called him long before the Watergate hearings, was a legend. This story of his is the one members still use when they want to hint that someone is trying to puff up the value of their possessions.

As the story goes, two down-home North Carolina fellows are discussing their possessions, and the first fellow says, "Whatever became of your old hound dog?"

The other one then replies, "Didn't you hear? I just sold him for exactly $5,000."

The first man said, "Come on now, you know you never got $5,000 for an old hound dog."

"Well I didn't get it in cash," the friend admitted, "but I got it in a trade — I got two alley cats in exchange, each of which are estimated to be worth $2,500 apiece."

Observations

Autumn leaves us feeling a little wistful. Maybe it's because the kids have been packed off to school. Or because the soft evenings of summer are giving way to longer, cooler nights. But there's a happy side to autumn, too. It heralds the start of another "Mobil Season" to brighten those long nights with a varied array of outstanding television programs in the tradition of "Upstairs, Downstairs," "The Ascent of Man," "A Moon for the Misbegotten," and "Ten Who Dared."

By permission of the Ladies' Home Journal

"Put your shirt on! This is Masterpiece Theatre!"

Only the best. An eight-week drama achievement, "The Best of Families," premieres this Thursday evening on the Public Broadcasting Service. The series creates a brilliant portrait of three families in turn-of-the-century New York: the Raffertys, poor Irish immigrants struggling to piece together a new life in the new world; the Baldwins, a middle-class minister's clan; and the Wheelers, wealthy aristocrats building their fortune in step with the rise of industrial America. Despite their wildly disparate economic and social backgrounds, the lives of the Raffertys, Baldwins, and Wheelers are inexorably intertwined. "The Best of Families" unfolds their stories against the rich background of a young and growing city—and nation.

Clau ... Clau ... Claudius. He limped, stuttered and twitched—but in his time, he was the most powerful man in the world. For 13 Sunday evenings beginning November 6, "I, Claudius," first Masterpiece Theatre offering of the new season, brings vividly to life the splendor—and treachery—of ancient Rome. The physical defects Claudius carried served to mask his genius. More than once, these same defects saved his life at the hands of his totally mad nephew, the Emperor Caligula. A stunning sequence of events, culminating with Caligula's assassination, sweeps the aging "half-wit" to the throne as Emperor of Rome. The story of "I, Claudius," adapted from the Robert Graves novels, is in a production of stunning power and beauty. Don't miss it.

More goodies. Other highlights of the 1977-78 Mobil season are the 10-week Masterpiece Theatre presentation of Tolstoy's gripping novel "Anna Karenina" ☐ A 12-week, first-run Mobil Showcase series on commercial television entitled "When Havoc Struck," dealing with disasters which have shocked the world over the past 50 years—and what we've learned from them ☐ "Between the Wars," 16 half-hour programs, also on commercial television, which traces the course of American diplomatic history during the years from Versailles to Pearl Harbor ☐ "In Search of the Real America," a refreshing journey with author and commentator Ben Wattenberg to examine some of the things that aren't wrong with our nation. Check your local listings for broadcast dates and times in your area, and keep watching this space for more about the new Mobil Season.

PEOPLE QUIZ/ By John E. Gibson

Are you likely to live longer if your life is meaningful? Do people dedicated to noble causes neglect companionship?

MEASURING THE PURPOSE IN YOUR LIFE

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. There is a simple yardstick that can help you measure the purpose and meaning in your life.
2. If your life seems to lack meaning and purpose, you're probably working too hard, and ignoring fun, pleasure and enjoyment.
3. Believing that what you're doing in life is important will help you live longer.
4. Your relationship with the opposite sex may determine whether your life seems meaningful to you.
5. People committed to a high purpose in life, such as those dedicated to a cause, neglect companionship and, as a result, often become neurotic.
6. The degree of meaning, purpose and personal satisfaction in your life depends on a combination of things.

ANSWERS

1. True. A psychological yardstick developed at the University of Vienna provides a rough measurement of how much purpose and meaning you find in your life. You can use a simplified version of this test by simply scoring yourself on a seven-point scale, ranging from point one ("My life consists largely of a state of emptiness, manifested chiefly by boredom.") to point seven ("My life is running over with good things."). Most of us score somewhere between the two poles. It's often enlightening to compare the number you give yourself with your assessment of friends.

2. False. University of Idaho studies, designed to determine "perceived meaning or purpose in life," revealed that subjects with the lowest assessed purpose in life attributed greater importance to pleasure, excitement and comfort than did those who found their lives replete with meaning and purpose. As one researcher wrote, "A direct focusing on pleasure and happiness tends to be self-defeating. Such focusing works against a sense of fulfillment and tends to promote an existential vacuum."

3. True. Dr. Martin Grotjahn, clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, conducted studies on the subject. His conclusion: the more you have to live for in terms of rewarding achievement and purposeful action, the longer you're likely to live. Other investigations support this conclusion.

4. True. Studies at United States International University show, for example, that when a person experiences frustration in a relationship with the opposite sex, he also tends to sense a lack of meaning and purpose in his life. The studies stress that feelings of deprivation and dissatisfaction with this relationship "may be a manifestation of a more general frustration."

5. False. A team of behavior specialists at Victoria Hospital Clinic (England) used a "Purpose-in-Life" scale to evaluate people. Results showed that those with a high purpose in life had better-adjusted personalities than the others, were less subject to personality conflicts and were more sociable, achieving great pleasure from contacts with others at parties, entertainments and the like.

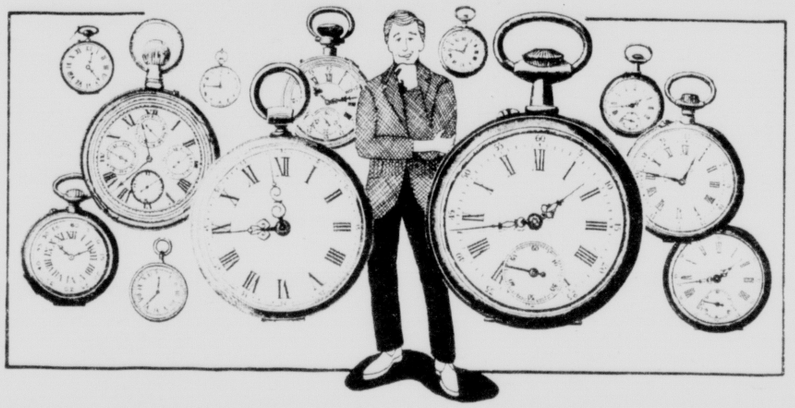
6. True. University of Michigan researchers interviewed men and women of all ages, ranging from the highest executives to manual laborers and custodians. They found that fulfillment of purpose and life-satisfaction "come from a combination of spheres: typically one's job, family, avocations and related interests."

The study noted that "each individual decides what proportion of his energy he should devote to each sphere." He may, for example, expect to get a third of his fulfillment from his career, half from his marriage and family and the rest from hobbies, sports and community activities. If each area yields the expected satisfactions, the person will probably be content.

However, dissatisfaction in one area of life carries over to other areas. So, if you are only half-satisfied with your job or marriage, you will find yourself no more than half-satisfied with life in general.

DO YOU WANT MORE FREE TIME?

Who doesn't? And by keeping in mind these simple suggestions, you'll be able to do more things you enjoy.



By Kate Kelly

How often have you wished for more time to finish paneling the family room or to make new curtains? Or perhaps you've wanted an extra hour for a new hobby or to be with your family. If you're among those who feel there's never enough time for things you enjoy, maybe you should consider how you manage your time.

Although time-management techniques have often been applied to office problems, only recently have they been used in family life. Now, with a steadily increasing number of dual-career families and almost 40 percent of the work force made up of women, time management for the home is becoming increasingly important.

Do household chores seem to take the whole evening? Consider distributing the work among family members. Professor Kathryn Walker of Cornell University has conducted studies on this subject and concludes, "Everyone in a family needs to feel the rewards of contributing to the family."

To devise a fair distribution system, list the chores that need to be done each week. Next, the family should agree how many evenings of table setting should equal a larger task like vacuuming. Then — to make them happy participants — let the young people have first pick of the regular chores.

Another point to consider: If no one is home to look after the house all day, perhaps the standards should be eased a little. It's amazing what five minutes of picking up and 10 minutes of light dusting will do to give a room an acceptable appearance. Most people find that it's best to keep one room neat for unexpected company, but the house needn't be spotless. Bedroom doors can be closed, and comforters or quilts used as spreads on young children's beds will easily hide a large number of wrinkles.

Hectic schedules don't allow much time for entertaining. However, since it's the warmth of your home that guests will remember, why not invite people in for a glass of wine or have guests come for coffee and dessert?

Have you ever passed up a special bargain on curtains because you didn't have the measurements and didn't have time to come back the next day? Try carrying a small notebook with window and room measurements, color schemes and even fabric swatches so you can always take advantage of a good buy.

Still haven't gained enough time to take a night class or to teach your son tennis? Then look closely at your schedule. We're all guilty of turning on the TV for a favorite program and then watching for another two hours. Next time, turn off the set after your special program.

Since some of the more obvious time-management tricks are often overlooked, here they are as a reminder.

Calendar. Very necessary so that your daughter's dinner at a friend's doesn't coincide with the night you have bought tickets to the circus.

Lists. A kitchen bulletin board with a check-off list is the best reminder for who is responsible for what.

Lunch time. Errands can be done at noon. You'll probably pay a bit more for necessities in your office neighborhood, but it may be worth it if it frees Saturday for a family outing.

Commuting. If you take public transportation to work, you've got time for reading or thinking. Those who drive can enjoy music, cassettes of lectures or the beauty of peace. Sports enthusiasts have learned that walking or bicycling to work cuts down on after-hours exercise time.

Procrastinating. Fight this one. Most projects are easier than they seem, and if you dive in and do them, an enormous amount of worry time could be saved. When procrastinating, keep these thoughts in mind: 1) Do it to get it over with. 2) Don't do it at all. Consider the consequences, and you'll know whether a project needs to be done. 3) If you decide it must be done, then divide it into parts and request family participation.

Our files show that thousands of men want to get back in shape, but don't know how to go about it. We decided to ask an expert, Mike Fretault, leading fitness authority. Here are his answers.

Q. How can I get back in shape?
A. There is only one answer to that: get more exercise.

Q. Won't sports do the trick?
A. Sure, sports are great, provided you practice a "complete" sport like jogging, swimming or rowing a few hours every week. Unfortunately, most men don't have the time or energy for that.

Q. How about calisthenics?
A. Also very good, but even a beginner's program should comprise at least 200 to 300 repetitions. Most men find calisthenics tiring and boring and give up after a few workouts.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?
A. There is one outstanding home training method I use and recommend. It's fast, it's easy and it keeps you interested because during every workout you actually see your strength increasing on the built-in Powermeter gauge.

Q. What's it called?
A. Bullworker® training. It's based on Isometric techniques which have been proven to increase strength three times faster than conventional methods.

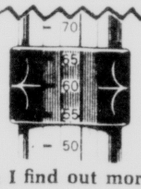
Q. How long does it take?
A. The introductory "get back in shape" program requires only 70 seconds of exercise per day. The complete advanced training program takes about 5 minutes.

Q. What kind of results can I expect?
A. After 2 or 3 weeks of introductory training, most men can see an increase in strength of around 10% and measure an extra inch or two of muscle on their shoulders, chest, biceps—and an inch or two less flab around the waist.

Q. But it's hard work, isn't it?
A. Absolutely not. Most men between 15 and 65 in good general health can run through the full program without getting tired. Bullworker training is progressive so you perform better each time, yet the training always seems easy to you.

Q. What can I expect from continued training?
A. The sky's the limit. There are specialized exercises for building-up or trimming down any part of your body you want to: broad, muscular shoulders—bulging biceps, powerful wrists and forearms—a deep, manly chest tapering down to a flat, trim waist—muscular thighs and calves. You can expect strength increases of up to 4% a week; that's 50% in just three months and I have seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength.

See your strength G-R-O-W-I-N-G day by day on the built-in patented POWERMETER



Q. How can I find out more about Bullworker?
A. I suggest you write for the Free Booklet in color. It contains complete details about Bullworker training and tells you how you can try a Bullworker for two weeks in your own home without cost or obligation.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

18 years ago, the woman you see pictured above . . . Mrs. Marie Glantz of Fairfield, Conn. . . . woke up on her 40th birthday . . . looked in her mirror . . . and DECLARED WAR on age.

Not willing to merely sit back and let time destroy her natural beauty, she decided to do something about it ONCE AND FOR ALL. And what she did is the most sensible, logical approach to the FINAL TRIUMPH over the ravages of time. She consulted some of the most prominent dermatologists and skin specialists. Urged, coaxed and practically begged them to come up with a new solution to a woman-over-30's greatest problem . . . an aging complexion.

Finally, after years of intensive searching, testing, and re-testing, she was given an INCREDIBLE ANSWER . . . more than she had ever hoped for in her wildest dreams. How successful is it?

How To Read Telltale Health Signs From Your Nails

In healthy people, fingernails and toenails are usually healthy. Most trouble people have with nails comes from things they do to them. Brittle nails is a common complaint. They are caused mainly by dishwater, laundry water and hours in the tub and shower. Vitamins and calcium pills won't harden the nails; in fact, no medicine can help. The best thing for brittle nails is to keep them dry. Wear gloves for housework, avoid getting alkali chemicals, such as ammonia, on the nails and spend less beauty time in the shower and tub.

Nail hardeners aren't much help. They just build up a coating that may hold the nail together a little longer. These hardeners are chemicals and may cause irritation to the skin around the nails. The same goes for nail polish. Some women start out looking for red nails and, instead, get fiery red fingers from the polish. Plastic false nails also can be irritating, and they don't strengthen the nail.

Nail-biting is the commonest cause of damage to nails and fingers. It's a nervous habit that can be broken by putting a helpful habit in its place. Get a nail file or clipper, even a whole manicure kit, to carry with you. Then, when you feel like biting, cut, file and trim. Manicuring doesn't look all that good in public, but neither does walking around with a mouth full of fingers in times of stress. You'll find that the new habit will replace the bad one, and after a while you won't need either. Moreover, your fingers will look better.

Show me your nails and I'll tell you a lot about your general health. Nails are growing parts of the body produced by a growth center just under the "moons." When you're healthy, the nails grow evenly and well. But sickness can leave its mark on the nails. Ridges across nails mean there was a period when the the body was sick and the nails grew poorly. A bad case of measles or scarlet fever can leave such ridges. Since nails grow about an inch a month, you can even date the sickness by measuring how far the ridge is from the bottom of the nail.

Diseases turn up in the nails of adults as well as kids. Psoriasis can deform the nails with pits and grooves. Heart trouble and lung disease can make the nails round like the glass of a wristwatch instead of flat. Heart trouble present from birth sometimes gives a blue tinge to the blood (a condition known as cyanosis), which can show through the nails, making them appear blue.

Nails can turn other colors. Some kidney diseases make fingernails white; so does trichinosis. Certain infections tint nails green or yellow. Wilson's disease, a hereditary liver ailment, makes them bright blue. Syphilis colors nails yellow.

Most people have healthy pink nails that stay free of infection. But nails take quite a beating, especially toenails. People with low resistance to infection, diabetics for example, tend to have frequent infections around the nails — the toenails from wear and tear, the fingernails from picking and biting. So little infections around the nails often signal a low resistance to germs.

There's a great deal for doctors to learn from examining nails. That's why some doctors and hospitals have a nurse remove the polish from at least one finger when the patient is set up for a complete exam.

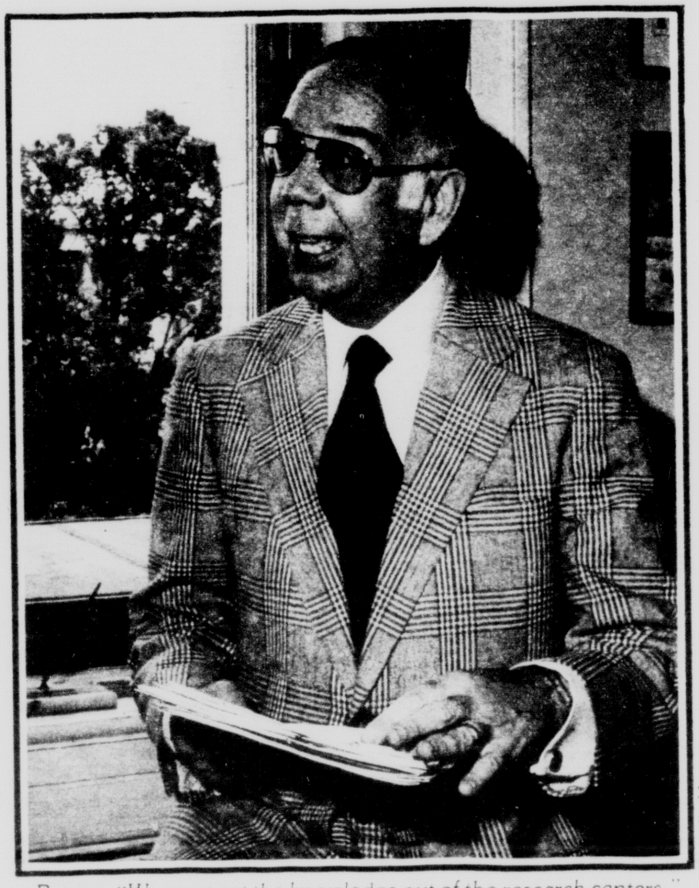
PAUL ROGERS: CONGRESS'S MR. HEALTH

He works expertly where our well-being is at stake and uses clout to push vital medical programs.



Wide World

Rogers: "We must get the knowledge out of the research centers."

By Rochelle Jones

After his father's death from a heart attack at a relatively young age, Rogers vowed to do something to upgrade the nation's health and health care. By dint of hard work he has become Congress's "Mr. Health," its leading expert on health legislation. And as chairman of the House subcommittee on Health and the Environment, he carries clout off Capitol Hill as well. Earlier this year, Rogers interrupted his Easter vacation to fly back to Washington to meet with President Carter, who wanted to discuss the Clean Air Act.

Rogers has had a lot to say about the health of the average American. He has steered legislation containing billions of dollars to combat various killer diseases through Congress. He has been responsible for landmark programs to set up emergency health services and community mental-health centers and to place more doctors in rural areas and the inner city. He has forced the Food and Drug Administration to draft standards for such potentially dangerous medical devices as heart pacemakers and IUD's. He has worked to limit the amount of noise and toxic substances in the environment.

Overall, Rogers believes the country is making good progress toward better health care for all its citizens. Here's how he sees health policy shaping up.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE. Rogers expects the Carter Administration to send its health insurance plan to Congress sometime next year. The exact form that national health insurance takes, he says, depends on what the country can afford, and that hinges in turn on the state of the economy. "To a degree, our approach depends on the employment figures and settling the energy issue," Rogers says. "The Administration has given priorities in these areas," he adds, "and we may have to enact national health insurance on an incremental basis."

A Washington free-lancer, Rochelle Jones has contributed to The Nation, The National Observer and The Congressional Quarterly and is the author of The Other Generation: The New Power of Older People (Prentice-Hall).

Rogers can envisage Congress passing health insurance to cover catastrophic illnesses before tackling the more comprehensive — and more expensive — national health insurance.

HEART DISEASE. "For the first time since 1973," he goes on, "we are seeing a decline in the death rate from heart disease. We have actually reduced the death rate from hypertension, stroke and that type of heart disease by 5 percent. That is a rather significant figure." Rogers attributes the striking decline to major research programs launched in the last 10 years.

AGING. "The National Institute on Aging is studying aging causes. I hope that well within 10 years we will have a significant extension of the lifespan," he says.

Despite his major legislative achievements, Rogers believes the most important factors in improving the country's health are "the things each of us could do."

"The health of our people has improved," he points out, "but we still eat too much and too many sweets, and we don't exercise enough. If we all used common sense, it would have a tremendous impact on our individual health and that of our nation."

Rogers advises people who want a long and healthy life to give up junk food, watch their weight, limit their intake of alcoholic beverages and "get out and walk." Our sedentary life, he believes, is our single-biggest health hazard.

Rogers appears to be a good advertisement for a healthy way of life. At 55 he looks a full decade younger. But even he says it's often easier to know what to do than to do it. "I don't follow my own advice as often as I should," he admits.

By Congressional standards Rogers' power and perquisites, like his spacious office with its view of the Capitol, have come early in life. Re-elected last year to his twelfth term, he now ranks fifteenth in House seniority.

Rogers, though, got an early start. His father represented the same south Florida areas of Broward and Palm Beach counties in the late 1940's and early 1950's. When he died, one month after being elected to his sixth term, Rogers won the special election that followed. At the time he was only 33, with a B.A. and law degree from the University of Florida, where he captured national debating titles.

A bachelor in those days, he soon acquired a reputation as a dashing man about town. He settled down personally and professionally when, shortly before Christmas 1962, he married the former Rebecca Mozley of Alabama after an extended courtship sandwiched between his work on the Hill and trips back to his Congressional district. Two years later he was appointed to the health subcommittee. With the help of his constituents, who regularly re-elect him by wide margins, Rogers began to master health policy and to become a man to be reckoned with.

He is considered a moderate Democrat who seeks the middle of the political spectrum on most issues. He also is known as a thoughtful and energetic chairman who is well versed in the art of political compromise. Rogers' forensic skills have languished since his undergraduate days. He prefers to work quietly behind the scenes to achieve a consensus on legislation. A reporter who often covers his subcommittee says, "He's a hard worker. He knows his stuff and does a very good job at it."

Rogers possesses enviable composure, but he is disturbed by the number of people whose lives are lost and health is injured unnecessarily. He believes, for instance, that 50 percent of the malignant diseases in the country, "maybe even more," could be cured now with early detection and proper treatment. The problem, he says, is applying what is known. "We must get the knowledge out of the research centers," he says. "Right now a person's chances for effective treatment depend to a large extent on where he lives. It's a lottery."

To begin changing that, Rogers helped pass legislation funding 10 comprehensive centers and 43 smaller centers around the country that will bring the latest knowledge about the treatment of various causes of cancer to local doctors.

But although he can pass legislation to improve the care of the sick, he can't always stop people from getting sick in the first place. That's something they must do for themselves. "We know that vaccination can prevent childhood diseases. We know that the proper use of drugs is important," he says. "Yet we continue in ways that are injurious to us. It is absurd for us not to use the medical knowledge we have.

"Remember — the best approach to health care is always prevention." FW

CAREY® "MAGIC INCH"® SMOKING PIPES
So different they are patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT Patent Number 3267941

E. A. Carey

"I've only had my Carey for about a month now. It is a new and delightful experience to draw a cool, clean smoke without the mess, bother, trials and tribulations which I've encountered with a variety of other pipes. Many thanks. If you want your pipe back, you'll have to come down here and take it away from me."

J.R.U.
Tulsa, OK

"I am upset! I possess 4 Carey pipes. I also own 32 conventional briars, meerschaums, clays, etc. These latter represent an investment of approximately $350.00. The problem is — what do I do with my earlier extensive collection? Look at them? I occasionally smoke one or two just to remind me how they pale by comparison with my Carey's."

C.F.B.
Winnetka, IL

"May I take this opportunity to thank you for introducing me to the Carey Pipe. The most superb pipe I have ever smoked and I think I have just about tried them all. Its quality is unsurpassed, almost unbelievable. However, 'the proof is in the smoking.' Best wishes for your continued success."

J.R.
Pittsburgh, PA

"Being a heavy and 'wet smoker' I've at last in the Carey Pipe found a pipe that can give me the continued pleasures in smoking that I've been searching for. Needless to say, I'm going to keep my Carey Pipe. My compliments to you for taking the bitterness out of pipe smoking — I didn't believe it could be done."

J.D.McC.
Indianapolis, IN

"Terrific: one word cannot say it all. I have been trying to give up cigarettes for two years to no avail. My Carey Pipe has done it. My Carey Pipe is everything you said it would be, and more."

T.W.
Fremont, OH

"Over the years I must of bought dozens of pipes and got no enjoyment from them and wound up with a drawer full of pipes. I took to, and became a heavy cigar smoker. I came across your ad but I was a little reluctant to try another pipe after being stung so many times, but with your guarantee there was no way I could lose, so I sent for your pipe and I don't mind telling you, it was the best decision I ever made, now I enjoy pipe smoking and I very seldom smoke a cigar anymore."

A.S.
North Bergen, NJ

NO MONEY — JUST SEND YOUR NAME

All I want is your name so I can write and tell you why I'm willing to send you a Carey® pipe for 30 days smoking without a cent of risk on your part. This is not a new model, not a new style, not a new gadget, not an improvement on old style pipes. It's based on an entirely new principle that harnesses four of Nature's immutable laws — contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking and delivers a smoking pleasure that you've never before experienced. My new kind of pipe smokes cool and mild hour after hour, day after day without rest, without bite, without bitterness. It doesn't have to be "broken in." It never has to be "rested" and it never accumulates sludge! To prove all this, I want to send you a Carey® Pipe to smoke 30 days at my risk. Clip out the coupon and send it to me TODAY. I'll write to you and include a full color brochure absolutely free so you can select your favorite style and shape for your 30 day trial.

E. A. Carey, Dept. 285P, 3932 N. Kilpatrick Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60641
Okay Mr. Carey. Send me your full color brochure so I can select a pipe to smoke for 30 days on a free trial basis.

So effective, you LOSE up to 6 pounds the very first weekend — LOSE up to 12 pounds of both fluid and fat in just 14 days — LOSE as much as 20 — 30 — 40 — POUNDS OR EVEN MORE . . . (and never gain it back for the rest of your life), as medical science shows you how to turn ordinary coffee or tea into the most "DYNAMITE" FAT-MELTING aid you've ever seen in your life.

LIKE TURNING UP AN INNER FURNACE THAT SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS — STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY!

Just 60 seconds from now you are going to discover how to take your morning cup of coffee . . . drop in what appears to be an ordinary sugar-cube . . . and launch yourself on the most incredible FAT-BURNING SPREE you've ever heard of. Yes, a journey to 'lifetime slimness' so fantastic, that just a few short weeks after using this doctor's amazing "Coffee-off" weight-loss program you'll suddenly find yourself 5 — 10 — 15 pounds lighter . . . your belt size 1 — 2 — 3 notches tighter! Because for the first time in your life you are going to win INSTANT CONTROL over your appetite . . . become its master instead of its slave . . . actually SWITCH OFF that maddening urge for food for hours at a time . . . as you watch your waistline shrink itself down by as much as a full size in just a single week!

24 HOURS — up to 2 POUNDS GONE! 48 HOURS — up to 6 POUNDS GONE! AND THAT'S JUST THE BEGINNING!

Just think of it! Ordinary coffee or tea suddenly transformed into a fantastic body-slimming aid that not only helps you melt away as much as 12 pounds the first 2 weeks — but even more amazing, helps you:

LOSE up to 4 to 6 inches off your waistline

LOSE up to 2 to 5 inches off your hips

LOSE up to 3 inches off your thighs

LOSE up to 4 inches off your buttocks

LOSE up to 4 inches off your stomach

all without a moment of torturous diet — without a moment of brutal, punishing exercise — without battling your willpower or fighting off gnawing hunger!

TURNS A CUPFUL OF COFFEE (or tea) INTO HOURS OF "LIQUID WILLPOWER"

LIKE 4 HOURS OF WILLPOWER IN ONE TINY, TASTELESS CUBE

AMAZING "WILLPOWER-IN-A-CUBE" makes you master of your appetite instead of its slave . . . gives you INSTANT CONTROL OF HUNGER — LIFETIME VICTORY OVER FAT!

VITAL NOTICE:

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road To Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of obesity.
*ALSO NOTE: People who dislike coffee or tea may use "FULL-STOP" slim cubes in clear bouillon for the same LIFETIME SLIMNESS results.

Most significant of all, as long as you follow this medically proven "Coffee-Off" lifetime slimness program, you actually become totally immune to fat build-up for the rest of your life — even if you've been hopelessly overweight for all your adult life.

NOW A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT A MOMENT OF GNAWING HUNGER!

How can medical science make this lifetime dream come true? It's simple. Because one of America's leading weight-loss specialists has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea . . . and convert it into a wondrous new kind of fat-fighting aid that SHUTS OFF EVEN A RUNAWAY APPETITE, ON COMMAND! Yes, medical science has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea and actually force hunger to STOP on the spot . . . make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast . . . that in just 10 days time you will simply refuse to believe your bathroom scale— and in just a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe!

BEST OF ALL — NO CRAVING, NO SLIDE-BACK — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD ON THIS LIFETIME SLIMNESS PROGRAM!

The secret is a medically-proven formula, (that to the eye looks just like an ordinary sugar-cube) . . . BUT, when activated in coffee or tea . . . enters your system and automatically SHUTS OFF YOUR APPETITE — SHUTS OFF THAT DRIVING URGE FOR FOOD — SHUTS OFF GNAWING HUNGER for hours at a time! Actually kills your desire, your craving, your appetite for food from meal to meal! So much so in fact, you aren't lured or tempted by even the most mouth-watering food. Not by ice-cream . . . not by cake . . . not even by the most luscious steak. In a nutshell . . .

YOU'RE SIMPLY TURNED OFF FOOD FOR HOURS AT A TIME

The name of this doctor's wondrous "Coffee-Off" way to Lifetime Slimness is "FULL-STOP", because that's just what this medically-proven slim-cube formula does — brings gnawing, run-away appetite to a dead FULL STOP right in its tracks! Yes, according to medical experts just one "FULL-STOP" slim-cube in a cup of coffee or tea turns off your appetite INSTANTLY as if it suddenly went to sleep. You simply have no desire to eat for hours on end . . . even if all your life you've been cursed with a non-stop appetite. In fact, so effective is this "willpower-in-a-cube" you may actually have to consciously remind yourself to eat — which the doctor insists on — in order to prevent TOO MUCH WEIGHT-LOSS, TOO FAST!

Now, just think what this great new development means, if all your life you've had to battle your appetite and struggle with your willpower!

Doctor's "LIQUID-WILLPOWER" DEVELOPMENT Ends Torturous Diet!

It means that instead of battling those mealtime pangs of hunger . . . fighting that maddening urge for food . . . you simply reach for a "FULL STOP" slim-cube instead of fattening food and "sip your appetite to sleep" with this doctor's amazing 3-cups-a-day "Coffee-Off" way to AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS. Because just like water turns off thirst, incredible "FULL-STOP" slim-cubes switch off hunger AUTOMATICALLY all day long! Down goes your appetite— down go the calories — and down goes your weight . . . with a rush!

LIFETIME CONTROL OF YOUR APPETITE FINALLY YOURS — MEANING YOU ARE NOW JUST DAYS AWAY FROM YOUR FIRST STEP TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS!

So if you want to SIP YOURSELF SLIM with this doctor's amazing coffee development . . . if you want to melt away pounds and inches STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY . . . if you want to try this exciting medically-proven concept that combines both a doctor's scientific development and his full-satisfaction eating program that makes lifetime immunity to fat not a hope but a living reality . . . then take advantage of the no-risk offer described below! Yes, act now, on guarantee of full satisfaction or money refunded in full (except postage & handling). Simply return within 10 days.

Remember — this is the last ad for a reducing product you will ever need to read in your life. If you drink coffee . . . or if you drink tea . . . then there is simply not a reason in the world to ever again be embarrassed by a single pound of overweight fat. So why not take the FINAL STEP and get rid of all those excess pounds and inches FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. Act now!

JUST 3 CUPS A DAY HELPS MELT FAT AWAY as you sip yourself thin cupful to cupful with Doctor's LIFETIME SLIMNESS program for AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS!

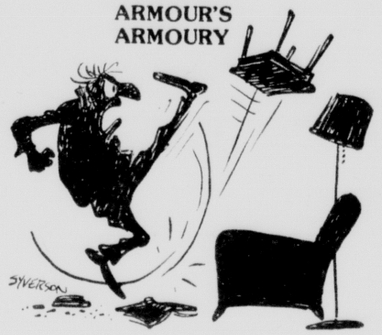
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



FIRST IMPRESSION

If I should fall and skin myself
Or maybe make a bruise,
It's what I fell against that I
With righteous rage accuse.

I curse and possibly I beat
The door I left ajar
On which I scraped my face and may Have left a lifetime scar.

I kick the step on which I tripped,
I hate a head-bumped shelf.
Permit me, please, this moment's burst
Before I blame myself.

—Richard Armour

The little old lady approached the airline counter and asked the clerk for a schedule for a flight from one small town to another quite far away. With care, the clerk worked out a series of connecting flights and wrote it all down. In about an hour the same old lady returned and asked for the same information.

"But I gave all that to you awhile ago," he said.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Making Halloween A Treat

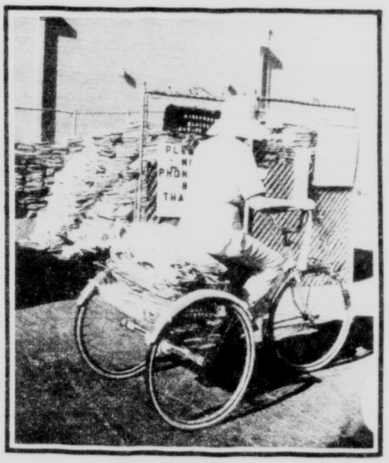
With its witches, goblins, jack-o'-lanterns and costumes, Halloween is an exciting time of the year for children. To make sure the holiday ends safely, you should follow some precautions. If you buy your child's costume, check to see that it is nonflammable. If you're making the costume, use light-colored material and attach reflective tape to both it and the trick-or-treat sack so the child can be seen easily at night. Flameproof the costume by wetting it in a solution of 9 ounces borax, 4 ounces boric acid and 1 gallon water. Use colorful face makeup instead of masks, which can restrict vision, and have each child carry a flashlight (no torches or candles, please). For trick or treating, accompany young children yourself or see that another responsible adult does. Confine visits to the immediate neighborhood and to early evening. Tell children not to eat treats until they get home, then examine all treats before allowing children to eat them. Discard unpackaged food. If you're welcoming trick-or-treaters, keep porch lights on. Give only wrapped candy, and don't let pets outside — they may become excited at the sight of strange costumes. Finally, remember to review traffic and pedestrian safety rules with your children.

ID For Nondrivers

Ever try to pay for a purchase by check on a day that you left your drivers license at home? Then you're familiar with the problems faced every day by nondrivers, who soon discover that even if they have several credit cards, most stores prefer a drivers license as proof of identification. But some states have taken action to remedy the situation and now offer an official identification card for anyone of legal driving age without a drivers license. For example, in Ga., nondrivers can get the card at their nearest Drivers License Examining Office by presenting their Social Security card and birth certificate. Three dollars gets them the ID card that includes their name, Social Security number, address, birth date and photograph. And the card never expires. If you're interested in getting a card, ask your local drivers licensing bureau whether your state issues them.

Ears For The Deaf

Seeing-eye dogs have been around for a while, but now the handicapped have a new set of canine friends — hearing dogs. The idea for the hearing dogs came from a deaf Minnesota housewife who had trained her toy poodle to help her. From Minnesota, where a pilot program was run by the local SPCA, the program went national when the American Humane Assn. took it over last year. When deaf or hearing-impaired people request the dogs, they are asked what three sounds they want to be alerted to. Bob White, administrator of the program, says that the most frequently selected sounds are door knocks, alarm clocks, smoke-detector systems and babies' cries. Although it costs $1,800 to train the animals, which are selected from local shelters on the basis of intelligence and temperament, the association provides the dogs free of charge. Before the dog is left in the home, a trainer spends several days teaching the new owner how to handle and care for it. There is currently a waiting list for dogs, but priority is being given to elderly people living alone and deaf couples with infants. For more information, write: Bob White, American Humane Assn., 53-51 South Roslyn, Englewood, Colo. 80110.



Paper Money

If your club or organization is looking for a way to raise money for charity, the answer might be as near as yesterday's newspaper — recycling. Thousands of groups have taken advantage of this fund-raising idea, and with the increasing demand for old newspaper, now is a good time for your group to cash in. If you're thinking of organizing a recycling drive, the first thing to do says the Paper Stock Conservation Committee (PSCC) of the American Paper Institute is to contact a local wastepaper dealer to find out what the market is for paper in your area and how much he will pay. He also can help organize your drive. Once you've made sure there is enough support in your group for the project, you'll have to define your collection area (perhaps in consultation with the wastepaper dealer) and decide whether you will be using a curbside or central-site pickup. Two months before the first drive, you should publicize it with flyers in the collection area, being sure to specify what kinds of paper you want. Then if you plan to continue the collection on a monthly basis, send out reminders 2 weeks before the collection for 3 or 4 months until people get into the recycling habit. For more information on organizing a recycling drive, write: Manager, PSCC, American Paper Institute, Dept. FW, 260 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Quick Takes

Wondering where your gas dollar goes? Gasoline taxes take up part of the bite, and, depending on where you live, you have to pay anywhere from 5¢ to 11¢ on the gallon. Texas has the lowest gas tax, and Del., Wash., and Conn. are tied for the highest.... Drinking and pregnancy don't mix says a study by doctors at Boston Univ. The study reports that women who drink heavily are twice as likely to bear sickly or abnormal babies than women who drink moderately or not at all....Contrary to what you may think, it isn't the kids who spend the most time in front of the TV set. A Nielsen survey found that adult women average 30 hours and 14 minutes a week of televison-watching, children 2 to 11 25 hours and 38 minutes and teens 22 hours and 36 minutes.... Where you live makes a difference in how much weight you have to lose. One weight-control group's figures show that overweight Easterners have an average of 46.2 pounds to shed. Westerners 42.7, Southerners 45.8 and those from the Midwest 56.9.

Bus Safety For Children

Even though school has been in session for a while, a lot of children still haven't learned an important lesson — how to ride a bus safely. Why not take a few minutes with your children to go over these safety tips from Kansas State Univ. health-safety specialist Martha Brill.

- Children should stay in their seats and face the front of the bus when riding.
- Aisles of the bus must be kept clear. Musical instruments and other school gear should be placed under the seat.
- If children must cross a street when getting off, they should walk far enough ahead of the bus so that they can see the driver. The size of a bus prevents the driver from seeing a small child who passes close to the bumper.

It's here! It's available right now from Mutual of Omaha— the protection against catastrophic medical bills that so many people have been asking for—up to

MAJOR MEDICAL COVERAGE

Pays you both IN and OUT of the hospital for covered sickness and accidents.

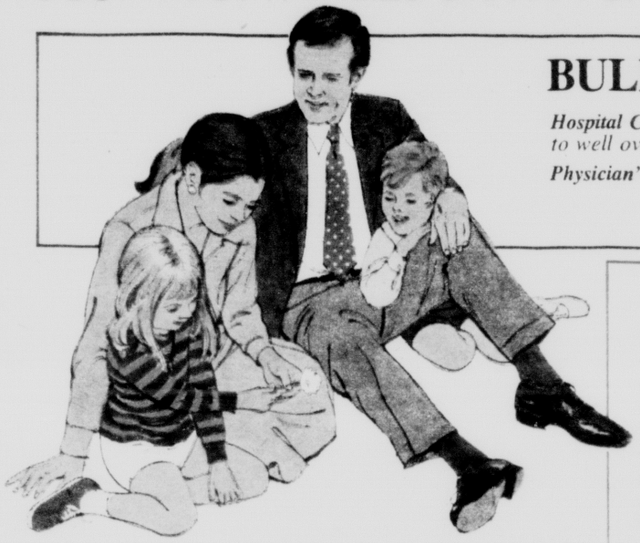
THE PLAN THAT CAN ADD NEEDED HEALTH INSURANCE DOLLARS TO YOUR BASIC BENEFITS AT A COST MOST FAMILIES CAN AFFORD.

You hear it everywhere. There ought to be protection available for the big bills — the bills caused by catastrophic illness. Well, that protection is available right now from Mutual of Omaha — up to $250,000.00 for each member of the family. It's a lot of protection, but it's necessary protection because today's and tomorrow's medical care costs are so high and going higher.

Yet it is reasonable in cost because it needn't duplicate your basic hospital-surgical-medical plans. They are splendid for ordinary bills. This is for extraordinary bills — the catastrophe you never plan on meeting, but that nevertheless can come to any of us with appalling consequences.

This can be the RIGHT protection for you . . . IF you have basic protection now. (If not, Mutual of Omaha can provide that, too.) But it will only be right for you if you understand everything about when this policy protects you — when your basic plan protects you — all the details that you must have clearly in mind. Find out exactly what protection you now have — how much of the bills you can face today your basic plan will cover — how much this new Major Medical plan will cover.

You deserve to know all the facts about the coverage available in your state, and a Mutual of Omaha personal service representative will furnish them entirely without obligation. Costs for example, exclusions, reductions or limitations, deductible and co-insurance features, terms for continuing your policy in force — the exact benefits your present coverage, health, income and age can now make you eligible for. You will also receive facts about the fine plans to meet your life insurance needs available from Mutual's life affiliate, United of Omaha.



BULLETIN

Physician's Fees – Currently rising at 14.2% annual rate.

WILL YOUR HEALTH INSURANCE PAY WHEN YOU DON'T GO TO THE HOSPITAL?

If your health insurance covers hospital bills only — if it doesn't cover sickness at home — it can leave an awful lot of bills unpaid. Our figures show you're seven times more likely to be laid up at home than in the hospital. That's why this Mutual of Omaha $250,000.00 major medical plan helps cover you over and above the deductible both IN and OUT of the hospital for services and supplies like these:

IN HOSPITAL

Hospital room and board charges — the average daily semi-private rate for your hospital • Confinement in an intensive care unit • Services of a radiologist for diagnosis or treatment • Anesthesia and its administration • Hospital furnished medical services and supplies.

IN AND OUT OF HOSPITAL

Treatment by a physician or surgeon • X-ray and laboratory examinations • Drug and medicines requiring a prescription and purchased upon a physician's order and dispensed by a licensed pharmacist . . . and much, much more!

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

EACH OF THE FLY'S SIX FEET ARE EQUIPPED WITH TWO TINY CLAWS AND STICKY PADS OF HAIR. THESE ENABLE IT TO CLING UPSIDE DOWN TO THE CEILING AND STICK TO THE SMOOTH SURFACE OF A WINDOW-PANE WITH EQUAL EASE. WHEN WALKING UPSIDE DOWN, THE FLY PICKS UP THREE OF ITS FEET AT A TIME. THE OTHER FEET HOLD THE FLY FIRMLY TO THE CEILING UNTIL IT IS THEIR TURN TO STEP FORWARD.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I use baby food jars in my husband's lunch box to hold catsup, salad dressing and the like. — M.J.K.

© 1977 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY---I keep a clean nylon stocking that has only small runs in a kitchen drawer to use for straining French fry grease before storing it in the refrigerator. I cut a section about eight inches long from the stocking, tie a knot in the bottom, stretch the top over the storage container (usually a coffee can), strain the grease through it and then dispose of the nylon piece.---MRS.J.M.W.

DEAR POLLY---The best way I have found to use all those left-over slivers of soap is to put them in a small pocket made of nylon net. After filling, sew the fourth side together. The abrasiveness of the nylon on the soap cause plenty of suds to wash one's hands and every bit of a bar is then used.---ALLIE.

DEAR POLLY---Instead of throwing away the salad dressing made with salt, oil and vinegar that is left in salad bowls, I now put the bottoms of copper-bottomed pans in this mixture to remove the black and then rub lightly with a cloth that has cleanser on it. They come out shiny.---LENA.

DEAR POLLY — My dog eats half a can of dog food each night, so the opened can has to be sealed so the food does not spoil. I had been covering it with foil, but now use the top off a new-fangled potato chip can. It can be washed and used again and again.— D.S.

DEAR POLLY — I am short and the pants I buy are always too long so have to be cut off and re-hemmed, but I always ravel the hem in these pieces so I have matching thread for the new hem. — MRS. C.H.

DEAR POLLY---Our car looked terrific except for a ripped seat cover--and then I thought of those bathtub appliques that come in a variety of shapes and colors! I first glued the ripped pieces together and then placed an applique over a mend and pressed it down firmly by hand. Beautiful autumn leaves now hide those rips and cracks in the vinyl surfaces.---E.L.S.

●

A Lovely Afghan
This Afghan is crocheted in the afghan stitch, then embroidered with handsome Chinese designs in cross-stitch. No. 5724 has crochet directions; embroidery graphs.
